Farm Records Are Key Management Tool

Most farmers and ranchers are in the habit of keeping the most important management tools, farm and ranch business records.

After a couple of days of frustration at income tax time each year, many farmers resolve to keep better records the next year. However, after their tax forms are out, records are once again forgotten. Good records aid the farm manager in locating strong and weak points in his operation. Proper analysis of the records provides the basis for profitable decisions and will help the farm manager reach his goals.

Good farm records will show which enterprises should be produced. While one enterprise might be making $10,000, a second one might be losing $2,000, thus reducing the total net farm income to $8,000.

Changes in government farm programs are also making good records necessary as a borrowing tool. With the additional capital required in agriculture today, obtaining

Rep. John Wilson Discusses Issues on Constitution Revision

(By State Rep. John Wilson)
This week I thought you would be interested in two very controversial issues which face the Texas Constitution. Both these topics are related, and I feel it would be informative to discuss them together.

First, the Rights and Suffrage Committee has passed a proposal requiring ownership of property as a qualification for voting in certain elections. The exact wording of the section grants the Legislature power to require property ownership when such a qualification is not prohibited by the Constitution of the United States. The committee attempted to produce a proposal which would not be unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. . . .

Bell Budgets $504,000 In Improvements Here

As part of Southwestern Bell's statewide construction program, more than $504,000 has been budgeted for selected service improvement projects in the Eagle Lake area.

These projects are part of the company's increased, $229.5 million, budget in the Southeastern quarter of the state.

Eagle Lake area projects include the expansion and improvement of rural telephone services.

R. L. Oldman, manager, said that telephone growth in Eagle Lake has increased significantly. The number of total telephones is expected to increase from the present 2,825 to 3,000 by the end of this year and reach 3,600 by 1976, the 100th year of Bell Telephone service.

Despite the clouding of the state's economic picture by the energy crisis, Southwestern Bell is planning a record construction program for Texas in 1974.

The latest projections indicate statewide expenditures of $1.2 billion for Bell Telephone Company projects, including the expansion of long distance service, ahead of expanding telecommunications needs. This will mark the second year in row which the company has spent more than a half-billion dollars expanding and improving telephone service in Texas.

Southwestern Bell workers are pressuring major aerial and underground cables in Eagle Lake to prevent more damage during inclement weather. Moisture in a telephone cable affects the insulation of the individual wires in the cable core, causing static and eventual out of order conditions.

Low pressure, dehumidified air is applied to the cable and kept at a constant pressure. If a leak in the cable's protective outer covering should occur, the drop in air pressure would activate an alarm alerting repair crews.

While Southwestern Bell is the largest telephone company in Texas, it is far from being the only phone company. There are 94 other operating companies serving more than 12 million telephones. The total number of phones in Texas now exceeds 7 million, which is more than in all South America.

As one of the state's largest employers, 37,000 employees, the company is a significant factor in the Texas economy with taxes and payroll totaling over $60 million last year.
