THE JOKESMITH
Some few made, mostly stolen. Some were a good one, if it is to be.

She: "Are all men fools?"
He: "No, dear, some men are bachelors."

Jimson—Captain, what shall I do if I get seasick?
Captain—Don't worry about that. You'll do it.

"His easy 16-16 who owns the car just pulled the door shut. The owner always opens it again and slaps it louder."

Teacher—If you had a pie and cut it into eight slices, what would each slice be?
Willie—I would say mighty small.

She: "Just think, we have been married twenty-four hours."
He: "Yes, it seems as though it were just yesterday."

1st Small Chap—My daddy has a leg made of hickory.
2nd Ditto—That's nothing. My sister has a cedar chest.

Auto Salesman—rejoicing to get a new customer. "This is the radiator and this is the fan."
Lady: "Oh, then it's an all season car."

Tommy—Daddy, where is Atom?
I can't find it in my geography.
Father—I don't think there is any such place, son.

Tommy—There must be, daddy. This paper says an explosion blew two men to Atom.

Johnny—I'm glad I won't be living a thousand years from now.
Bobbie—Why?
Johnny—Just think of all the history there'll be to study by that time.

Wife: "No, I didn't sew a button on your pants. I was too tired."
Which is more important anyway—your wife or your pants?
Husband: "Well, there are places I can go without a wife."

Teacher: "This essay on Our Cat is exactly word for word, the same as your brother's."
David: "Yes, teacher, it's the same cat."

Licence Clerk—What is the lady's name?
Nervous Man—Prudence Priscilla Peckingham.
Clerk—Spinster?
Man—No indeed. She is a stenographer.

He was telling her about the members of the football team. "Now there's Johnson," said he. "In a few weeks he will be our best man." And then she tipped. "Oh, Jack, this is so sudden!"

"The man who gives in when he's wrong," said the orator, "is a wise man, but the man who gives in when he is right is a fool."
Meredith—said a weak voice in the audience.

Don—Does that Mrs. Grouber talk much?
Bob—Does she? You ought to have seen how surprised her tongue was when she came back from her vacation last year.

Mrs. Pown—What sort of a man is your husband, Mrs. Dismuke?
Mrs. Dismuke—Sometimes I think

San Jacinto HOTEL

my husband is the patient, I, gentle, bestrode and that, ever lived—and again I think it's just all-fired laziness.

Aunt Fannie: "Aren't you going to say the blessing, dearie?"
Machine-Age Child: "This food is coming to you through the courtesy of God Almighty."

Mrs. de Fashion at children's party: "Marguerite!"
Nursmaid: "Yes, madam?"
Mrs. de Fashion: "It's time for us to go home. Which of these children is mine?"

Dad: "Ah, son, I'm proud of you. So you made a 58-yard run in the big game?"
Son: "Who has seen the game?"
Dad: "He also told you he didn't catch the man in front of him who had the ball?"

Brown: "I told my wife she needed a new hat yesterday."
Green: "You told her that? Good gracious, what did she say?"
Brown: "She said, 'You sit down quietly, dear, while I phone for the doctor.'"

A film actress reports that one day she was asked for her autograph by two small boys.
"Do you know who I am?"
"No," the older boy answered, "but we thought we could find out this way."

Capitalist—Young man, my time is worth exactly $100 a minute but I will give you a ten minute interview.
Socialist—Never mind the interview. If it is all the same to you, I'll just take the cash for the time you'll save.

Boss: "Ephraim, didn't I hear you using slang language to these mules this morning? You know I don't approve of abusing animals."
Ephraim: "Excuse 'em, boss. I wasn't de mule. Ah was taken to it was mah wife."

"Mamma, and little Mary Lou, if there are any men up in heaven why is it that we never see pictures of angels with whiskers?"
Mother: "Because if they were, they'd be there! That's all!"

First Meeting: "Which do you prefer, leather or fabric upholstery?"
Second Meeting: "I like leather, leather is too hard to wipe your hands on."

Chubb—Thelma witnessed the car wreck and the photographer star and other things the eye can't see. I wonder what miracle they will perform next?

Fred—Oh I expect they will be reading the unwritten law, most any day now.

Jimson—Captain, what shall I do if I get seasick?
Captain—Don't worry about that. You'll do it.

A fellow has to be a contentment to get by these days. First he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head and have both feet on the ground.

Two colored boys were having an argument about a girl. One of them claimed to have seen a ghost as he passed the cemetery the night before.

"What was this here ghost doing when you last seen him?" asked the doubtful one.

"Well, he was 'olm' mistab'ly-fallin' 'olm' rapid."

A Scot was walking with a Roman Catholic friend in London. On passing Westminster Cathedral, the friend raised his hat and the Scotman followed suit.

"At this his friend said: 'You're getting very pious, raising your hat as you pass the cathedral.'"

"Was that the cathedral?" the Scot replied. "I thought it was the Bank of England."

The Hollywood magazine that is assistant that in its opinion a certain writer was the only man for a film he had under consideration. The assistant was tactfully doubtful.

"Don't you think, perhaps it's a little too caustic?" he suggested.

"No, I care how much he costs," demanded the producer. "Get him!"

Two men were brought into court for fighting and the first one took the witness stand. "What is your name, please?" asked the examining lawyer.

"Phyllosticta Jylotia," was the response.

"Will the witness stop making funny noises and give his name?" thundered the magistrate.

An old-time Democrat who blinks at the Party's program, wondering what it is all about, says he feels like the venerable clerk at one of the Oxford University chapels. Some graduates stopped at the chapel and seeing that the old-timer was still hanging on, remarked that he must have seen many of the great preachers in his day.

"Indeed I have," replied the old-timer. "I have heard them all and thank God I am a Christian still."

By his father's stern command, Jackie was forbidden to stay behind in the playground after school hours. He must come straight home every day.

But Jackie, forgot one day, and arrived home very late, very dirty and very tired.

"Look here," said his father angrily, "didn't you promise me that you wouldn't stay out and play games?"

"Yes, father," was the meek reply.

"And didn't I promise to punish you if you did stay?"

"Yes, father," said Jackie, still more meekly, "but as I didn't keep my promise, I won't hold you to yours."

A certain noted temperance worker was strolling through one of Washington's parks and noted a man stretched out on the grass, his hair tousled and his face flushed. Concluding that the man was under the influence of alcohol, he paused to chide him gently.

"My friend, did you ever stop to think that if the price of a drink of liquor had been put out at compound interest at the time of the Queen of Sheba's visit to Solomon it would now amount to $7,321,753.11?"

"No," answered the prone one.

"Well, I'm telling you that if you aren't 121 feet from here at 5 o'clock, I'm going to hit you on the nose 23 times and then come on to see 13,291 stars. I have and had my teeth pulled at $1.75 a pull and I'm in the humor for it."

"Ray, Mith Jones, Ah once had de greater poache in mah life."

THE LIBRARY CORNER

Sweet with music
The dew-drenched garden
The white on dark background
A trembling birch tree's shadow
As breezes brush the pendulous strings
With fragile, whispering of winks
By Elizabeth Barr Hays
Book Review. — Gardeners both amateur and expert will be interested in "The Garden Encyclopedia," a practical book of garden information, recently acquired by the Eagle Lake City Library.

"The Garden Encyclopedia, Complete in One Volume" answers every question about your garden in simple, non-technical terms. Through its alphabetical arrangement the reader can turn to the information wanted as easily as if he were looking for a word in a dictionary.

Containing nearly fourteen hundred pages, seven hundred and fifty pictures, and ten thousand articles written by America's horticultural experts, the "Garden Encyclopedia" is a practical book of garden information, recently acquired by the Eagle Lake City Library.

A dictionary, but not one created by the same misfortune that have foisted the one of the last few years, greeted Stephen F. Austin when he visited the Mexican state of Texas on his first trip to that province. For the people of that region were not troubled with over-production and inadequate income. Instead, they had plenty of money, but there were no commodities in which they could spend it. In his first trip to San Antonio and in his subsequent explorations, Austin traversed the region now covered by twenty-three counties, records in the Austin Papers and in the Texas Archives, both of which collections are kept in the Library of the University of Texas, show. He found that there were only two small villages in this vast region—San Antonio and Goliad—with a total population of 2,516 inhabitants. Nacogdoches, which had been a town of over a thousand people before the disastrous expedition of 1812, 1817 and 1819 was now a deserted village. The missions were either deserted or empty, and in a desolate state of dilapidation. Because of government restrictions on trade with the United States, and since the source of supply—Mexico—was far away, the people were unable to obtain the necessities of life. Spanish Texans were living in a most wretched condition. Austin found that they had an abundance of money, but there was nothing for them to buy with it. The ever present Indian menace had increased in proportion to the depopulation of Spanish Texas. Governor Martinez realized that the province of Texas had to be populated at any cost.

Thereafter, when Moses Austin, and later his son, initiated a movement to colonize Texas, Governor Martinez did everything in his power to aid the colonization scheme. He recognized Stephen F. Austin as the legal successor to his father. He gave Austin leave to explore the province and furnish him guides and other help.

On October 12, 1821, Austin wrote a letter from Nacogdoches to Governor Martinez, giving an account of his exploration and the boundaries of the proposed colony. This letter is found in the Austin Papers kept in the archives of the University of Texas. A translation of this letter follows:

"To Don Antonio Martinez, Governor of the province of Texas: I have the honor to report to Your Lordship my arrival here with my companions on the first of the month. I shall now give Your Lordship an account of my trip."

"At La Baha I hired a guide and three Juaninos Indians. We went on our way for five days, traveling with me for a week. However, seeing that they were not helping me any because they were not acquainted with the terrain, I paid them for the time they had been with me and sent them home. I explored the Guadalupe River down to its mouth, then I explored the banks hoping to find the site of the old presidio of La Baha, but I could not find it. The land which I have selected for the new colony is situated on the right bank of the Brazos river, and the territory between these two rivers from their mouths in the Gulf to a line six leagues above the upper San Antonio road. The boundaries of the colony that I propose are as follows:

THE ARCHIVES OF BEXAR
When Business of the Texas Government, From 1727 To 1835, Was Centered In San Antonio.

Note: This is one of a series of articles taken from the three hundred serial collections of famous archives in the University of Texas Library. The collections cover all periods of Texas history, from the earliest days of the Spanish missionaries in the province of Texas, through the colonial era, to the present. This series of articles presents interesting excerpts from a number of these family collections, some chosen for their intrinsic significance in the development of the empire of Texas, others for their purely human interest in portraying personalities, economic conditions and social intercourse.

The old maxim among the prophet without honor in his own country was proved by exception in the case of Oran M. Roberts, distinguished as a man and throughout the country as a jurist. It is evident from commentary letters in the Roberts Papers, now deposited in the family archives collection of the University of Texas Library.

A depression, but not one created by the same misfortune that have foisted the one of the last few years, greeted Stephen F. Austin when he visited the Mexican state of Texas on his first trip to that province. For the people of that region were not troubled with
