Dec. 2-8 Is Texas Pecan Wk.

Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan V. Brown has proclaimed Dec. 2-8 Texas Pecan Week in honor of the native crop that Texans have been eating since the first settlers arrived on Lone Star soil.

Brown said this is a particularly significant year for the pecan industry in view of the 95 million pounds that were predicted for harvest. It is the largest crop of Texas pecans ever recorded. Pecans will be available at reasonable prices during the holidays.

"We want to honor a Texas agricultural product that is a part of the state's history," said Brown.

When pioneers arrived here they found woods of pecan trees that shed their crop from fall to early winter. The trees were the source of a nutritious food that became a staple in homes lucky enough to be located near a wild stand.

The early settlers gathered pecans by hand and took them to market in wagons. In 1880 San Antonio was the center of pecan trade. That year 1,250,000 pounds were sold for five to six cents a pound in wagonload quantities. Most of the pecans were shipped east.

Mass production of shelled pecans had its beginnings not in Texas but in St. Louis in 1884. Eleven people — one cracker holding a hammer and 10 meat pickers — began doing what had been until then strictly an at-home project. Four years later a hand-powered cracking device was introduced to the industry.

Today's industry bears some resemblance to last century's, but very little. Pecan growing is still an avocation for many landowners here. They harvest their native varieties from private land along river banks and in valleys, selling them at roadside stands or to accumulators who pass them along to big wholesalers. Most of the increase in this year's crop, in fact, is due to an abundant native crop grown in this manner.

"We want to congratulate the pecan industry for the strides it has made in production and harvest over the years," said Brown. "The abundance of this year's crop should lower prices and make pecans more readily available to consumers around the state."

Meadows Awarded $2500 In Jury Case

In a jury case decided at about 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 19th, J. Ralph Meadows of Columbus was awarded $1500 in actual damages and $1000 in exemplary damages from Ruthven Tolbirt, also of Columbus, who cut a creek levee, allowing it to flood Meadows' oats crop.

The levee held back the waters of Wolf Pen Creek near Columbus.

Answering six special issues, the jury found that Tolbirt had exercised negligence in releasing the water, that it ruined Meadows' 1978-79 oats crop (worth $1500), and that indeed he had shown gross negligence, which won an extra $1000 for Meadows.

Meadows also asked compensation for the 1979-80 oats crop that he said he was unable to plant this year because of the flooding, but the jury denied this.

It was a 10-2 decision.

Members of the jury were: Randy Neuendorff, Lovie Giradt, Bill Hartley, Beatrice Stock and Mrs. Margie Pölsch, all of Columbus; Eugene Anders, Leslie Kahlden, Troy Johnson, Mrs. Clarence Kloesel and Mrs. James H. Brooks, all of Weimar, Sam Burford of Eagle Lake; and Mrs. H. P. Parr, Weimar Mercury.

Cost Containment No Way To Fight Rising Hosp. Bills, Pickle

(By Cong. J. J. Pickle)

Rising hospital bills are enough to make almost anyone as ill as the ailment for which they are treated, but the House correctly decided last week that a hospital cost containment bill is not the way to fight medical inflation.

The measure came to the floor after less than overwhelming receptions in two committees, including the Ways and Means Committee on which I serve. I voted for the bill in committee, because the issue needed to be heard by the entire House.

The crucial vote occurred on a motion to scrap the controls and set up a national study commission on hospital costs. I supported the substitute, which passed 234-166. Under the original proposal, HEW would regulate hospital costs, if the industry's voluntary spending reduction efforts failed to keep spending below a set annual increase.

Many arguments used on the floor were familiar to committee members who grappled with this bill. The industry said its voluntary efforts are working since hospital price increases are running at an annual rate of 13.3%, compared to the 1977 rate of 15.6%. During this period, the nation's overall inflation rate rose from 6.8 to 13.5%. In actuality, hospital costs are rising at slightly under the national inflation rate. Texas hospitals instigated their own voluntary system in 1975, and price increase are below the national average.

Pat Walker's

Six months ago I was unhappy with my job and my figure. I had quit my first job as a sales lady to take an 8 to 5 office job. I thought it would be great working Monday through Friday, 8 to 5. I soon found out that a job 8 to 5 was not as important as liking your job and being able to work with people. The more unhappy I got with my job the more I ate and the larger I got.

When I heard about Pat Walker's coming to Seguin, I knew that it must be the answer. Not only would I be able to work with people, but I could regain my figure and my confidence. I love being a manager at Pat Walker's and being able to help others regain their figures. I have lost a total of 23 lbs. and 26 inches. The wonderful part about it is that I know that I will be totally corrected and will always have my figure and my confidence.
