ELMS Students To Make Pre-Election Poll

Seventh grade Math I students will be taking an election poll just prior to the election November 4. They will be clearly identified and working in pairs. They also have been instructed not to enter any homes but to remain at the door.

When they come to your door, your cooperation would be greatly appreciated as they can fulfill the objectives of their math project. You will be asked to complete a ballot stating your voting preference and if you have completed your ballot, place it in a sealed box so that your vote remains secret. After the entire town has been canvassed, the results will be tallied and a prediction of the National presidential vote made on this basis.

New Scouting Uniforms Now Available

The new look in Boy Scout, Cub Scout and leader uniforming is finally here. Announcement from the National Boy Scouts of America of the redesigned uniforms stated that they are now available at all Scout distributors.

Designer Oscar de la Renta has donated his talent to design brand new uniforms which provide contemporary style, while maintaining the classic Scout look that is part of the American tradition.

Khaki tan shirts with long or short sleeves and olive drab green trousers and shorts with cargo pockets are the basic components of the Boy Scout, Explorer and male adult leader's uniform. Cub Scouts will wear similarly styled uniforms in navy blue. New baseball style caps replace the old Cub Scout, Webelos, and Boy Scout visored caps. Knee socks with contrasting color cuffs complete the summer outfit. Shoulder loops will serve to designate the wearer's Scouting affiliation. Council and District Scouters should wear the Silver Shoulder Loops on their redesigned shirts. The Gold Loops are restricted for wear by National and Regional Scouters. Red Shoulder Loops are worn by those in Boy Scouting; Blue by those in Cub Scouting; and Green by those in Exploring.

The blouse for all women leaders, both Cub Scout and Boy Scout, is pale yellow. Den mothers can choose a dress, skirt, slacks or shorts in navy blue, while female Boy Scout leaders will wear olive drab green dress, skirt, slacks or shorts.

The old uniforms are by no means obsolete and can be worn as long as they are serviceable. The new uniform will gradually replace the old as stocks are depleted, say Scout officials.

Winners In '79 Math-a-Thon

Pictured are Lesley Matthews, 1979 winner of a TI-30 calculator for collecting the largest sum in a Math-a-Thon [illegible] wearing the Math-A-Thon Magician shirt each child received for collecting $25 or more. Each participant received a Certificate of Appreciation. The school also received a TI-30 at Home Campaign.

Math-a-Thon To Benefit St. Jude Research Hospital

Students at Eagle Lake Middle School will again participate in a Math-A-Thon to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. Parents have indicated their approval of their child's participation by completing the registration forms brought home this week.

Each student who sends in his registration card will receive a Pushbock in the mail in about 3 weeks. When he gets his Pushbock, he will work the approximately 200 problems which are in the form of puzzles, mazes, tanglegrams, and other enjoyable activities. Each student's contest book is appropriate for his math ability level. After completing the Pushbock, the student will show his work to family, friends, and neighbors and ask them to sponsor his work by making a donation per problem to the Hospital. A pledge of 1 cent per problem would be a donation of $2; 5c per problem would be for $10; 10c per problem - $20.

All donations are tax-deductible. St. Jude's is a non-sectarian hospital founded by Danny Thomas to seek cures for dreaded children's diseases. All medical expenses plus the accommodations for his parents are taken care of by the Hospital.

John Matthews, who lived a number of years in Mississippi, highly praised the work of St. Jude's. He knew personally of one child, Kim, who was sent to St. Jude's with leukemia. When the disease proved fatal, the Hospital sent someone to explain all this to Kim's classmates so they could understand what had happened-a very tangible fact they understand children and care for all involved in each case.

A Bike-A-Thon is being conducted locally by Mrs. Darrell Gertson to benefit St. Jude's also. This gives the youth a different outlet to show their concern for less fortunate children. They can use their muscles or their brains to help support the research in children's diseases. Either way, the children at St. Jude's Hospital benefit-and that's the whole reason for participating.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN---Farms, ranches and oil wells. Sometimes during an election year you begin to think that's all there is in Texas.

Both candidates in the presidential slugfest, or at least their proxies, tuned in to those two BIG ISSUES all last week. Texas is regarded by both President Jimmy Carter and former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan as a must-win state.

Carter's Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland started the ball rolling with a swing through the Panhandle, then the Central and Northeast Texas farm belts.

Following him all the way were a band of angry, protesting farmers who staged a public walkout wherever Bergland began to speak. Although the small band of radicals, generally considered to belong to the American Agriculture Movement, appear to be a splinter group, they nevertheless have won sympathy from the farmers who stay home in the fields. Their message: enough of Carter, let's try Reagan. Whether or not they are actually winning farmers over to Reagan is another matter.

Just an hour after the farmers plagued him at a Temple breakfast, Bergland toured the prototype "on-farm" gasohol plant in Rockdale built by Rep. Dan Kubiak and spoke of the need for several more such plants in Texas.

Dollars for Gasohol

Bergland also promised Kubiak, a gasohol advocate in the Legislature, that $260 million in Farmers Home Administration loans are available for gasohol plants across the nation immediately including two in the Texas Panhandle. Kubiak apparently was relieved at Bergland's commitment of gasohol dollars for Texas, having stuck his political neck out for his pet project. The radical farmers had angrily threatened to picket Bergland in Rockdale, then reportedly promised Kubiak's aide they would back off only out of respect for Kubiak's 100 percent pro-farm voting record.

Carter's folks then released the Farmers and Ranchers for Carter/Mondale steering committee, which contained a few noteworthies in the agriculture world. Heading it is former chairman of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee Bob Poage, and also Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. Also named were six members of the Texas House Agriculture Committee: Kubiak, vice chairman Pete Patterson, solar advocate Bill Keese, Tip Hall, Betty Denton and Tony Garcia. State Senator Ray Farabee was named as was Jay Naman, president of the well-respected Texas Farmers Union.

Republicans: "Big Deal"

Texas Republicans were unimpressed. Vice Presidential candidate George Bush was stumping the Panhandle area, pointing out the inadequacies of Carter's farm program and getting loud applause from AAM members and others.

State party chairman Chet Upham unveiled Reagan's program for farmers, in which expanding international export markets will play a big part.

Upham, swinging through south Texas, also predicted Republican voters will turn out over 50 percent while Democrats will muster a little over 30 percent . . . thus assuring a Reagan victory. Democratic national chairman John C. White, a former Texas Agriculture Commissioner, aimed higher, saying Republican turnout will near 80 percent and Democrats could lose the race with lower than a 50 percent turnout.

Now for Oil

Republican Gov. Bill Clements and Democrat Atty. Gen. Mark White may finally have found something to agree on: they both dislike the windfall profits tax Congress levied this summer. Clements has asked White to file suit attacking the tax, and White already had indicated he may do just that. White's staff met last week with Louisiana and Oklahoma officials to discuss various legal strategies to fight the tax.

Clements and White have different politics behind their action, though. Clements is committed to President Carter's political defeat and wants to hang the windfall tax around Carter's neck. White reminds people that the whole issue of oil price decontrol, including the Windfall Profits Tax (which actually was shaped by Congress), never would have been necessary had it not been for the controls imposed by Republican President Richard Nixon.

And so it goes . . . One certain thing is this: neither Clements, White nor few other Texas officials like the manner in which the new tax cuts into the small profits of independent oil producers, particularly the small ground water in Southeast Texas and indications are that there was good spring hatch for snows, blues, Canadas and whitefronts.

While a wet prairie is good for the geese, Stutzenbaker said a dry season provides better hunting on the prairie because it concentrates the geese around areas with water.

The High Plains goose situation is different from the rest of the state, says Robert West, Department Wildlife regional director in San Angelo. "Seldom do we get any geese in the High Plains areas before the middle of November."

Geese wintering in the Panhandle are a separate group, which [illegible] West Artic. When migration starts, these geese are only lightly hunted until they reach Southeastern Colorado where they are subjected to only moderate hunting pressure.

Heavy snows and a harsh cold spell in Southeastern Colorado will drive the geese to the Texas Panhandle, West said. If the Colorado weather warms up the Texas Panhandle geese will return to Colorado. The Texas population could fluctuate several times during the season.

Species densities in the Panhandle are different than those in the rest of the state, West says. The Panhandle flocks are primarily the small Canada goose during most of the season. White-fronted or speckle-belly geese will stay in the area until the first freeze then they migrate south, some stopping off at Lake Casa Blanca near Laredo before going on into Mexico.

Hearing On Prohibiting 2, 4-D Sat. November 10

Petition Asks Commr. Ct. For Recommendation For Part Of County

Colorado County Commissioners' Court has called a public hearing on Monday, Nov. 10th beginning at 10 a.m. to consider a petition received by the court to recommend to the Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Texas that he put into effect a regulation prohibiting the use and application of the herbicide 2, 4-D in a certain portion of Colorado County.

The court received a petition signed by 86 residents, mostly from the southern portion of the county, that the use and application of 2, 4-D be prohibited in all of the area of the county lying and situated south of U.S. Highway 90A during the period of March 1 through July 31 of each year.

The petitioners noted that the use of 2, 4-D during those times of the year endanger [illegible] crops being planted in the area. It was noted that by restricting the use of 2, 4-D during only a portion of the year, farmers and ranchers and applicators who wish to use the herbicide will be afforded an opportunity of doing so without the possibility of affecting cotton and grain crops.

All persons interested are invited to attend the hearing on Nov. 10th to officially express their opinions, said County Judge Lester J. Cranek.

SHERIDAN NEWS

By Velma Kutzer (234-3565)

Randy Kerschners Welcome Daughter

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Randy Kershner on the birth of their baby daughter early Wed. morning, Oct. 15th in Eagle Lake.

Leslie Renee weighed seven pounds and eleven ounces at birth and is welcomed home by a 5 year old sister, Stephanie. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Teach of Sheridan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ashley and children enjoyed a red fish dinner Saturday night in Halletteville at the Werner home.

Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Williamson and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Sanders and children attended a Williamson family reunion in Krotz Springs, La. during the past weekend, approximately 160 persons were present.

We welcome Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Garza and daughter who have recently moved back to Sheridan.

Mrs. Tom Combeste was in La Porte Wednesday, to purchase supplies for Honey's Ceramic Shop. Many of the items are related to Christmas and the holiday season and she invites everyone to come in and see them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Arkrens of Houston spent the weekend at their place near Lake Sheridan and visited with my family Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Fuller, Becky and Tracy Rodriguez enjoyed visiting with relatives in Austin, Sunday.

Sheridan Emerg. Corps 'Recruiting Dinner' Monday

The Sheridan Emergency Aid Corps will have a "recruiting" dinner at the Community Center at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 27. All members are asked to be present and bring with them a guest that is interested in becoming a member. A film will be presented after the meal and a social hour will follow.

Get well wishes are extended to Everett Hearn who is a patient in the hospital in Eagle Lake.

Injured At Work

Melvin Fuller was treated at the Lavaca County Medical Center in Halletteville last Wed. for foot and ankle injuries he sustained while at work. He is on crutches now and we hope he will fully recover before long.

Raiders Win Again

The Rice High School football team continues to impress everyone with their win of 40-8 over Sealy last week. Even though the game was delayed for some time due to heavy rain and lightning, Raider fans filled the visitors' stands in contrast to a very small group of Sealy fans.

The band was unable to perform because of the continuing rain and certainly was missed.

FFA Carnival Sat.

One last reminder of the P.T.S. Halloween Carnival Saturday night beginning at 6:00. This one promises to be a most entertaining carnival.
