MOTOR RUNS TOO HOT?

With warmer weather does your motor run hotter and hotter? A closed cooling system is usually the cause.

Minerals from the water, rust from iron motor parts, bits of rubber from worn out hoses are the principal clogging materials. Where oil has entered into the water the condition is worse. Oil forms a binder for the rust and mineral particles causing them to cling to the walls and also to form sludge that clogs the cooling system.

If your car is overheating, drive in for an inspection. A closed cooling system is usually very easy to detect, and we can clean the complete system thoroughly.

AN OVERHEATING MOTOR IS VERY INEFFICIENT
AND EXPENSIVE TO OPERATE

THE ARCHIVES OF BEXAR

When Business of the Texas Government, from 1727 To 1835, Was Centered In San Antonio.

Note: The following is one of a series of weekly articles taken from the Bexar Archives at the University of Texas. This collection, considered the greatest single historical treasure on the North American continent, has been catalogued and is now being transferred by the University of Texas to a collection of 400,000 pages of original Spanish handwritten documents comprising the official archives of the Mexican government for the Department of Bexar, which covered almost the whole of what is now the State of Texas, for the period from 1831, soon after Texas became a separate province of Mexico, to 1836, to the Battle of San Jacinto. This series of articles will consist principally of quotations from the documents, many of which have heretofore been unpublished, and will reveal for the first time what actually transpired during the century in which Texas was transformed from a wilderness, inhabited only by savage Indian tribes, to an independent American republic.

The transfer of Louisiana to the United States focused the attention of the Anglo-Americans on Texas. It is apparent from documents in the Bexar Archives in the University of Texas library, from which more interested in the new acquisition than President Jefferson, who was determined to know the truth about the "whole shining truth" about the country just beyond the Missiswere of roaming inclinations and delighted in the chase - buffalo and wild horses particularly tempting to this pleasurable and profitable pursuit. His favorable impression is thus summarized by Bancroft:

In this small, rough community there was not wanting somewhat of the amenities and even refinements of civilized society. This was to be found among the Spanish families, many of whom had come from leading families in Spain, or from the viceregal court. The upper-class - civilized - social intercourse by dinner-parties and balls at which refinement of manners was noticeable and cheerful, bright conversation gladdened the entertainments.

He claimed, that this infused a degree of politeness into the Creoles and half-breeds, modifying the tendency to ruffian bearing and coarseness which are the products of wild frontier life and isolation from the world.

There were others, however, as is shown by translations from documents in the Bexar Archives in the library of the University of Texas, who tore away the veil of concealment and held up a mirror to the gross faults of the people.

For instance, Juan Bautista de Alzabal, Governor of Texas, felt impelled to correct some of the more serious irregularities early in 1802 issued a proclamation, which embraced fifteen points, more than the famous Magna Carta. It is interesting to contrast and compare some of these items with current day problems and practices.

He decreed: "All vagrants without regular employment beneficial to the country shall be obliged to find an employer, or else be liable to labor in the public works as the government may think proper."

"All women, married or single, who have not the means of subsistence shall likewise find work within the aforesaid period of time. If they do not they shall be liable to the punishment of being put to work that will be profitable both to the mothers and to the government."

"All parents shall be required to have their children at home by 9 o'clock at night, under no pretext shall they be permitted to go out alone to dances or to other places of amusement. Noted in heretofore given that parents who fail to obey this regulation in the slightest, shall be subject to fine and the punishment to be imposed on such reprehensible conduct, which will result in their remaining in prison and at the same time, in their falling in excessive fines."

"All owners of ranches who go out on round-ups to catch unbranded stock without informing the government of all the ranch and take them back as well as of all the animals they capture, shall be subject to such corporal punishment as the government may think proper to impose, and shall, in addition, be required to pay a fine. Above all, it is to be understood that they are to be permitted to make sales round-ups."

"Neither shall said owners of ranches be allowed to employ any person whatsoever without the knowledge and express permission of the judge. Any person violating this provision shall be subject to the punishments named above."

"Expeditions in search of unbranded stock are absolutely prohibited between March 1 and September 1. This is permitted, however, from that date until the first of February."

"All owners of milk cows, calves or hogs shall keep them in pens so that they may not cause any damage. Persons failing to do so shall have their stock seized and shall, in addition thereto, have a fine imposed upon them."

"The owners of lands and water rights must make use of them every year. If they fail to do so, they shall be deprived thereof for a period of three years, after which time they may be allowed to resume them by offering them for sale to the public."

"Vendors of horse, cattle, tallow, bread, and other commodities must, without any excuse whatsoever, observe all the regulations that may be posted upon the Corn Market by the Ayuntamiento. No exception will be made to this rule."

"Each resident shall be compelled to keep the portion of the street belonging to him in the proper condition. He shall not permit the accumulation of piles of refuse, which shall often serve and which are sometimes buried to the great inconvenience of the occupants of the same."

"All kinds of gaming in the streets at night is prohibited under the severest penalties. No exceptions will be made in favor of any person whatsoever."

charged with the responsibility of governing and correcting all disorders, in contravention of public peace and lawful procedure. "The judges shall make every effort to induce parents to place their children in school, forcing them to do so by imposing heavy penalties for disobedience. When necessary, this is a duty of the greatest importance to religion and to the mother country. The experience of parents who, through neglect or indifference, may take upon themselves the responsibility for the worthless and evil conduct of their children, is regrettable."

Piquet, interesting descriptions served to draw settlers, travelers, spies and even Napoleonic agents to Texas and the pleasure-loving Bexarona were not left alone to hold their gay landings in peace.

July 5, 1831
Col. L. A. Whitley, 72, father of J. J. Whitley of Eagle Lake, widely known as a former State official, was thrown from his buggy at the intersection of the main highway and the Gulf Coast road, near the town of Eagle Lake, Texas, Tuesday and killed. Mr. Whitley left by automobile for Wallis where they took the train for Texarkana, on receipt of the message of the accident. Frank Koehl of Billinger, former operator for the Southern Pacific here, was seriously injured when he fell from a deep box car as it went by the scene of the accident. Mr. Koehl is being treated at the hospital at Dallas.

THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE

Enjoyed the 4th of July celebration at Garwood. A hard rain fell during the afternoon, but just as soon as the rain was over the festivities went on. A big free barbecue was served at noon. Charles Warren of Houston made an address for the anti-prohibition side and Rev. E. T. Tracy of Eagle Lake made an address for prohibition. The Santa Fe will run another excursion to Matagorda next Tuesday. The train will leave Eagle Lake at 4:30 p. m. Seth Cooper returned home Sunday from a several weeks' visit to Marlin.
