Orville Wright, the veteran flyer, said the other day in Dayton:

"Our aim is to make flying safe. The important thing is not how to produce aeroplanes that will go 150 miles an hour, but to produce aeroplanes that won't fall down."

Mr. Wright smiled.

"I'm reminded of flying story," he went on, "a story about a man who called at a biplane selling agency and said:

"My older brother bought a biplane here last month. You told him if anything broke you'd supply the missing parts."

"Yes, well," said the manager.

"Well," said the caller, "my brother wants you to supply him, right away, with six new ribs, a left leg, half a dozen assorted fingers and medium-sized Roman nose."—Minneapolis Journal.

THE FRANK STEPHENS COMPANY

Our Business is One of the Oldest and Best in the County and Still Growing
We shall place our order in a few days for the last car of binders and mowers that we expect to order out this year.

Don't fail to get a binder or mower in this car if you are in need of one.

Did You See that Dowden Potato Digger

Flap its wings and crow as its competitors passed by on their way to the junk pile? Well, anyhow, the Dowden laughed last. We still recommend Naptha, the old standby, for a pumping engine. If you have trouble with your gasoline try a barrel or two of Solar oil. ::

We have the goods—we have the capital—we have men who have been in the business the greater part of their lives and understand your needs and who are pleased to serve you at any and all times.

The Frank Stephens Company.
