Mrs. Sam Houston's Grave.
Mrs. Houston, the wife of our greatest Texan, still lies in an unmarked grave near the old Baptist church at Independence, Texas.

The lot upon which she sleeps once belonged to Mrs. Houston's mother, Mrs. Leo. Negroes now live in the old house and the laughter of pickaninnies is all that breaks the solitude of this little family "grave yard," which contains only Mrs. Houston, her mother and an old colored servant.

The lot on which they are sleeping is fenced with barbed wire and cedar posts and is about the size of an ordinary country garden. This inclosure is a perfect jungle of trees, bushes, briars, cane, weeds and thorns.

"Texans, believe me, and I would to God no stranger could read these lines. Mrs. Houston's grave is perfectly matted with the jungle and can only be found by parting the bushes to where a little sand stone, unchiseled, not bearing even a name, projects slightly from the earth. This is all that marks our "mother's grave."

I pushed into this thicket at sunset and stood alone over this grave. My eyes filled with tears as I recalled the hardships, the privations and the struggle of her husband of whose glory she deserves at least a part. My heart said to me: "Proud Texans, boast no more of blundering, in broadest fields, of richest soil, of gushing wells, of growing cities and of fabulous wealth, while your most deserving benefactors lie in unmarked and unprotected graves."

There is not a convict or a pauper in the Lone Star State whose grave is more neglected than the one of which I am writing.

I have cut from this grave a small tree. Its roots must have fed from the dust of the heart that loved our chieftain most, for it was growing almost directly over that heart.

From the foot of this shrub I am carving a grave and a handle from its branches. I wish to present this grave to our next legislature with the hope and prayer that Texans may soon pay their debt of gratitude.—Oscar B. Bryan, in Houston's Post.

Pecan buyers are pleased at the outlook for a large pecan crop this year and are prepared to take everything offered at the highest market prices. Some previous pecan crops have required almost as much money to move as the cotton crop and in favorable seasons they have been the source of a large revenue to the farmers having trees.

Birds are said to be more plentiful now than usual, and when the season for shooting opens there will be good sport. The open season on doves is now November 1, however, having been made the same as on quail, for the reason that many men who went out after doves would shoot quail also before the open season on the latter. The increase in birds this season is said to be due to dry weather about nesting time.

Typhoid fever is nearly always caused by impurities in unfiltered water.

A merchant in a neighboring town states that his advertising last year cost him 54 cents for every hundred dollars worth of goods sold. He used a half-page for his business advertisement each week and says that as long as people read newspapers he will advertise. There's a man possessed of a good head. Just as soon as business begins to look upon advertising as a branch of the business which requires as much care as any part of it, then will advertising pay. Hop- esty, force, originality and persistency in advertising make it a paying investment.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Restorative is sold by Eagle Lake Drug Co.
