EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

Watch For Youngsters On Halloween

Driver responsibility to young pedestrians will increase on the night of October 31st, which is Halloween. Jim Arnold, Administrator of the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety, issued a reminder for all motorists to be mindful of their responsibility to the youngsters as they set out on their "trick or treat" adventure. Said Arnold, "Halloween is not statistically one of the more accident prone seasons, but it is a time for us to be aware of the children. These youngsters are going to be crossing streets with thoughts of having fun and ringing doorbells. Many will not be remembering their instructions to watch for cars. Therefore, I urge each motorist to be especially mindful of young goblins during the evening of Halloween."

Arnold expressed optimism to the small amount of accidents that actually occur during Halloween, but he added that it never hurts to be reminded of the responsibility. "If children start out before dark and are reminded to cross at intersections after looking for oncoming cars, then maybe we can pass this period without injury or death to any young pedestrians. A car moving at a snail's pace has a much better chance of coming to a half if necessary and this could result in saving a life," Arnold concluded.

A spokesman for the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety said children could wear light colored clothing, carry lighted flashlights and display reflective tape on their costumes to be seen from greater distances.

Rotary Has Sell-Out

Eagle Lake Rotary Club had a complete sell-out for its annual Chuck Wagon barbecue supper on Tuesday night of last week, netting a nice profit for the club's scholarship program. The Rotary Club annually sends a worthy Rice High School graduate to the Wharton County Junior College under a two year scholarship program.

The food ran out before some latecomers were fed and the Club extends its apologies for this inconvenience.

"The club extends sincere thanks to all for their cooperation and patronage," said Gerald Bradshaw, president of the club in behalf of the members.

Comm. Choir Practice Sun.

The Community Choir will have a practice session in preparation for the annual Union Thanksgiving Service at 3 p.m. this Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

All persons interested in singing in the choir are invited and urged to attend the practice this Sunday.

The choir will present music for the annual Community Thanksgiving Service and will also present a Christmas Cantata later in the year.

Let's Look Back
48 YEARS AGO

(November 20, 1926)

The Headlight is issued again this week without a linotype operator on duty. All items in the paper this week were sent to Houston where they were linotyped and sent back to the office here to be printed. R. A. Risien, who has been in New Orleans, where his little daughter underwent a serious operation, is expected home today or tomorrow. . . The 5th annual Colorado County Fair came to a close on last Saturday night. Taken as a whole, the fair was a successful event. It was no record-breaker in point of attendance, but Secretary B. H. Faber stated that in his opinion it will just about break even financially. The exhibits at the Fair were better than the year previous, and considering the fact that there was so little co-operation shown by a few of the people of the county, the fair should be called a big success. To get right down to brass tacks Ben Faber just about shouldered the whole works. . . Little William Glasier lost the fourth finger of his left hand through accidental discharge of a shotgun at the home of Ed J. Braden on Tuesday. Mr. Braden had been out duck hunting and returning to his home leaned the 12-guage double-barrel shotgun between the pickets of his yard fence. William was playing in the yard with the Braden children, and placed his hand on the muzzle of the gun when Charlie Braden, four years of age, cocked it and it exploded. . .The second hunting accident of the week took place Wednesday afternoon when Joe Manac was accidentally shot through his left foot. Joe had gone to the farm of Chas. Banning where threshing was in progress. He took Mr. Banning's double-barrel shotgun and went out in the nearby fields to shoot ducks. He was sliding down the side of a levee to keep some ducks from observing him when the gun accidentally exploded the full load of number six shot striking him in the top of the foot and passing entirely through the foot. . .Saturday night about 12 o'clock, a Ford car, owned by Isaiah Axle, an Altair negro, was knocked off the ferry boat at the Colorado River crossing into 18 feet of water. A car driven by the wife of Joe Hart, also colored, coming down the embankment of the ferry, struck the car with such force to send it into the deep waters of the river. . . Hayes Stephens, who underwent an operation some months ago and who hasn't hit a lick of work since he went to Houston Tuesday expecting to have to undergo another operation, but his doctors there found him in better shape than he thought he was and advised him that another operation was unnecessary. . .

Cong. Pickle Asks Resignation of Sec. Butz

U. S. Representative J. J. "Jake" Pickle has joined Representative Wright Patman in calling for Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to resign. Patman, the dean of the Texas House delegation, sent President Ford a telegram last week requesting Butz' removal.

"Numerous farmers and ranchers in the 10th Congressional District are on the verge of economic ruin but Mr. Butz will not listen to their complaints. I believe that he should step aside in favor of someone who will be more responsive to the pleas of food producers," Pickle said. The entire cattle and dairy industries are on the verge of bankruptcy and new leadership is desperately needed. The best thing is to ask Earl Butz to move along."

Earlier this year, Congress narrowly passed the Emergency Livestock Loans to aid beef producers. But, Pickle said, the legislation was inadequate, and last week, the bill's restrictive portions were eased to allow emergency loans for living expenses, payment of secured debts, and for refinancing debts.

Pickle listed the following steps he has taken to aid the agricultural condition: a beef import embargo; opposed the depletion of our grain, while not calling for a halt, but asking for full disclosure by international grain houses; legislation to curb fertilizer exports and asked President Ford to meet with Texas beef producers.

Car Hits Trail Rider Sat., Woman Injured

A trail rider was hospitalized when the horse which she was riding was struck by a pickup truck during the Texas Trail Riders Fall ride from Rock Island to Glidden last Saturday afternoon.

Highway Patrolman Ray Scholton of Columbus said that one of the horses on the ride shied and in an attempt to miss the horse, the driver of the truck, a fourteen year old youth from Eagle Lake, turned the truck into a ditch. In the excitment he hit the gas pedal instead of the brakes and the vehicle came out of the ditch and hit the rear of a horse ridden by Cynthia Bailey of Gonzales, said the officer. The impact knocked the horse out from under the rider and she fell in the path of the oncoming pickup and the left front wheel ran over her legs.

She was taken to the Columbus Hospital by the Emergency Ambulance Service. It is not believed that she suffered any broken bones.

The driver of the car and his grandfather, a passenger, escaped injury.

The accident happened at 2:45 p.m. on the Speaksville Road, County Road 106, between Rock Island and Columbus as the trail ride headed for Glidden.

CALLING ALL HOMEMAKERS

(By Dorothy Schomberg County Extension Agent H.E.)

The variety of materials suitable for making winter arrangements is limited only by the imagination of the individual collecting the material.

The care and manner used in collecting and preparing the specimens is important in the success of making an arrangement attractive.

Cockscomb, globe amaranth, baby's breath, strawflower and statice can all be used if they are properly dried. Select only the best flowers with the longest stems and prepare at least twice as many as needed. This allows for discarding of damaged flowers.

For the drying area, use a well ventilated attic with little or no light. Light tends to fade the colors. Tie the cut ends of the stalks together in small bundles and hang the stems upside down from nails or a line. After the material is thoroughly dry, store it in large roomy boxes to keep it clean and to prevent damage.

Many grasses produce attractive plumes that can be dried. Cut the flowering grass heads just as they mature but before they expand or shed. The drying procedure is the same as for flowers.

Single flower types -- anemone, chrysanthemum, cosmos, dianthus, sunflower and zinnia--as well as pansy, daffodil and clematis can sometimes be cured by using a drying agent. They are too fragile to be dried by hanging. A mixture of equal amounts by volume of cornmeal and borax will serve as a drying agent.

Strip all foliage from the stem before drying. Place a layer of the drying agent in the bottom of a box, then lay the flowers in the box and gently fill in around the individual flower heads with additional material. Pack the drying agent between the petals to hold them apart while they dry.

Attractive foliage such as oak, magnolia, English ivy, iris leaves, bamboo and eleagnus are best cured in glycerine. Place the bottom four to five inches of the stem in a jar containing a solution of one part glycerine to two parts water. Crushing the ends of the more woody stems will aid them in absorption. After the solution has penetrated the entire surface of the leaf, remove the specimen from the container and hang it upside down until dry.

Glycerine preserved leaves can be used with either fresh flowers or in dry arrangements. Complete details on collecting and preserving materials for dried arrangements can be found in the garden section of any good book store or library.
