More Working Women In County

In Colorado County, women at work is the order of the day. Each passing year finds more and more women in the labor force. The current figures indicate that some 36.1 percent of the local female population over the age of 16 are now employed outside the home or are looking for such employment. In actual number, according to the latest findings, close to 2,250 local women, out of a total of 6,230 of working age, are in the labor force. They are filling jobs in offices, in retail stores, in factories, in the educational and health fields and in a wide variety of other occupations. There is little that remains closed to them any more. The net result is that a greater proportion of jobs are held by women than ever before and, consequently, a larger proportion of families have more than one income. In Colorado County's regional area, an estimated 38.9 percent of those employed are women. Nationally, women have 40 percent of the jobs.

In contrast to the 36.1 percent of Colorado County's female population now in the labor force, there were only 25.8 percent in 1960. The average nationally is 38.8 percent. It ranges considerably above and below that level in other sections of the country. The changes that have taken place are depicted in facts and figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Department of Commerce and others. They show that women have drastically altered the job market in the past decade or two. The number of them in the labor force has increased from 23,240,000 in 1960 to 31,500,000 in 1970 and to nearly 38,000,000 at the present time. Much of the increase has been due to married women, especially those of middle age, who have more time on their hands now that their children have grown up. Among younger women, also, the trend is toward outside jobs rather than toward housework. A survey by the Institute of Life Insurance finds that only one-fourth of those under 25 prefer the housewife role. Sandra Grammer, Harvey Popp Exchange Vows In Baptist Church

Ed Brandon, Westerman for Houston's Channel 13, will be at the library for Story Hour on Wednesday, July 28th at 1:00 p.m. Story Hour will be held at 1:00 p.m. on Wednesday, August 4th. The program, which will feature Miss Tootle-oo, will be held at Mr. and Mrs. David R. Wintermann's home, weather permitting. It will be held in the Community Center if the weather is bad. Fairytale comes to life through the creative talents of Houston artist, writer and actor, Sunny Beville known as Miss Tootle-oo. She has been presenting mini plays of both classic tales and her original stories at the Houston Public Library downtown. She suggests lines and "stage business" to the young players, permitting the children to improvise - and more often do.

Fourth and fifth graders can still sign up for a week of art classes at the library. Mrs. Rose Lange will be teaching a class in drawing and sketching every day at 3:00 p.m. during the last week in July (Monday, 26th - Friday, 30th). Children who want to participate must silver service was served by members of the house party. Those serving were Susan Kuehler, Pearl De La Cruz, Glenda Popp, Mrs. Darrell Quinney, Kathy Scott, Mrs. Jack Vawter and Vickie Maxwell. Out-of-town guests were from El Campo, Wharton, Houston, Schulenburg, Victoria, Telephone, Tivoli, Rockport and Palacios. The couple left for Florida following the reception. Returning from their trip, they will reside in Houston.

Rehearsal Dinner Mrs. Mable Popp was hostess for a dinner following the rehearsal of the wedding party Friday evening, July 16. A menu of ham, chicken, barbecued beef, potato salad, beans, watermelon, boat of melon balls, grapes, pineapple and strawberries, and miniature cinnamon rolls were served buffet. The buffet table was centered with a massive basket of daisies. The guests were seated at tables decorated with white cloths and centerpieces of daisies and candles. Toasts were made by the engaged couple and concluding the evening, gifts were presented to each member of the Grammer-Popp wedding party.

The groom's brother-in-law, Darrell Quinney, served as his Best Man. Groomsman were Ray Obenaus, the groom's brother-in-law, and Wied Jim Waddell and the bride's brother, John Grammer. Ushers guided guests to their seats were Mark Bonnich, Jerry Pink, Jim Gertson and Glenn Wesselski. Organist Dina Koblief played an interlude of favorite music as guests were seated. After the bride was given in marriage by her parents, Dina accompanied Bill Carpenter as he sang "Love Me Tender" as the couple faced each other and held hands in romantic moments. After the bride and groom exchanged vows, Mr. Carpenter sang "The Wedding Song" as the couple knelt in a moment of prayer for themselves.

The altar was centered with a large wedding arch decorated with plumose fern and flanking each side were wood ferns. Behind the wedding arch was a large arched candelabra garlanded with fern. To each side was a tree candelabra swirled with fern. Reserved pews were indicated with pairs of aisle candelabras. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Grammer chose a gown of coral chiffon and knit. The groom's mother, Mrs. Popp, wore a pale blue gown of chiffon. Each wore a corsage of white daisies mums with gypsophila.

Following the wedding ceremony, the guests were welcomed by the bride and groom and their parents in the Fellowship Hall. Guests were registered by Janelle Bauer at a round table skirted with white net and holding a beautiful ornate wedding candle and ring, which was given to the bride. The bride's table was draped with white organza net over white and trimmed with white satin bows. The right side of the table held a lovely tiered wedding cake with white columns and decorated with clusters of fresh white and yellow daisies with gypsophila. Centering the table was an arrangement of daisies and candles in a two-tier epergne. On the right side was a crystal punch bowl of golden punch. Silver appointments were used to serve nuts and mints.

The groom's table was skirted with yellow net and held a candle and floral arrangement. German chocolate cake with chocolate swirls and coffee from a

27th Retzlaff Family Reunion Held Here Sun. Rice District Offers Surplus Voc. Equipment

Mrs. Leola Kloss and family of Sheridan were hosts for the twenty-seventh annual Retzlaff family reunion on Sunday, July 18 at the Eagle Lake Community Center. One hundred and three relatives attended ranging in age from six months to 88 years. After registering, members of the family visited and enjoyed coffee and kolaches. The noon meal was catered by Mike's of Columbus and two tables were lavished with desserts of all kinds brought by those who attended. A meeting was held later in which all business matters were settled, and the family was informed that a "Retzlaff Family History" book had been published which they all have anticipated for quite some time. After visiting a while longer, while some played cards or dominoes, or just reminisced over old family photos, the Retzlaff family bid one another good-bye until next year.

There will be no radio or television repairs at A. J. Stram Auto Supply in Eagle Lake July 28th through 31st while the repairman is on vacation. Included in the sale will be a drill press, band saw, horizontal band saw, jointer, and four 225 amp welders. All are items of equipment that have been found defective in some manner and are replaceable but have been replaced by new equipment.
