Back In The Swing Again

(By Rick McDonald)
 Getting back into the swing of things is pretty hard after sixteen days of sleeping in. As you arrive at school, you wonder how in the world you could get up so early. Then when you reach your locker, you are faced with the realization that you haven't the faintest idea what your locker number is. Time is running out and you've got to get to class. You begin to break out in a cold sweat. You begin to dial any number that comes into your head and as it is by magic, your locker door swings open. Of the first day back at school, it seems as though class lasts for years. You find that you find yourself forgetting pencils, pens, and paper. That's just part of living here.

Changes Added To Departments

(By Mike Armstrong)
 Several new classes have been added to the curriculum pertaining to the Business, Language Arts, Home Economics, Math, Home and Family Living, and V.O.E. departments. In the Business department a Business Organization and Management class will be formed. This course emphasizes the trends in business, problems in business management, and it is for students who plan to become employed in business. In the Language Arts, Speech will be offered for grades 10 through 12. The emphasis will be on production of student assembly programs, V.O.E. competition, self-expression, and parliamentary procedure. In the Home-making department, Child Development, Home Furnishings, and Home Nursing are some new courses. The emphasis is placed on child care and guidance, management and consumer aspects of the home, and family health protection. The Math department has changed its order of sequence, for students on grade levels, Algebra I, II, and III will be offered to ninth graders. Algebra IV, V, and VI will be offered to tenth graders; Geometry to eleventh graders; and Elementary Analysis in the twelfth grade. Home and Family Living is now open to juniors and seniors. Finally, a V.O.E. co-op program will be formed so the student can work half a day and come to school half a day. With these changes students will enhance their learning, and better themselves in this ever-changing society.

Art Classes Are Busy

(By Joe Garcia)
 Art classes are busy at work at their individual projects. Some students are working on macramé projects as well as painting unfinished trays which students have to stain first. Other students are working on paper-jean designs which the students will add to the inner part of the design and then paint the design. If students are not working on individual work, Mrs. Benge will assign an assignment to keep the students busy.
