LISSIE BARBECUE SUPPER DRAWS LARGE ATTENDANCE

(By Lissie Correspondent)
The barbecue supper at the Lissie hall Wednesday night, which was sponsored by the Ladies Aid, donated partially by the A-B Store, Eagle Lake Grain Company, Colby and Thomas Bros. Packing plant, the Frank Stephens Company, partially seated by the Eagle Lake Furniture Company, and attended by 40 Rotarians and 150 other guests, was no small affair. For such a warm evening, the hall was only about half large enough to accommodate the crowd and to insure cool comfort; but certainly the barbecue was above reproach. Loud were its praises sung. Many said it was the juiciest, tenderest barbecue they had ever tasted.

The program, which was presented to an appreciative audience, included a pantomime song, "Down By the Old Mill Stream," sung by Nettie Marie Smith and Gordon Causey, in old fashioned costumes, assisted by a male chorus; a reading, "I'm All Mixed Up," by Barbara Lee Briggs; accordion music by G. E. Thomas, Sr.; and a clever play, "Free Wheeling," under the direction of Mrs. G. E. Cook. Characters were Jack Hough, John Clippson, Harold Thomas, Jim Bill Adkins, Virgil Hough, Mattie Lou Starr, Edith Clippson, Inez Thomas and Alice Adkins.

Receipts for the evening amounted to $64.50, which is almost clear thanks to the generosity of the business men of Eagle Lake and to the Rotary Club and other guests, whose patronage was highly appreciated.

The Lissie Women trust that the warm evening did not dampen enthusiasm for Lissie suppers and that everybody will come again sometime.

BATS DESTROY TONS OF HARMFUL INSECTS

There are about 30 kinds of bats in the arid southwestern part of the United States, all with different habits and with ranges fitting into every nook and corner where they can find a place to stay and food to eat and water to drink. Bats are thirsty animals and must have water once or twice every night, says Nature Magazine. They are hearty eaters and hearty drinkers, and after sleeping all day in dark retreats in caves or cliffs or buildings, the seek the nearest water, be it miles away and dipping over the surface drink on the wing repeatedly until satisfied.

Some of the strong-winged species are found many miles from water or else they know to find it in tanks or pools that we do not find. Every waterhole in the desert is a nightly center for "bats" and often they swarm like dragon flies over still pools, before circling away to feed among the tree tops or along the cliffs or low over the bushes of the desert.

Different species find their favorite prey in different haunts and while the beetles and moths and flying bugs of their menu are not exterminated, their numbers are reduced by tons and tons as shown by their remains in the bat guano in caves or other roosting places.

Bats, too, are intelligent, for more than we generally credit them as being, and make more interesting pets for study. Fortunately their skins have no commercial value and they are not likely to be exterminated, but often their roosting or breeding colonies do need protection and should have it, for bats are among our best friends.

STARS ARE JAILED FOR PARTS IN COMIC FILM

James Dunn goes to jail today, but the Fox Film actor will not be alone in his incarceration, however, as Mae Clarke, Warren Hymer, Sidney Toler, Jack La Rue, Raymond Hatton and other well-known screen players will accompany him; at least for part of his sentence.

Since Dunn and the others are prisoners only for the sake of art, their fans need not worry over their imprisonment. It is all for a hilarious sequence in "The Daring Young Man," the romantic comedy of newspaper life which shows at the Avalon Theatre Thursday and Friday, July 4-5, with matinee on Thursday, July 4th. Dunn's jail-going is done on the order of his editor, who wants to get an "inside story" on what is really going on within the prison walls.

William A. Selter, directed "The Daring Young Man," which, in addition to those mentioned, has Neil Hamilton, Madge Bellamy, Arthur Treacher and Frank Melton in the supporting cast. William Hurbut wrote the seven-play from the original story by Claude Binyon and Sidney Skolsky.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

(By W. H. Young, County Agent)

Old man river took a heavy toll from the farmers of Colorado county in the recent overflow, just about one-third of the total cotton acreage of the county. However, we are not licked yet. Just as soon as the fields will do to work, a heavy acreage of negari, June corn and cotton will be planted. It is our opinion that negaria is the one crop that we should pin our faith to and if sufficient acreage is planted the crop could be threshed and the grain sold as a cash crop.

Compliance work in the rice acreage is now under way and will be completed early in July. The cotton compliance work will begin Monday, July 1st. Notice to non-signers: Under a late administrative ruling the local supervisors will be required to measure all growing cotton on the farms not covered by contract. All contract farms and rented acres will be measured. The owners of the farm will be required to aid the supervisors in carrying the chain and to see that their acreage is measured correctly. We very kindly ask that you co-operate with us to the fullest to have your compliance records in the office before the exemption certificates can be delivered to you.

If you have any 1934 tax exemption certificates on hand, please call or send them to the office and have them exchanged for the new 1935 certificates. This should be attended to at once.

FLOODS CAUSE LADIES TO MAKE MANY DETOURS

Miss Ruth Burger, en route to Port Collins, Colorado, and Mrs. Albert Pustejovsky, who accompanied her as far as Lubbock, left by auto Monday of last week. They encountered numerous detours occasioned by high waters and deluged more than a hundred miles out of the way before they reached San Antonio. In the Junction City area, Mrs. Pustejovsky who returned home Tuesday, says the floods must have been awful. There they saw bed room furniture and all kinds of household effects lodged in trees and scattered about in all directions by the flood waters. Immense trees, uprooted and broken off by the swift waters, made slow going in places.

Mrs. Pustejovsky says she might not have returned home so soon, but after viewing what the flood waters had done en route, and then reading in one of the Port Worth papers that the back waters from the Colorado would reach the square in Eagle Lake, she decided to come home. However, the Colorado River didn't get within five miles of Eagle Lake.

From Lubbock, Miss Ruth made the trip alone on to Port Collins,

LITTLE ALLEYTON BOY SUSTAINS PAINFUL INJURY

Mrs. Alice Belts and little son of the Alleyton community, while visiting in the Borden section a few days ago, had an unfortunate happening, so far as the little boy was concerned. He was playing with a cultivator, when in some manner his hand got caught in the cog wheels and one finger was badly mangled. He was given medical attention as quickly as possible, and is getting along very nicely, although he will have a very sore hand for awhile.—Weimar Mercury.

WOMEN AND TIME

From time immemorial husbands have complained of the long time it took their wives to dress, and have observed that women did not heed the right of time, but carried on interminable telephone conversations without realizing how long they talked, and so on.

This apparent lack of regard for time by the fair sex has long been the source of endless comment—often profane. But now it has been explained, thanks to modern psychology. Exhaustive tests conducted at Johns Hopkins University show that women just naturally can't help it. They don't realize the meaning of "tempus fugit."

These tests developed the fact that women on an average estimate the time it takes them to perform a given task at about one-half the actual time required. Dr. Isabel Stewart, who conducted the tests, which were made with 1,043 students, both men and women, said:

"Men estimate more accurately. The inaccuracies of women imply that time really seems shorter to women than to men."

Which recalls the joke of a paragrapher who wrote: "Married men do not live longer; it just seems longer."

Stanley Gideon of San Antonio, who is the guest of Frederick Hoenighaus, was honored on his birthday Tuesday by a celebration party at El Campo. Attending from Eagle Lake were Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hoenighaus and Freddie, Farley Rose, W. C. Reed, Jr., and Stanley. Mrs. A. H. Day, Stanley's aunt, and a group from El Campo joined them at the pool.
