1910 VALUE PER HEAD $19.80.

Texas steer is a close student of the markets and has shown more keen instinct than any other animal. From a reckless pioneer of the range he has forged his way to the very of the world's markets and has become a factor in the world's trade.

1910 VALUE PER HEAD $80.25.

The horse has contributed more toward the progress of the country than any other animal and our philanthropists as dividers, must all take off their hats to this dumb brute. During the past quarter of a century he has given away more than half his occupations to the cause of science and scientific discoveries and inventors are now operating in his remaining territory. He has more than held his own in value and he is today the unit of power by which all his competitors must measure their strength. He must not only compete with the inventive genius of man, but the mule—his progeny—has wrested from him some of his most valuable occupations. No animal ever met with such strenuous and untiring competition and while press agents have been predicting his elimination he has become a prime factor in the high cost of living. He came out of the war with credit and his value has increased in value until today he is worth $80.

He has carried the pack of the pioneer, pulled the stagecoach to early days, herded the cattle on the plains and while bringing forward the civilization of the country has lifted himself from a broncho to a thoroughbred. He pulls for Texas stronger than any other animal. According to the census reports of the Federal department of agriculture, given Jan. 1, 1910, we had 1,250,000 head of horses, and the latest estimate given a value per head was $10, making a total value of $12,500,000. For his increase of value this is an increase of 10,000 in number and $8,000,000 in value during the past decade. The soil and climate of Texas is particularly adapted to horse raising and no country on the globe can equal us in economy and quality of production.

1910 VALUE PER HEAD $108.

During the past ten years the Texas mule has attracted the attention of Uncle Sam by showing the greatest increase in value per head of any animal in the Union, having an average of $108 per head or $108 per head.

1910 VALUE PER HEAD $108.

The mule raising industry is one of the most important and profitable in the world. It is undoubtedly the greatest country on the globe for mule raising.

prejudices of an illegitimate lineage and has successfully fought his way into the highways of industry with his parents as competitors, until today he drives the nation's commerce. He is a self-made animal, for by year he has patiently studied new occupations and adapted himself to changed conditions until he is the master of these industrial pursuits than any other animal and he is by far the Commercial King of Beasts. He has arisen from obscure origins to the position of domestic animal; he is worth $25 per head more than the horse, six times more than the Texas steer and fourteen times more than the hog.

It is the most youthful of staple products, having had less than a century of commercial recognition, but it has rapidly acquired power until today it is the King of Products. The fleecy staple is as good as legal tender on any market and based on factory values is the richest of all industries. For the past century it has engaged the brightest intellects of the world in science and commerce and many of its problems are only now being solved.

Cotton is limited in its area of production to Texas and a few other Southern states but its consumption is worldwide and it is one of the leading necessities of life which insures forever a profitable return to the producer. It has been maligned by its enemies and its value has been depressed over its fibre; merchant princes have studied its markets and the ablest financiers have sought to fix its value.
