The Good Roads Club is Doing Much Good on Roads Leading Into Eagle Lake and Surrounding Towns.

A year ago some fifteen of those interested in the improvement of the roads in this vicinity organized The Good Roads Club, the purpose being "to aid and encourage the building and maintaining of goods roads in Colorado county."

During the last few months about thirty citizens have contributed the sum of one dollar each for the purpose of dragging the roads as far out as Chesterville, Lissie, Matthews, and Ramsey, teams being hired for this purpose after each rain, and a marked improvemet has been noticed and commented on.

The club has had nine split log drags of the King type built and they are loaned free to anyone who will agree to use them.

Messrs. Walter Adams, Ad. Adams, Frank Huff and few other progressive rice planters have taken charge of about ten miles of road and are keeping this section in fine condition. After each rain they make a round beginning at Mr. Adams home, running to the Chesterville road, covering a distance of ten miles in less than three hours.

It is hoped that parties living at Chesterville and Lissie will arrange to continue this work to each town, thus allowing the money donated by the club to be devoted to building more drags. Any party who will agree to pull these drags after rains can get one by applying to T. L. Smith, [illegible] of the good Roads Club.

Mrs. C. W. D. Ferrell and popular daughter, Miss Lola, of Lissie, were visitors in the city Tuesday.

Mr. John Baxter of Rock Island was here Monday en route to Markham, where he expects to make his home. Mr. Baxter is deeply interested in a well that is being put down in the Markham oil fields, and stated that he expected to soon "strike it rich," or "strike it poor."

Rev. R. M. Bailey of Francitas preached at the Christian church Sunday morning and night. Rev. Mr. Baily, who is recently from California, is a fine preacher. It is very likely that the Eagle Lake church will call him for half of his time.

Miss Clara Causey, the popular daughter of Rev. Geo Causey of Lissie, was among the visitors in the city Monday.

Contractor Vanderslice is rushing work on the Santa Fe's new depot. The new station will be completed in about one month, and will be a beauty. The new station will be a credit to Eagle Lake and the other two railroads might well profit by the Santa Fe's example.

Mr. James Newsom instructs us to change the address of his HEADLIGHT to San Antonio, as, he says, it gives them all of the Eagle Lake news.

A man was being tried for stealing a ham. As he had no counsel to defend him, the judge called upon one of the barristers present to undertake his defense, and gave permission to retire with the prisoner for consultation into an adjoining room. In about three-quarters of an hour the lawyer came back into court without his client. "Where is the prisoner?" inqured the judge. With the greatest composure the barrister replied: "He is off. Your lordship desired me to give him the best advice under the circumstances, and, as he candidly owned his guilt, I could give him no better advice than to take himself away with all possible speed, which he was only too glad to do."

They were discussing a certain authoress at dinner, when a well known critic raised a laugh by remarking: "Well, her hair's red, even if her books are not."

The mild young men in the corner made a mental note of the sally for future use, and at another dinner party shortly afterward he carefully guided the conversation into literary channels. Fortunately, some one mentioned the desired name, and he triumphantly called out, "[illegible] hair, even if her books haven't."—Ex.

A coroner's jury in Georgia delivered the following original verdict on the sudden death of a merchant who had failed in business: "We, the jury, find from the doctor's statement that the deceased came to his death from heart failure, superinduced by business failure, which was caused by failure to advertise. [illegible] result of failure to see far enough ahead."

NEED OF MECHANICAL POWER

Increase in Resistance With Speed More Marked in Water Than in Air.

Some mechanical operations require a surprisingly large amount of power, while others are performed with much less than the novice might expect; the secret is usually found in the speed at which the machine runs. The automobile, rated at from 15 to 60 horsepower, will serve as an example. It is heavier than an ordinary carriage and consequently is harder to pull, even on level ground; on an up-grade, where the weight of the machine is being raised the height of the hill, the difference is much more marked, for no refinement of bearings can reduce the pull due to gravity. The vehicle drawn [illegible] ten miles per hour; if that speed were increased to 20 miles, a moderate automobile speed, the power required to draw it would be doubled, even though the actual pull remained the same; as a matter of fact the pull would have to be greatly increased, perhaps doubled, in which case four times the original power would be required. The resistance of the air is trifling at ten mile per hour, at 20 it becomes serious, and when the speed is increased to 40 miles or more a great deal of power is required to overcome it; an idea of [illegible] tained from that felt on the body when exposed to a gale of wind whose velocity rarely exceeds 40 miles per hour. The increase of resistance with speed is much more marked in water than in air, as illustrated by the torpedo boat and freighter.—Cassier's Magazine.

CORNERS AND THEIR USES

Hardest Things to Corner Are Wheat, Guinea Pigs and Woman in Argument.

Corners are places to get people into. If the person cornered is a pretty girl, most men are equal to the occasion, instinctively, without advice. Similarly, if the object cornered be a necessity of life, squeeze the public. It pays. There may be a congressional inquiry, but in the end it will come to naught, and then the squeezing may continue without further interference from the chaperon.

The hardest things to keep cornered are wheat, guinea pigs and a woman in an argument. The first of these will overwhelm you by its mass, the second will dodge you, while the third will get out of the predicament by any one of a dozen ways, generally by making you think you're the cleverest, most irresistible dog in the world.

Corners are also points of 'vantage on the street at which idle, and ofttimes vicious, young men congregate to discuss the respective merits of Johnson and Jeffries. These same corners are frequently owned by other idle and vicious young men resident in Paris or Berlin for the purpose of discussing the respective merits of Jeannette and Gretchen. The ownership of this kind of corner is especially desirable during the present period of high prices.

The Frog That Would a-Flying Go.

Since flying fish and flying squirrels exist, it is not so surprising to be told that there are also in the world flying frogs. All these animals have instinctively made use of the aeroplane, the perfecting of which is beginning to impart the power of flight to man himself. It is in Java that the flying frog—Polypedates reinwardtii—is found, and Prof. Siedlecki of the University of Cracow describes it as being of a magnificent clear green color, with white belly, while membranes between its fingers, which enable it to glide on the air, are of yellow. But it changes color like the chameleon. It inhabits trees and bushes, and is active only at night, living on insects. When disturbed it distends its aeroplanes and launches itself a considerable distance through the air.—Youth's Companion.

The Fishhawk's Warning.

"The fishhawk tells us when the shad begin to run up the river," said a Gloucester fisherman. "We have learn[illegible] no matter how mild the weather may be, until Mr. Fishhawk swoops down on us.

"When he comes sailing up the bay we know it's time to get to work. Lots of farmers down Jersey would never think to start planting until the fishhawks come. I don't believe they have ever been later than April 12, though. They work their way up the coast from Florida and the other southern waters early in March, when the fish begin to come north. They follow the big schools of herring, as a rule, because the herring swim close [illegible] and the hawk [illegible] ing. The shad follow the herring, and when the fishhawk comes we know the shad are not far behind."—Fishing Gazette.

AMERICA TO GET CLOISTER

Beautiful Structure of the Cordeliers at Charlieu Is to Be Lost by France.

To many travelers the most beautiful things seen in Europe are the cloisters of churches and monasteries, perhaps for the very reason that the cloister is so opposed to the spirit of modern America. No one who has seen them can forget the beauties of Monreale or San Paola fuore le Mure.

If rumor is true, one of the most beautiful cloisters in France is coming to America; the name of the millionaire in question is still a secret, but the French papers are sure it must be an American. Who else could have at the same time the money and the willingness to spend it on mere artis[illegible]

At Charlieu, in the region of the Loire, stands—or stood—the cloister of the Cordeliers, a superb specimen of gothic art as elaborated in the fantasies of the 14th and 15th centuries. Every column is ornate, everp capital bears ornamentation in the form of grotesque heads; garlands trail over the arches, with vines, palms and acanthus; hardly an inch of stone but bears some decoration.

Already most of this architectural gem has been taken down, each piece carefully numbered in preparation for [illegible] made the text of sermons in [illegible] French press, and the demand is made that France immediately pass laws to prevent the sale or destruction of buildings whose historical associations of architectural merit make them to a certain extent the property of the nation.

CHANCE VISIT WON A CASE

Lawyer Recognized an Ex-Convict in One Witness and Records of Others Were Exposed.

The chance visit of a lawyer to a courtroom resulted in serious embarrassment to the defense of the Central Park, North & East River Railway Company in a damage suit in the New York supreme court recently. Ralph Gillette, the lawyer, recognized in a witness for the defense, Thomas Seamon, a former client, who was an ex-convict. He listened to Seamon's story and became convinced he was lying.

Gillette stepped to the counsel table and informed the attorney for Louie Frisch, the plaintiff. Seamon was questioned about his criminal record.

"You were convicted of burglary, weren't you?" he was asked. When Seamon recognized Gillette, he stammered an affirmative answer.

Frisch's lawyers went up to police headquarters when court adjourned and looked up the records of three other star witnesses for the railway company, a horse car line.

He found that two of the others were ex-convicts. All four had testified they were members of the Amazon club and were out posting bills for their annual ball when they saw Frisch injured by a bale of hay belonging to the railway, but declared Frisch was stealing a ride when injured."

The jury gave Frisch a verdict of $2,300.—New York Times.

A Saving Clause.

Justice McKenna and Justice Lurton of the supreme court of the United States were riding home from the capitol when Senator McCumber of North Dakota joined them. They gave him a place in the car between them, and the conversation turned to the tariff. Senator McCumber believes that the tariff should be revised upon the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. With a fair profit added.

"Senator," said Justice McKenna, seriously, "I have been spending the summer in the country. What is the cost of production of an egg?"

Senator McCumber is a standpat statesman, especially on farm products. He thought a moment.

"That, Mr. Justice," he answered, gravely, "depends, I should say, upon the wear and tear on the hen."

Gander in Place of Dog.

Ganders may take the place of dogs [illegible] if others can be found as wise and helpful as the gander owned by Harry Wells of Gill. It takes its place on the wagon seat with its owner whenever he goes to town and remains there until home again.

At home it keeps guard over everything, and keeps chickens out of the garden. It follows Wells over the fields when he works and is so jealous over him that it will not allow a dog to get near.—Greeley correspondence, Denver Republican.

FOR SALE—A nice, 4 room cottage, close in, good resident portion, two 50 foot lots, all enclosed, barns, etc., terms reasonable. W. S. STRICKLAND.

A very interesting and enjoyable meeting of the Episcopal Guild was held on Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. W. Rayner. The year's reports were read by the treasuer, Mrs. W. E. Lenhart, the total amount made by the Guild was $105.74, and by the Woman's Auxiliary $74.88, which was sent in for missions. By a unanimous vote the Guild decided to tender to Miss Nora Barrow a summer course at the Huntsville Normal. An entertainment will be given, the proceeds to go towards the expenses. After the business a delightful salad course was served.

Newly Elected School Board Installed.

The newly elected members of the school Board, qualified last Tuesday and were installed at a meeting held [illegible] O. McCarty president and Mr. Wm. T. Chester as secretary.

No applications were passed on for positions for the coming year, though several had been presented. It was thought best to formulate plans, with the view of putting the school under better conditions and electing teachers at a later date.

It was decided that all teachers to hold a position in the school, must hold a first grade certificate and that the certificate must be filed with the secretary of the board, and further that applications will be considered for position only, the principal or the board alloting classes or studies, as deemed best. In filing application it is desired that applicant state preference, so that if possible the teachers could be given the subjects in which they are most interested. It is the intention of filling the positions as early as possible and there will be no doubt a number of meetings held at an early date, all with the view of giving Eagle Lake the very best that the finances and the strong efforts of the board can give.

Messrs. A. H. Laughridge and Henry Taylor, prominent citizens of Garwood, were in the city Tuesday.

Miss Ruth Wilkerson called at our office Tuesday to renew the subscription of Mrs. Chris. Cook of Chesterville, for which both have our thanks.
