

Got the Decision
In a recent debate at the Wichita high school the woman suffrage amendment was under discussion. It would be unwise to give woman the ballot, declared a budding Daniel Webster, in attacking the proposition. "Woman could not be relied upon to exercise good judgment in voting. She changes her mind far too often."
The next speaker was a young woman. She arose and cast a pitying glance at her opponent. "I would like to ask my honorable opponent," she posed sweetly, "if he ever tried to change a woman's mind once it was made up?"
The young woman got the decision.

His Congratulations
"Does your wife ever object when you find it necessary to stay downtown late at night?"
"Oh, no, she knows that I never stay away from home in the business that keeps me. Does your wife make a fuss when you get home late?"
"Always. I congratulate you."
"Thanks, old man. Yes, I think I'm to be congratulated. My wife's a mighty sensible little woman; even if she isn't as beautiful as some who might be mentioned. Give me an amiable, reasonable woman rather than a pretty one, who can't listen to reason."
"It isn't the amiability or the good sense of your wife that causes me to offer my congratulations."
"No? What then?"
"Your ability as a liar."

Mr. Preston Wicker, who has been holding a telegraphic position in New Braunfels for some months past, has returned home.

Good at Filing
Parson White's precautionary measure of protecting his chicken coops with chilled steel bars was futile, for that very night four more of his choice Leghorns disappeared, leaving the severed bars as the only visible evidence of the theft. However, his suspicions pointed toward his next door neighbor, whom he had seen prowling around his yard that day, and accordingly he had this suspect up in the police court next morning.
"If the prisoner can file an alibi, I'll let him off with a suspended sentence," announced the judge at the end of the evidence. "Can you file an alibi, Ham?"
"I guess I can," eagerly replied the suspect, "if it isn't any harder den Parson White's chicken coop bars."

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston had occasion to stop at a country hotel in Connecticut while on a business trip. The hotel was a conspicuous place in the parlor was the inscription: "L'ci on parle Français." The mayor, turning to the proprietor, said: "Do you speak French?"
"Not me," the man replied. "United States is good enough for me."
"Well, then," asked the mayor, "why do you have that inscription hanging on your walls?"
"What's that got to do with it?" queried the man.
"Why, it means 'French is spoken here,' said Mayor Fitzgerald.
"You don't mean it!" cried the hotel keeper with excitement. "Well, I'll be darned! I bought that of a young man who said it meant 'Heaven bless Our Home.'"—Lippincott's.

How to Pave the Street
At a political meeting, a very enthusiastic German made a speech, says the "Housekeeper," beginning like this:
"My dear fellow citizens and fellow Shermans, I don't want to say nodding about nobody, but look at dem Irish in de Tenth ward; vot have dey got? Paved streets! Und, vot have we got? Mut! Mut! Now, my fellow citizens und fellow Shermans, ve! I wish to say is dis: Let us put our heads togedder und make a block pavement."

"Stamp speaking is the hardest work in the world," said former Senator Beveridge. "It is especially hard," he continued, smiling, "when there are hecklers in the audience."
"A friend of mine the other stump speech," continued he, said, "a man is known by his work." And he paused impressively. But a heckler took advantage of the pause to yell. Then you must be a gas worker."
She (after the proposal)—"What! Marry you—a drunkard, gambler and impostor? Ha! ha! Begone, sir, before I ring and have you ejected!"
He—"Isabelle, am I to take this as a refusal?"

There will be a baseball game at the school grounds this afternoon between the Eagle Lake High School team and the team of the Richmond High School. The game will be called at four o'clock, and the boys would like to see a large crowd present. We are informed that Eagle Lake will this season have a ball team composed wholly of home boys. On the team will be Bob Robson, and a few more of the old timers, but the team will be practically made up of boys from the high school.

The Woman's Home Mission Society held their Bible study at the home of Mrs. John Matthews last Friday afternoon at three o'clock. The lesson was taken from the second chapter of Exodus, and several verses were read touching on the lesson. The meeting was very interesting as well as instructive. The meeting was closed with sentence prayer.

The Catholic ladies met with Mrs. R. E. Walker Thursday afternoon, March 6th, and organized an Altar Society with fifteen members. Meeting days first Thursday of every month at 7 p. m. Until the new Catholic church is opened, the society will meet in the Schumacher hall.

Hon. Geo. Herder, Colorado county's representative and one of the county's most prominent citizens, who has been so ill at his home in Weimar of meningitis, but who has been improving nicely and was thought to be out of danger, suffered a relapse or nervous breakdown Monday night, and since that time has not been doing so well. A telephone message from Mr. George Herder, Jr., Wednesday afternoon to the Headlight stated that Mr. Herder's condition at that time was somewhat improved over that of the first of the week.

Her Future.
An artist of international fame recently had a bright little Swedish girl posing for him, and thinking to keep her expression animated, he conversed with her while he worked.

"Do you go to school, Ragghild?" the great man inquired with affable competency.
"Oh, yes," was the reply.
"And what are you going to be when you grow up?"
Ragghild's face beamed.

"If I have sense," she answered. "I will be a schoolteacher. If I have no sense, I will paint pictures—like you."

It Sounded Like It
A young girl from a country town went to a city boarding school, much against the wishes of her father, who thought she would be spoiled by city ways. "Soon she wrote in one of her letters: 'I am in love with ping-pong.'"

Along to her father, who turned angrily upon her, saying: "Well, you see I was right. I knew no good would come of her going to the city." Now, you see she has got in with one of those danged Chinamen."

"Oh, I just love cake, and it's awfully nice!" cried little Dorothy, regarding her chocolate frosted dessert with high approval.
"You should not say 'love' cake," reproved her mother, "say you 'like' it, and don't say 'awfully,' say 'very.' Don't say 'nice,' but 'good.' And, by the way, the word 'just' should be omitted, and also the 'oh.' Now, my dear, repeat the sentence correctly."

"I like cake; it is very good," repeated Dorothy.
"That is much better," said her mother.

But Dorothy was far from being satisfied. "It sounds as if I was speaking of bread," she said, with an air of disgust—Youth's Companion.

He Knew
It was the opening of the winter session and the teacher was making up her list of pupils.
"Well, my boy," she said to one youth, "what is your name?"
"Tom," said the boy promptly.
"That does not sound well," she said; "you should always give the full name." You should have said "Thomas." And what is your name?" she asked turning to the next boy.

Flushed with the consciousness of having learned something new, the young man arose and said proudly: "My name is Jackass."—Ladies' Home Journal.

His Wager
Two friends—a Scotchman and an Englishman—met in a smokeroom of a hotel and the Englishman at once proceeded to monopolize the conversation, as he usually did.

The Scotchman bore it for a long time, then he broke in quietly:
"I say, old chap, I'll back you and me to tell more and bigger lies in half an hour than any other six men I know."

He paused and then went on gently:
"And I wouldn't speak a single word the whole time!"
