AN EDITORIAL

THE ULTIMATE SHORTAGE?

(By Wayne Pirtle)
During high school and college days, kids get their "fads" through "fad" such as mooning, streaking, telephone booth cramming, etc. Now it may seem that "fads" are a thing of the past, but I think the persons participating in the "fads" of today are just keeping the fact that they are fads hidden. This may not seem to have anything to do with "fads" but "keep on reading." The businessmen of today want to school during a time when "fads" were the "fad" and it appears to me they haven't grown up for the "fad" of the present is having a shortage of whatever they sell. But I have found the "ultimate" in shortages—a shortage of shortages.

Rice Students Ready Steers For Houston
(By Ricky Chisum)
Students in the Rice District taking their steers to the Houston Livestock Show were required to weigh, tag, and fill out information sheets on their steers.

The participants were also required to have a picture taken of their steer for identification purposes. The tagging took place at Arthur Mahallie's farm last Friday afternoon. The county committee for tagging and validating steers are Troy Krenk, Rice FFA advisor; Johnny Cooper, County Extension Agent; and Robert Moore, FFA advisor of Weimar.

Mrs. Arthur Mahallie was extremely helpful in filling out the information sheets on the steers.

Speech Class Plans Program
(By Larry Bowen)
Rice High School's speech class is preparing some very interesting entertainment for the student body.

Plans are being made for a musical comedy which will be presented prior to the Thanksgiving holidays. If the program is successful, more will follow.

THE OLD MAN

There he sits on the old park bench. He feels so useless, rigid and tired. The old man's life consists of long hours just sitting and waiting. He has nothing to go home to so he just sits and watches the people go by. He leads a very simple and boring life. He lives in a very, very old and run-down apartment. Big rats run through his cabinets eating what little scraps they can find. The old man lives off what little money he could save during his life. His wife is dead and his family doesn't want him. They say they are too busy to look after him. The old man's friends, who used to be his, have basically the same life. So they will go on through their hand-to-mouth life—not understanding the species of the environment people are living in.

This is indeed an unhappy old man, and the unhappy part of this old man is that you and I will soon be this old, useless, rigid and tired man.
