Worth It.

Many months had passed since first he met the sweet, sweet girl. He loved her dearly, but he was wofully shy, and his suit had made but slow progress.

Finally, it was the girl who decided to improve the shining hour and add a trifle to the pace of the proceedings. To make up her mind was to act, and the very next time the young man called she pointed to the rose that adorned his buttonhole.

"I'll give $5 a kiss for that rose," she blurted out.

A crimson, guilty flush overspread the young man's face, like the light of the setting sun. There was, however, no hesitation on his part, and he clinched the bargain. Then he grabbed his cap and proceeded to rush from the room in double quick time.

"And where are you going?" she asked in great surprise.

"Oh," he answered tremulously, "I'm just off to the florist's to buy up his stock of roses."—London Answers.

Business is Business.

An exchange gives it as its opinion that the fellow who gets hot because he receives a statement of his newspaper account is one who would not pay anyway if he could get out of it. There are others who think the same way about it. If the merchant or newspaper man got mad about every statement of account he receives he would have a case of hydrophobia every day.—Hamlin Herald.

When You Think of Drugs—Think of Us

It is always flattering to a store to have many regular customers. People who come repeatedly must have confidence.

A large percentage of our business comes from regular customers who trade with us year in and year out. They know our methods are right and that they will always be treated as we would like to be treated were we the buyer instead of seller.

Why not make this your regular trading place for drugs and medicines?

One of the best stories of the hustling real estate salesman we ever heard comes from one of the fraternity who isn't afraid to tell a joke because it happens to be on him.

The salesman heard of a man who was anxious to trade a farm for some city lots. So he jumped into his automobile, drove to the farm owner's town office and warmly invited him to come out and look at some fine suburban property. The prospective buyer seemed glad of the opportunity and they were soon speeding toward the subdivision in which our hero was interested.

A half hour beyond the city limits the real estate man began to point out corner lots, prospective paving and sewer systems, locations for imposing residences and all that sort of thing. "The city is growing right out this way," he said. "Facts and figures prove that within two years these lots will be in the most fashionable part of town and will be worth five times what they are selling for today, while your farm will—by the way, where is your farm located?"

"We passed it on our way out here from the city," said the prospective buyer. "Want to look at it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Just installed and it sure works fine, a sanitary steam pressing machine. In use by all city pantoriums and pressing clubs.

The Mule's Won't Power.

"Is your gwine fer let dat mewel do as he please?" asked Uncle Ephraim's wife. "Wha's you' will power?" "My will power's all right," he answered. "You jest want ter come out hyar an' measure dis here mewel's won't power."—Christian Register.

Punctuated.

"I am willing," said the candidate, after he had hit the table a terrible blow with his fist, "to trust the people."

"Gee!" yelled a little man in the audience. "I wish you'd open a grocery."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Their Latest Game.

A busy mother who was distracted by noise in the nursery hastened to the room and said to her little daughter:

"Minnie, what do you mean by shouting and screaming? Play quietly like Tommy. See he doesn't make a sound."

"Of course he doesn't said the little girl. "That is our game. He is papa coming home late, and I am you."

Two Sides to Question.

Socialistic Tramp: "They orter take all the money in the world an' divide it up equal, so every guy'd git his share, that's what they orter do."

Wearey: "You're wrong, Willie, dead wrong. If they ever done that the next thing they'd do they'd go an' divide all the work up an' then where'd we be?"—Exchange.

Could Shout for Joy

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. P. Hader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters. My wife had a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters have no superior. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50cts at Calvert's drug store.—Adv.

Ahead of Washington

A teacher in one of the grade schools was conducting her history class and asked:

"Who was the first man?"

"George Washington," a little boy shouted.

"How do you make out that George Washington was the first man?" said the teacher, smiling indulgently.

"Because he was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

At this point a larger boy held up his hand.

"Well," said the teacher to him, "who do you think was the first man?"

"I don't know what his name was," replied the boy, "but I know it wasn't George Washington, because the history book says he married a widow, so of course, there must have been a man ahead of him."

A Threat.

Two Georgia negroes were quarreling on a railroad platform.

"You better go 'way from me, nigger," said the larger of the two; "'cause, if I starts in on you, about this time day after tomorrow the sexton ob the colored cemetery gwine to be pattin' you in the face with a spade!"

Senator Gronna, discussing a knotty tariff problem, said in Dakota:

"There is a nice distinction involved here. You don't notice it at first. Once it is pointed out to you, however, you perceive its immense importance.

"It's the sort of distinction that Gobsa Golde's beautiful young wife revealed to him during a conjugal quarrel over a diamond tiara. 'People say,' quavered the old man, trembling with rage, 'people say you only married me because I had money.'

"The young woman smiled superbly. 'Rubbish!' she exclaimed. 'My primary reason for marrying you was that I had no money myself.'"—Newark Star.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

In preaching, the minister had been rather long-winded, when the young bride remembered that she had left the Christmas dinner in the gas range without regulating the flame. She hastily wrote a note and slipped it to her husband, who was an usher. He, thinking it was intended for the minister, calmly walked up and laid it on the pulpit. The minister paused in the midst of his sermon and took the note with a smile, which changed to a terrific frown as he read:

"Please hurry home and shut off the gas."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Just An Oversight

Being unable to find a seat on the Cripple Creek Short Line, a fat suffragist went to the smoking car and sat down by the door. The man next to her, absorbed in his newspaper, kept on smoking. "I was foolish enough to suppose," she said, glowering at him, "that some of the men in here, at least, were gentlemen." "Pardon me, madam," he answered politely, offering her a cigar.

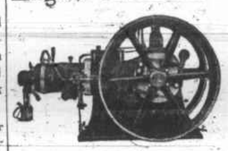
The Muncie Engine a Success!



Eagle Lake, Texas, Jan. 11, 1913.
Mr. T. L. Smith,
City.

Dear Sir:—

Referring to the test run made with your ten horse Muncie Oil Engine wish to state that this engine did its work beyond my expectations.

It was started at 11:30 a. m. Friday, Jan. 3rd. using Electra crude oil as fuel and operated continuously night and day until 8 p. m. Wednesday, Jan. 8, with the exception of about 30 minutes caused by our inexperience in its operation. If we had to make this test run again we are quite sure it could be done without a shut down.

After stopping, the ignition ball was removed and found to be absolutely clean and free from carbon.

For the first few days the engine was tried there was a leak in the head which allowed water to enter the combustion chamber, causing igniter spoon to run cool.

It runs as smoothly as any engine we have ever seen and is much more simple than any other engine we have ever seen, having only two mechanically operated parts—the governor and the fuel pump.

Yours very truly,
Eagle Lake Mfg. Co.,
