AGRICULTURAL WEATHER OUTLOOK THRU SATURDAY: Partly cloudy to cloudy skies through Wednesday with a chance of scattered showers tonight and Wednesday are forecast for the Texas Rice Belt, Rainfall amounts through Wednesday are expected to be less than 1/2 inch. Fair to partly cloudy skies are expected Thursday through Saturday. High temperatures in the low to middle 70s are forecast for this afternoon and Wednesday, dropping to the 60s on Thursday and warming alowly then, into the weekend. Low temperatures tonight in the low to mid 50s will cool to around 40 degrees. Wednesday night: warming again Thursday night through Friday night. Moderate to gusty southerly winds this afternoon and tonight will be shifting to northerly by Wednesday morning. PAST WEATHER: High temperatures on Monday were mostly in the low 70s. Lows this morning ranged from the low and mid 50s in the extreme eastern part of the Rice Belt to the low 60s FARM MANAGEMENT: Good progress in land preparation is possible this afternoon but delays caused by rain are likely on Wednesday, Small grains and pastures will show only limited growth this week due to cloudiness through Wednesday and cooler temperatures on Thursday. OUTDOOR BURNING GUIDE: The Texas Forest Service Outdoor Burning Guide for grassy type fuels indicates that the fire danger is extreme. Do not set non-permit outdo r fires under any circumstances. SOIL TEMPERATURES: Average soil temperatures at the 4-inch depth are in the upper 50s across the Rice Belt, Some cooling is likely through about Thursday with warming again likely into the weekend. These soil temperatures are generally considered to be acceptable for planting corn but are still too coci for planting sorghum. dual income tax by January Fishermen,

Although the outlook isn't all that bright, 1977 does offer a ray of hope for cattlemen, points out a livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Fed cattle marketings should decline some early in the year although there should be some increase in the second quarter. However, cattle slaughter should remain low for the next six months, keeping beel supplies down. This should boost fed cattle prices some and could stimulate an increase in feedlot placements. Feeder cattle prices should also outlook brightens.
