FOR A GREATER EAGLE LAKE

There are many things now at work making for a bigger and better Eagle Lake, and if we continue to boost and pull together we are going to see a mighty different sort of town here in the very near future. Our new growth has had a fine foundation in the splendid commercial reputation and solidity of the town, and for that reason it has not been so hard for us to build up and advance as some other places might have encountered. Eagle Lake has had a great many setbacks—the storm, crop failures, low price of rice, etc.—but in the face of it all the old town has continued to grow and improve. With Eagle Lake the one serious obstacle has been over confidence of her leading people. They are now occupying the same old idea that we can and should do better things. What has been the result? The new school building, the best in our county; the handsome new postoffice building in the county; better homes; better and cleaner streets; more and better sidewalks; fine concrete drainage ditches and a hundred or more other improvements over the Eagle Lake of a few years ago. And right now our city has before it the brightest future it has ever had. Crop prospects were never so promising. With good crops this fall Eagle Lake will see more building than it has ever seen in any one year in its history. It is safe to say, too, that our citizens are waking up to the fact that Eagle Lake needs a system of sewerage, and we'll have it too. The orange industry is going to be a great resource of this section, and too Messrs. Engelhard Bros. have proved that this section can place truck on the market in advance of any other part of Texas, and Eagle Lake is destined to be a great trucking center. Truly we have a great country with many advantages and natural resources, and with a little putting together of our citizens Eagle Lake is going to become the biggest, busiest and best town in Southwest Texas. Let's all pull together for a GREATER Eagle Lake.

The people of Eagle Lake were denied the privilege of casting their votes upon the most over-rated man in the United States last Sunday, Col. Roosevelt having changed his plans, going from Houston to San Antonio via the M. K. & T. railroad.

A Musical Treat.

Undoubtedly one of the greatest musical treats that ever has been accorded Taylor was enjoyed by those who attended the concert at the New Theatre Tuesday evening when Bohumir Kryl the great concert virtuoso, and his daughter, Josephine Kryl, the violinist, assisted by Miss Marie Edwards, pianist, and Jaroslav Cimerka, trombone soloist, were the entertainers. As usual with attractions of this kind, however, only a small but appreciative audience enjoyed the program. Bohumir Kryl is a wonderful cornetist. His solos are the most beautiful productions on the cornet it has ever been heard. His technique is perfect. And the genius of the father seems to have been more than equalled by the daughter in her mastery of the violin. The young girl, only thirteen years old, discloses a mastery of the violin rarely seen in the greatest of the violin's disciples. Her touch is wonderful, and the technical perfection and harmonious sweetness of that greatest of musical instruments through the medium of her small hands promises a future and unlimited greatness, for with the almost inspired genius so perfect in a girl of thirteen years, what will the artist be when a grown woman? Miss Edwards, the pianist, who played the accompaniments as well as solos, is also a finished artist, and held the close and appreciative attention of her auditors. Mr. Cimerka is also a capable musician. The entire program was
