Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." In the good old times children drank out of gourds and old milk en buckets, and they grew strong and developed into statesmen. But it is different now. The young idea must have individual cups, and must get the water from a bucket that has been subjected to a daily treatment of formaldehyde or some other disinfectant. NUMBER 23.

TEXAS RESOURCES.

The vast and varied resources of the Lone Star State were presented in an interesting manner by Indiana Agent H. P. Atwater of the Sunset Lines in an address recently delivered before the South Texas Truck-Growers' Association.

When oil first gushed from Spindletop, said Mr. Atwater, and for thirty days was running off in streams and wasting, the railroads ran excursions for our people to go there and see it waste. While we were watching it northern men rushed in, grasped the opportunity and coined money out of it. Right here in parts of western Texas you will find men burning $500 worth of valuable cedar wood in order to get $5 worth of charcoal. They simply overlook opportunities.

Go into our bottoms and you will find millions of small pecan trees of an inferior nut bearing quality, on to which the superior paper shell variety can be grafted and made to bear and bring into the state millions of dollars.

See this fine Japan chestnut, which came from an orchard which I was surprised to find growing and flourishing near Tyler. See what fine peanuts. Fine goober butter and oil can be made out of them. They are also excellent for stock feed, and you can raise them for milk cows and fattening hogs and make money out of them in that way. They grow luxuriantly, are most prolific on our poor soils. There is money in them if you will get it out.

Here is a piece of Texas Angora's hide. A goat can be t with as little expense as a hen, and its flesh is excellent food, and its hide makes a rug, muffs and other things for the ladies, and the long hair is valuable for many purposes.

Here are fibers from the catkins, okra and cotton stalks. The cotton stalks which you used chip down and burn up are rapidly becoming the most valuable part of our crop. Here is a skin of soft and beautiful silk, as rich and yellow as cream. Mrs. Atwater raised a cocoons here in your own state and they were sent to Japan, where they were spun into its skin of silk. Think what possibilities you have in the way of silk culture. Here the mulberry trees grow luxuriantly and you can grow rich raising cocoons on the leaves, and poultry and pigs on the berries.

Here is a sample of tobacco worth $7 per pound. It was raised in east Texas, where it seems to find its natural elements in soil, climate, etc.

This beautiful piece of matting made in Japan, is from wire grass gathered in Calhoun, Matagorda and Jackson counties, where it grows in wild profusion. Fine rope can be made out of your old rice straw, and good paper out of the refused sugar cane, cotton seed hulls and the chips and sawdust from the lumber mills.

See what vast undeveloped resources are going to waste, while you and railroads are quarreling over a little ice on radishes.

See this fine wood made from mesquite timber, which is valued for mantels and decorative works in our elegant buildings. In west and southwest Texas you have millions of dollars worth of unutilized mesquite timber. And then here is a spoon made from Texas timber. You have vast forests of gum and other trees that can be converted into spoons and baskets and crates into which to transfer garden and orchard products to market.

I now show you a beautiful mussel shell taken from the Guadalupe river, which is valuable for making buttons and for other purposes. Then here are specimens of Texas marble and granite, and also clay and kaolin, valuable for making plates and dishes, etc. In addition to all these shown you, here are samples of Texas raised tea, tobacco, peppers, sage, thyme and packing onions. All these are valuable and could be made a source of wealth.

Think, then, of the honey going to waste because you do not keep bees to gather it for you. Here is a sample of marmalade made from raised oranges, as fine and delicious as any article that ever came from a foreign market.

Why should Texas not be making, exporting and growing rich on all the undeveloped resources which I have enumerated? You cannot build a kingdom on cabbage. You should study your opportunities and utilize them. We always have a quantum sufficient of pragmatist, lawyers, doctors, politicians, real estate men, promoters and others, telling everybody what to do without doing anything themselves. What the country needs is practical men who will take the lead and show us what to do.

connected with a large mining and smelting concern at that place and has been in the west since 1890. Mr. Huddleston is master mechanic at the smelter and is drawing a good salary. He writes that he has an interesting family consisting of a wife and three children. An extract from his letter is as follows: "Bruce, if any Eagle Laker are tubercular sufferers, tell them for their own sake to come to Silver City and live in a tent for a few months and get well, for they can surely do this if they are not too far gone to stand the journey."

The cane crop from Dr. Gordon's place to Eldridge and including the Herbert plantation is about what can be termed a half or three fourth crop. In places or spots of the above mentioned crop it is extra fine. The plantations mentioned include a possible acreage of 2000 or 2500 acres. The cane of Mr. John Matthews lies east of these plantations and contains about 400 acres. This crop is said to be fine and it is doubtful if Texas at this time can produce a better yield.
