Cigarette Caused Blaze.
Crowley, La., Nov. 6.—R. Vreeland, a New Orleans rice man, employed by E. Goldsmith, had a narrow escape from being burned to death at the Commercial hotel. He went to bed about midnight and smoked a cigarette in bed, falling asleep with the cigarette in his mouth. About 1 o'clock he awoke to find his bed on fire and the curtains in flames.
He gave the alarm and the fire was extinguished with some difficulty. Vreeland was not seriously burned.—Houston Chronicle.

Editor Omitted Objectional Matter.

The story is told of an editor who announced that he would leave all objectional matter out of the paper the following week.
An invitation was extended for his subscribers to come in and make suggestions about what they considered objectional features. The first fellow to come in was a good deacon. He objected to the paper printing saloon ads. The next fellow who came in was a minister. He objected to church notices. A merchant objected to the paper accepting ads from his competitor. One person objected to sporting news.

Another objected to society news.
Press day arrived and after they had made other objections had been carefully noted by the editor he gave orders to the foreman to go to press. The paper was issued that week in blank form, and the editor was congratulating himself that at last he had succeeded in publishing a paper with all of the objection-al features eliminated; but alas, there was another objector. The postmaster refused to admit it to the mails as second class matter because it was not a newspaper.—Ex.

The fellow who doesn't learn to be a good loser, not only lacks that touch of being a well-rounded man, but he is apt to grow into a very dangerous man.
Down in Louisiana a few days ago a man who had lost out in a lottery, followed his successful rival and bride into the train and shot the former dead. Had he been a good loser, he would have congratulated the bride and groom, sent them a nice present, and perhaps found a prettier girl later on; but being a fellow who hadn't trained himself to meet disappointment with a smile, he must spend his days in the penitentiary or a madhouse. One of the first lessons for a fellow to learn is that everything and everybody are not going to bend to his desires and whims. If he learns it well the chances are that he will become a good citizen. If he does not he will go through life unhappy and the world will breathe a sigh of relief when he is finally called hence.—Honey Grove Signal.

Better Part of Valor.
Two Irishmen were on bad terms with each other, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The friends of one claimed that he had been insulted and urged him to vindicate his honor.
But he prudently objected.
"Look at the size of him. The man's a giant."
"Very well," responded his disgusted friends, "then all the people will say you are a coward."
"Well, I dunno," he replied placidly. "At any rate, I'd rather have him say 'that thap day a fatter tomorrow exclaimin,' 'How natural Flaherty looks!'"

A True Partisan.
During the Bryan-McKinley campaign, little Alice heard many political discussions among the folks at home. On a Sunday morning, just previous to the election, the teacher of the infant class, of which Alice was a member, told the children a story illustrating the lesson, dwelling upon the fact that at all times they must be for Jesus, and asked them to promise to do so.
They all did so except Alice, who replied, "I can't be for Jesus; my papa is for Bryan and I'm for Bryan too."

Every town in Texas, that is worth being called a town, is hustling to improve itself in every way it possibly can. The greatest effort now seems to be toward civic improvement. The people are beginning to realize as they never have before, that they are going to live but once in this world and that the world should be made as attractive as possible. Amarillo has placed an order for 5000 black locust trees and 5000 catalpa trees to be planted in an addition to the town. This is just to show with what energy other towns are acting to beautify themselves as a suggestion of what ought to be done in Brownwood.—Bulletin.

A Question of Repentance.

Distressed at his son's refusal to enter the ministry and his preference for dealing in horses, a wealthy farmer was telling his sorrow to a neighbor, says the Philadelphia Press.
"Oh," said the latter, "don't take it to heart. I believe Tom will lead more men to repentance as a horse dealer than ever he would as a minister."

COLD AND CROUP IN CHILDREN
"My little girl is subject to colds," says Mrs. Wm. H. Seale, No. 41 Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup. This remedy is for sale by all druggists."
