There is some splendid material [illegible] first class base ball team can be gotten together here this season. A good, fast ball team is a good advertisement for the town, and if a team is gotten up and properly managed we believe the citizens of the town will contribute liberally to its support. But here is where the trouble comes in—will it be properly managed? In order to gain the confidence of the citizens and business men, some one must be appointed to manage the team who is a business man and a dependable citizen, and unless such is the case, it is useless to start a subscription list around, for the books of some who had business with some of the former base ball teams in Eagle Lake still show plainly that the teams were very poorly managed. All the neighboring towns have ball teams this year, but it yet remains to be seen whether Eagle Lake will have one or not.
