Cut Texas Up? Never!!

The proposal of some of the anti-prohibition leaders in the legislature with reference to cutting up and making two or three states out of Grand Old Texas has caused a howl from every corner of the state. In every city, town and village on the highways and byways, men, women and children, some boiling with rage and anger, are "cussing and discussing" the subject. Men who have been held down in politics, graft and bossism because they could not "put the tool" over the great mass of people of this great, grand and glorious state are laboring tooth and nail for the cutting up of this great state that they might have better opportunities to worm their way into the confidences of the people of the several smaller states thereby created. These anti- and pros would be in their glory if the state were to be "cut up."

On the same subject, the anti-fought and bled and whose ancestors fought Indians, Spaniards, Mexicans, Yankees, and who have been and always will be ready to fight and die for Texas—not two or three states—boil over with rage when the question of cutting up Texas arises and justly they might rebel against this outrage. They will even fight against it if it comes to a show down.

Real citizens and sons of Texas will stand for either a pro, or an anti for governor, will stand for the state being wet or dry, will even stand for Joe Bailey for U. S. Senator, but cut grand old Texas up into two or three states?
No! Nit!! Never!!!—Yorktown
News.

It is a fortunate thing for lawyers that whenever a man is created who has a peculiar faculty for legal requirements and controversy that at the same time enough fools spring into existence to give him a good living.
It is illustrated in that story of a man who studied for the ministry, and occupied the pulpit for a number of years without success and then studied law, and entering upon its practice made a fortune at it. He declared he had found men more willing to pay for having their own way than to be guaranteed their souls or keep their bodies whole.
My ideal of a great lawyer is that great English attorney who accumulated a fortune of £1,000, 000 and left it all in a will to make a home for idiots, declaring that he wanted to give it back to the people from whom he took it.—Bob Ingersol.

David Bispham was undergoing the ministrations of the ship's barber.

"We shall have the pleasure of leaving you at the concert tonight."

"No," explained the famous singer, "I've had a long exhausting season in America and within a few days I am to open in London. I have decided not to do anything on this voyage."

"It's the same way with me," said the barber, understandingly.
When I'm ashore I never looks at a razor.—Success Magazine.

"Please wrap up my purchases," said the grouchy customer.
"Why, I've done so," replied the grocer.

"Excuse me, but you haven't," replied the grouchy customer.

"What have I left undone?"
"That thumb of yours that you weighed with the butter, also the one you weighed with the meat.
Wrap them up. I want them for dog meat."

"Robert, dear," said the coy little maiden to her sweetheart, "I'm sure you love me. But give me some proof of it, darling. We can't marry on $15 a week, you know."

"Well, what do you want me to do?" said he with a pained air.

"Why, save up $1,000 and have it safe in the bank, and then I'll marry you."

About two months later she cuddled up closed to him on the sofa one evening and said:

"Robert, dear, have you saved up that thousand yet?"

"Why, no, my love," he replied; "not all of it."

"How much have you saved, darling?"

"Just $2.35, dear."

"Oh, well," said the sweet young thing as she snuggled a little closer, "let's don't wait any longer, darling. I guess that'll do.—Lippincott's Magazine.

An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W.
Hendrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup, and Druggists.

"How do you like this weather?"

"Not much; I'm feared it's goin' to rain."

"Well, how's times with you?"

"Sorter so-so;—but they won't last."

"Folks all well?"

"Yes; but the measles is in the neighborhood."

"Well, you order be thankful you're a livin'."

"Yes; but we've all got to die!"

Good for Biliousness.

"I took two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets last night, and I feel fifty per cent better than I have for weeks, says J. J. Firestone of Allegan, Mich. "They are certainly a fine article for biliousness." For sale by all Druggists. Samples free.

A republican speaker in his talk to an audience one afternoon said he could pick out any man before him and tell what party he supported. He then pointed out an elderly man to the left of the room and said: "You are a republican."

"Yes, sir," said the man.

He then pointed to a man on the right of the hall and said he was also a republican.

The man rose in his seat and said he was. The speaker next pointed to a sickly looking gentleman at the rear of the hall and said:

"You, sir, are a republican."

"No sir, I'm not. I've had the grip for nearly two weeks and that's the reason I look so sour."

"Everything Good To Eat"

A little boy did a naughty thing the other day. He got a batchet and chopped off the tail of the family cat, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. His mother punished him severely for the barbarous act and then tried conscientiously to make him comprehend its enormity.

"Bernard," she said, "what is the golden rule?"

"Do unto others what you would have others do unto you," he quoted glibly.

"And did you follow the golden rule when you tortured that poor cat?"

"I sure did, mamma. If I had a tail wouldn't I want somebody to cut it off?"

Sometimes men do things out of selfishness rather than out of kindness. Recently a club woman told this story:

"An old couple came in from the country with a big basket of lunch to see the circus. The lunch was heavy. The old wife was carrying it. As they crossed a crowded street the husband held out his hand and said:

"Gimme that basket, Hannah."

"The poor old woman surrendered the basket with a grateful look."

"That's real kind o' ye, Joshus," she quavered.

"Kind?" grunted the old man.
"Gosh, I wuz afeared ye'd git lost!"

"I, sir," remarked the indignant citizen, "am a tax-payer."

"Well," replied the political boss, "you have me to thank.
You wouldn't be nearly as much of a tax-payer as you are excepting for my efforts."

A man may use a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button, ride in the back coach of a train to save interest on his money till the conductor gets around, stop his watch at night to save wear and tear, pasture the family cow on his mother's grave to save corn and hay, but a man of this sort is a gentleman as compared with the fellow who refuses to come across on his newspaper subscription account.
