EAGLE LAKE, TEXAS, SATURDAY JULY 20, 1907.

NUMBER 13.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the inside nerves. Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Restorative is sold by Eagle Lake Drug Co.

Sam Paschal brought home four fine fresh Jersey cows from Eagle Lake Sunday.—Rock Island Enterprise.

Growing Aches and Pains

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Bremond, Texas, writes, April 15, 1902: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet, with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Eagle Lake Drug Co.

Reporter—So they tell me that you and Jones were calm and collected after the explosion.

Flannagan—Well, sir, I was calm, but poor Jones had to be collected.

Was in Poor Health for Years

Ira W. Kelley, of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others." Refuse substitutes. Sold by Eagle Lake Drug Co.

John was struggling along the road, evidently at peace with himself and the world, and in no need of a hurry. As he seemed to be going no where in particular, a smart bystander, thinking to have some fun with the little darkey, said, "Hello, Rastus, where are you going?"

"Ain't gwine nowhere," Rastus replied. "Ise dun been where Ise a gwine to."

knows that Ballard's Snow Liniment has no superior for rheumatism, stiff joints, cuts, sprains, lumbago and all pains. Buy it, try it and you will always use it. Anybody who has used Ballard's Snow Liniment is a living proof of what it does. All we ask of you is to get a trial bottle. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Eagle Lake Drug Co.

It was a good, old-fashioned revival service, and getting warm-up to white heat. The butcher arose and began to speak. "I have been a very wicked man," he said, "I have given short weight and sold bad meat, and when I die I'll go to hell." Just then an old deacon who was the groceryman and who was also very deaf, started the hymn, "If you get there before I do, tell them that I am coming, too."—Ex.

Mr. W. S. Ashley, one of Lissie's prominent citizens, was in town Saturday.

Mr. James Cooper was in Columbus doing jury service the first of the week.

Mrs. D. J. Hayes of Houston spent Monday in the city with Mrs. A. W. Wangh.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Obenhaus of Bonus spent Sunday in the city with friends.

Mrs. E. S. Winfree left last Friday night for a visit to Mrs. Wm. Nichols in Austin.

Mrs. H. Nussbaum returned Sunday afternoon from a short visit to relatives in Weimar.

Mrs. J. Nathan left Tuesday for a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Max Land, in Hallettsville.

Mrs. J. J. Whitley returned Monday afternoon from an extended visit to San Antonio.

Mrs. Alex Callison visited her daughter, Mrs. Glenn Harbert, in Columbus the first of the week.

Mr. O. Green came up from Glen Flora Sunday and spent the day in the city with his family.

Mr. Glenn A. Harbert and little Miss Glenn Harbert came down from Columbus Monday afternoon.

Miss Mand Sunwall of El Centro is visiting in the city, the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. V. Boyd.

We are pleased to enroll the name of Mr. A. F. Wilson among our regular weekly readers this week.

Mr. Mike Waligura came in from La Porte Monday to spend a while with his family at Vox Populi.

We are glad this week to add the name of Mr. J. W. Harrington to our regular list of weekly readers.

Messrs. W. C. Sanders, M. E. Gwynn and City Marshal Abe Beakes were Sunday visitors to Houston.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Carliners returned Sunday afternoon from a brief visit to relatives in Columbus.

Mr. T. E. Bell of Rock Island was in the city Monday en route home from a business visit to Columbus.

A card from Miss Maude Beakes instructs us to forward her paper for the next few weeks to La Porte.

Mrs. John Nash and Miss Mollie Davidson are in La Porte, the guests of Mrs. O. E. Bryan, Houston Post.

Mr. J. B. Stewart came in Sunday afternoon from a month's business trip through Arizona and New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Reed and Miss Mary Beakes returned Tuesday afternoon from a visit to relatives in Weimar.

Mr. Henry Beckmann paid the HEADLIGHT office a friendly call last Friday afternoon and gave the paper a financial shove.

Mr. Isadore Nathan visited Van York at Wharton the first of the week. From Wharton the two went to Palacios where they spent a few days.

Mr. J. C. Keister, traveling freight agent for the Sap, came in last Monday afternoon from San Antonio for a few days' visit to his home town.

Mr. George Class was in town Monday morning with a load of watermelons and dropped into our office and left a fine, large one for the editor.

Mrs. J. A. Obenhaus of Bonus writes the HEADLIGHT this week, enclosing subscription amount, instructing us to keep the paper coming to her address.

Mr. L. F. Schultz was exhibiting one of the largest egg plants here last Saturday that we have ever seen. The plant was grown on Mr. Schultz's farm at Altair and weighed over four pounds.

Mr. Will Sledge has accepted a position as night watchman at the sugar mill. Tracey Beakes formerly held this position but resigned same and in company with August Saeger has gone to San Antonio for an indefinite visit.

In removing the machinery of the old Walker ice plant last Saturday morning to make room for the new steam laundry, one of the steam boiler pipes was broken and the old ammonia tank being still charged, an explosion followed in which one of Mr. Wm. Haines' valuable dogs was instantly killed and the pretty little pony of Mr. Oscar Saeger was so injured that it died that night. The horse was a very fine animal, decidedly the prettiest in town, and was valued highly by its owner.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Carliners returned Sunday afternoon from a brief visit to relatives in Columbus.

After the daily papers were received here Monday containing Judge Brooks' decision on the saloon license question, the saloons in Eagle Lake, which had all been closed since Thursday night at 12 o'clock in accordance with the law, opened up for business again.

Attorney W. M. Williamson left Tuesday night on the Day Crockett for a business visit to San Antonio. Mr. Williamson informed us that the scrapers were started last Monday morning and that the grading of streets for the new townsite being laid out just north of town was progressing nicely.

We direct the attention of our readers to the lumber advertisement of which company Bruce Mansfield of Columbus is local manager. Our readers needn't be afraid of getting hold of the wrong advertisement—it is the only lumber ad in this paper, and HEADLIGHT readers will profit by investigating this proposition when in the market for lumber.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Kessler gave a delightful dancing party at their home last Tuesday evening. Beautiful mandolin and guitar duets by the Messrs. Kessler, dancing and refreshments of elegant ice cream and cake were enjoyed by those present, who were: Mr. and Mrs. Hatch, Messrs. Cora Brown, Nellie Salling, Bessie Harris, Lizzie York, and Messrs. Innis Kessler, Sam Little, A. B. Storey and Bruce McCarty.

Four gypsy women came in Tuesday morning and spent the day here roaming the streets, leaving on the evening train. They were dressed in the brightest of colors and bedecked with loud and flashy jewelry and consequently attracted some attention wherever they went. It is said they were seeking a camping place, and that they have selected the lake as camping grounds for a large tribe soon to arrive.

Messrs. Manahan and Board have about gotten their machinery in shape and the Eagle Lake Steam Laundry will be ready for business Monday morning. Mr. H. P. Walker who has been connected with the Inada Laundry at Houston for a number of years, is in charge of the laundry work, which insures only first-class work. They will appreciate your patronage and guarantee to give you just as nice work as you can get in Houston or San Antonio.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mr. Eugene L. Schuback and Miss Oertrude Boon, which will take place at the home of the bride in Home, Illinois, on August 21st. Miss Boon is a most charming young lady and is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boon of that place. The family spend their winters in Texas and it was during one of these trips that Miss Boon met Mr. Schuback. Mr. Schuback was formerly a citizen of Eagle Lake and was very popular with all who knew him. The HEADLIGHT joins his hosts of friends here in extending congratulations and best wishes in advance.

The HEADLIGHT $1 a year.

Self Forgetfulness.
Self consciousness is one of the greatest stumbling blocks in the path to success. This is true of timidity or the forwardness of egotism. Either stands in the way of the man who would be something in the world.

The man who is constantly thinking of himself cannot get along as does the man who can forget himself and his troubles, or himself and his conceit, as the case may be. The man who never catches up with his ambition may be a wretched hypochondriac, failing in duty to himself because he cannot be lifted out of himself, failing in every task because he imagines he has not strength enough to do the work.

He may be the introspective mystic, worrying over his past mistakes until he wallows in a slough of discouragement. He may be, on the other hand, a man of brilliant parts, and knows that he has ability, and rest self-satisfied upon past attainments. Or, somewhere between, he may be the timid, shrinking man, afraid of his own powers, always suffering from embarrassment caused by self-depreciation, too conscious of his shortcomings. Self consciousness may be of varying degrees, but always is there a certain degree of failure for the man who is always thinking about himself.

The world has been led by men who have been fired by a purpose. That purpose must be apart from sheer personal desire or torise. The man of public affairs who is inspired by ambition alone is never more than a politician, where he who is dominated by an unselfish purpose is a statesman. The men who have succeeded most signally in the world's work have been they who have most completely forgotten themselves.

"Why do young men of obscure birth and poverty succeed so often and so greatly?" asks Sir Walter Besant, in "The Master Craftsman." "Because they do not understand the audacity of their own ambition." In other words, they forget themselves, forget their ambitions, forget their weakness until discouragement is unknown. The man who thinks too much of himself is lost.—Springfield Sun.

The Terrell Transcript gives a bit of good advice in the subjoined. "Don't debate what everyone you come in contact with should do. Don't have one standard that everyone must measure up to, throwing aside all who do not measure up to your individual requirement. Don't have one individual code of ethics that everyone must conform to, thinking that unless they do there can be no good in them whatever. In a certain sense each individual must be a law unto himself, and there are certain things that each individual must decide for himself, and the man who tries to have everyone conform to a certain standard of his own will certainly, sooner or later, meet with bitterest of disappointments, and be of all men most miserable."

The Necessity of Work.
A young Greek came to the King of Lydia and said to him: "I am in possession of a secret by which your people shall have their food free."

The King replied: "Tell me your promise and you shall marry my daughter." The court rejoiced. Only the wise Solon shook his head in doubt.

The young and ardent reformer, filled with a great building with the wheat he had manufactured by his secret. The people left their work and came to look. He gave them bread, saying to them: "The people shall have their food free."

The butchers and bakers and builders and all the workmen thereupon stopped work, saying to each other: "Why should we toil day after day for small wages? We can get our bread free." They crowned the young reformer with a laurel wreath and he married the King's daughter. Only the wise Solon still shook his head and murmured in his beard: "Wait and see what happens when there is no longer need to work."

The sick died in the hospitals because the physicians said: "Why should we work? Our bread is free." The dead lay in the streets because the grave-diggers said: "Why should we work? Our food is free."

The rumors spread that the store of food would not last, and in the struggle to obtain it the strong trampled the weak, and the policemen and judges said to each other: "Why should we work? Our food is free."

The streets were a desert, and the purpose is a statesman. The men who have succeeded most signally in the world's work have been they who have most completely forgotten themselves.

"Why do young men of obscure birth and poverty succeed so often and so greatly?" asks Sir Walter Besant, in "The Master Craftsman." "Because they do not understand the audacity of their own ambition." In other words, they forget themselves, forget their ambitions, forget their weakness until discouragement is unknown.
