FARM WEATHER OUTLOOK THROUGH SATURDAY:
Partly cloudy and cooler weather is due for the Texas Rice Belt today and Wednesday. Highs will be in the low 80's with lows in the mid 70's. A slight warming trend is due later in the week with temperatures reaching the mid to upper 80's. No rainfall is indicated through Saturday. Dry northerly winds will promote rapid drying.

PAST WEATHER:
Radar indicated general rains over the Rice Belt Monday afternoon and evening. Amounts were heavy in and around Houston. During the past 24 hours, ending at 7:00 a.m. this morning, Houston International Airport reported 4.20 inches of rainfall. Three to five inch amounts were reported around other parts of Houston. Rainfall over the rest of the Rice Belt amounted from less than 0.10 up to 1.50 inches.

FIELD WORK:
Delays due to wet soils will be common in many areas of the Rice Belt for the next two or three days. Dry air and sunny conditions for the remainder of the week should promote rapid drying of soils.

SMALL GRAINS:
Land preparation for small grains and other fall crops will be progressing as farmers have been waiting for soil moisture to prepare land.

HARVEST:
Fall and dry weather for the next few days should promote rapid drying of peanuts and winter oats. Combining of fields will be slow in a few areas especially in and around Houston due to wet fields.

PEANUT LEAF SPOT:
Peanut leaf spot should not show much spread or development for the rest of this week due to cool nighttime temperatures.

HAYING:
Conditions will be good for rapid curing of hay for the next few days. Hay cutting may be slowed however, due to wet soil.

APPLICATION OF AGRICULTURAL CHEMICALS:
Farmers planning to make aerial applications of chemicals today should use caution. Northeasterly winds may reach moderate levels during the afternoon hours. Winds are expected to increase tonight and Wednesday. Farmers may want to delay application if possible to avoid problems due to drift. Fields in some areas may be too wet for ground based rigs.
