LOCAL CITIZENS MAY BRING SEVERAL HUNDRED

COWS TO THIS SECTION FOR HOME CREAMERY

Citizens of Eagle Lake Planning to Ship in Several Hundred Milk Cows to be Sold to Farmers on Easy Terms, for Purpose of Pushing and Building up Creamery Business in Eagle Lake Section.

A move is on foot here for the organization of an association to buy and ship into the Eagle Lake territory several hundred milk cows to be used by the farmers and citizens of this section in connection with the local creamery. This matter was gone over thoroughly at the meeting of the Business League last Friday night, and a committee appointed to look into the matter. Cashier J. E. Roberts, who is a member of that committee, tells us that arrangements have been made whereby the money can be gotten for the purchasing of the cows these cows, as we understand it, are to be bought and shipped into Eagle Lake and sold to the people of this section either for cash or on credit. The only provision made in the credit sales is that the butter-fat shall be sold to the Eagle Lake Creamery Company, at the regular market price for that product, until the cows are paid for.

Relative to the creamery business, Mr. Roberts has received the following letter from Mr. F. A. Norman of Rock Island, who is familiar with that business:

"Replying to your letter of recent date asking about the dairy and creamery business over here and the benefits derived therefrom, will state what I know from my experience and close touch with the people and their affairs that I can speak with some degree of authority in what I shall say.

The creamery and dairy business came to Rock Island as an experiment during the early part of 1906 by using a small one horse churn and has steadily grown in efficiency until we have a well equipped creamery for a small town. For a time our people purchased and shipped from other places to Rock Island car loads of jersey cows until the country around was pretty well stocked and the business grew rapidly. After a time some dairymen grew tired of the routine of milking cows and having an opportunity to sell their herds at handsome profits to people in other towns and counties where creameries had been started, sold their herds in all or part and withdrew, at least for a time from the dairy business. Eventually, however, most of them returned to the dairy business and have benefited more or less, depending of course to a certain degree upon their adaptability for dairying, the quality of their herd and the extent of feed and care given them. During last year two men here sold each a herd of cows numbering twenty head for $50. per head. One of these herds went to Alice, Texas where a new creamery had been installed and the other herd went to Alvin, one of the old and pioneer creamery towns of south Texas. To say that these men were netted handsome profits is obvious, because most of the cows sold were from the increase of their original herds. I have in mind another instance where a rather old man, one of our pioneer citizens, borrowed from this bank some four years ago the sum of $500.00 and invested it in dairy cows. He talked it over with the writer but as we would not guarantee him to carry the paper for a year at a time he almost withdrew from the idea, fearing that he might be crowded for the money before he was ready to pay it. We agreed to carry it for him indefinitely renewing the note every ninety days. After encouraging him in every way we could he decided to try it. He paid the interest from his cream check and occasionally paid someone on the principal also. He kept his female increase selling the male increase and applying the proceeds to the principal of the note. After a little more than two years he had paid the note and interest in this way, and more, for he had used some of the proceeds from his cream check for feed during the winter months. He had added several head of nice heifers to his original number from the increase and now owns sixty odd head of good cows all from the start on $500.00, after selling out the undesirables and male increase. He does not have to borrow money now.

The above is one instance and upon request I will give the man's name and you may write to him for full details of his experience and success. But every man of course does not succeed to the same degree in the creamery business any more than they do in other undertakings. Much depends, as I said above, on the "kind" of cows handled, (and suffice it to say right here that I believe it pays much more in proportion to the amount invested, to have at least reasonably good cows) the attention and feed given them, especially during the winter months. That brings us to the most vital question, as has been the experience here, and the greatest handicap to the dairy business, the "FEED" proposition. If the farmer, the dairy farmer I have in mind, would only arrange to produce his own feed instead of patronizing the feed stores so much, their greatest obstacle would be at once overcome. During the winter months heretofore almost weekly the farmers would consume a car load of feed which cost from $400.00 to $600.00. That drain was the primary cause of some withdrawing from the dairy business. But I am glad to say that they are after so long a time getting away from the "feed buying" proposition, and are going at it to grow and preserve their own feed. In this connection there has been five silos sold here quite recently with one already in use the past two years as an experiment and I believe that the silo is destined to solve the dairy feed problem, and add handsomely to the profits to the farmers. That they can produce the feed is admitted and the silo enables them to harvest it and preserve it during seasons parts of the year where it is no further trouble until wanted for feed. This silage added with a very small portion of cotton seed, meal and hulls, or something of that sort, fed only when the cow is being milked is all that is necessary. When handled in a pure suitable manner the dairy farmer should be able to add considerable to the profits he had been able to realize from handling his dairy business the old way.

It is not necessary for me to state that the dairy business has been one of the most substantial and dependable businesses followed here by the small (capital) farmer. In fact during a year such as the past one I am frank to say that, without the good-old dairy cows I am at a loss to see how some of our farmers would have existed. It has proved a bonanza during a time of real need and has caused the dairy farmer to realize to a greater degree what a valuable asset the dairy herd is to him.

Our creamery does a good business and pays handsome dividends to the stockholders. I recall a remark made by one of our customers some months ago who deposited a check that represented 20 per cent dividend, "that it was six months dividend on $500.00 creamery stock." Our creamery buys and sells poultry and eggs and seems to have no trouble in disposing of their butter product. My hat is off to the creamery and dairy business.

If there is anything further that I can say that would assist you or your people in this line of business I shall be glad to investigate for you. I have merely written this from my observations and experiences in coming in touch with the dairy farmer and the creamery people and their business. I feel that there is much more that could be said in favor of the business and its value to any community if it is properly handled."

Don't Delay Buying a DE LAVAL Separator a Single Day Longer

If you are selling cream or making butter and have no separator or are using an inferior machine, you are wasting cream every day you delay the purchase of a De Laval.

There can only be two real reasons for putting off buying a De Laval: either you do not really appreciate how great your loss in dollars and cents actually is or else you do not believe the De Laval Cream Separator will make the savings claimed for it.

In either case there is one conclusive answer: "Let us set up a machine for you on your place and SEE FOR YOURSELF what the De Laval will do."

You have nothing to risk and a million other cow owners who have made this test have found they had much to gain.

You can't afford to wait, even if only part of your cows are milking now. Let the De Laval start saving cream for you RIGHT NOW.

If you really would like to know just how much more cream you can get with a De Laval let us set up a machine for you and have you try it out for yourself. Just phone or drop us a postal and we will be glad to bring a machine out to your place any time you say.
