HEAVY RAIN ON SUNDAY DELAYS POTATODIGGING

A heavy rain, amounting to about two inches fell here early Sunday morning. Quite a number of the potato men had begun to dig their fall crop of spuds, but the rain has put a stop to digging for several days. Mr. H. M. Rogers, of the Rogers Bros. potato plantation, states that so far the potatoes dug on his place, have not fallen under an eighty bushel yield. The potatoes are still growing rapidly, and the potato men are of the opinion that a frost now to kill the vines and mature the potatoes would be a benefit to the crop. There will be a mighty few small potatoes grown here this fall. On account of the abundant rain fall and warm weather, all the small seed potatoes have grown into large shipping size potatoes.

W. T. ELDRIDGE BUYS IMPROVED COTTON SEED

W. T. Eldridge, presiding genius of a group of industries located at Sugar Land, has returned from an extended trip through the Carolinas, Virginia and other states. His principal business on the trip was to visit experiment stations and make observations of results produced by the planting of improved cotton seed. "I find the Carolinas far ahead of Texas in planting methods and in results produced," said Mr. Eldridge.

"They are making a bale to the acre on lands that under our methods would not be at all productive. With the same methods the rich bottoms lands of Texas ought to produce two bales to the acre."

Mr. Eldridge bought an extensive supply of big boll long staple cotton seed for next year's planting. —Houston Chronicle.
