It is said that the hard downpour of rain last week, swelling some of the creeks into raging rivers in a short period of time, drowned out a great many quail. If this is the case, considering that those that were not drowned out have been greatly thinned out by the out-of-season hunting, which law breaking is said to have flourished in this community this year, there will not be a great many birds during the open season. A great many men of Eagle Lake who enjoy hunting, but who do not want to have to be forced to hunt before the open season in order to find an open season in order to find a game warden in here and break up this out-of-season hunting.

Mr. Joe Hefley, who is attending the Tyler Business College in Tyler, came in Wednesday afternoon for a two weeks' visit.

Pat's Rejoinder.

An Irishman had been long addicted to drink, but he signed the Murphy pledge and put on the blue ribbon. His former companions, going on in their old sinful ways, poked fun at him for signing the pledge. "What reason have you, Pat, for giving up taking a drop?" said one of them. "Why, whiskey is the worst enemy I ever had. It ruined me home and caused me to lose me job and go in rags." "But," his old time friend rejoined, "does not the Bible tell you to love your enemies?"

"Yes," said Pat, but it didn't tell you to swallow them." "Well, Pat didn't Paul tell Timothy to take a little wine for his stomach's sake?" "Yes, he did," said Pat, "but me name is not Timothy and there's nothing the matter with me stomach."

Along, Pat, you look like a cat at a country fair with that blue ribbon on." "An thet is all right," said Pat, "an whenever ye see a calf at the county fair wid a blue ribbon on he always takes the prize."—Ex.
