The RAIDER REVIEW is published by the Journalism classes of Rice High School. The opinions reflected are of the students and not the administration, unless stated.

SURVEY REVEALS COMPLACENCY OF TODAY'S STUDENTS

According to one of the most comprehensive surveys of high school students ever taken, the large majority of today's high school youth are contented with school, home and country, though not necessarily in that order.

The survey was conducted by Gilbert Youth Corp. in order to better gauge needed changes in secondary education. It consisted of 2000 personal interviews of students in more than 100 geographical areas.

In general, the students showed that they are not a strongly opinionated group. One exception was the gun-or-butter issue. Students agreed that money should be spent on social needs rather than military needs by a margin of 58.4% to 38.5%.

Two-thirds of the students either had no opinion or agreed that change could best be accomplished by working within the structure of government.

Only 10% favored working outside the system.

Watergate appears to have soured many students on politics. While 69% of the students ranked politics as a major problem confronting the country now, almost none plan to enter politics.

When asked to label their political beliefs, over half described themselves as middle-of-the-road. Only 5% listed themselves as radical left compared to 4% radical right.

Nearly half look forward to earning more than $25,000 a year; another 27% expected to earn over $15,000. Most students said they are committed to working very hard to achieve their goals.

Most of the women expect wife and mother roles to be their primary jobs. About half of the high school females mentioned either love, marriage, children of their own, or good family lives as the one thing they want most out of life.
