January Is Volunteer Blood Donor Month

Houston Mayor Fred Hofheinz has joined Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe and President Gerald R. Ford in naming January as Volunteer Blood Donor Month. Throughout the country those individuals and organizations who have provided support to local blood programs will receive the recognition they deserve. The designation also urges all blood donors to establish protection for themselves and maintenance of a safe and adequate blood supply for all them.

citizens in need. January has been selected caused by illness and holiday vacations. In the letter from President Ford, he encouraged the building of an all-volunteer system of blood donation because it is "in the finest American tradition of humanitarian concern for those in need.
