Kiddy Day Brings Back Memories

(By Mark Hoover)
Last Wednesday was Kiddy Day, a day on which seniors come to school bringing short pants, T-shirts, caps, dolls, suckers, and most of all, memories. Memories of the good old days when we were young and life was a breeze. Yes, amid all the bowties, suckers, dolls and painted freckles, the one thing seniors brought with them to school last Wednesday was memories.

Memories of hot, sweltering summer days with the heat waves rising up off the asphalt roads making street signs and buildings hazy in the distance.

Memories of walking down country roads or in Grandpa's pasture hearing the crickets chirp, the birds sing and seeing the fish jump in the old cow pond that you went fishing in every Saturday evening.

Asking Mom for a dime or so and running down to the street curb to wait for the happy bus bearing from the loud speakers mounted on top of the ice cream truck that came every evening at five.

Memories of intentionally stepping in mud puddles and unintentionally falling out of trees, along with the memories of bee stings, birds' nests, and that funny rock you once found that turned out to be a turtle hidden in his shell.

Memories of not being able to sleep at night because Santa Claus was coming and if you didn't go to sleep you would never get your presents because Santa doesn't come to your house if you are awake and why oh why can't I fall asleep?

Memories of dressing up for Easter and seeing those colorful, well hidden eggs, and memories of dressing up again for Halloween and walking the streets because back then you wouldn't get mugged, and then getting sick on all the randy you wanted to eat that night but Mom wouldn't let you but you sneaked out of bed and ate it anyway.

Memories of going to the movies the first time "all by yourself."

Memories of flying your first kite and then losing it, when the string slipped through your uncoordinated fingers and you cried as you watched it float high and free on the wind until it was out of sight, hoping that if another kid found it he would take care of it because after all it was "your" kite.

Memories of seeing the beach for the first time and standing firm as the cool water rushed in about your legs and you could feel yourself sink as the sand was swept away from around your feet, of the hot sand that was so hard to walk on and of the sunburn that always came afterwards.

Memories of your first crush and your first "real love."

When did the innocence of childhood leave you? Or, does it still remain, but is hidden deep down inside you knowing that it will never surface again?

The senior students who are interested were asked to sign up no later than Wednesday, April 6th of last week.

Who's Zar?

(By Judy Spates)
Look at the funny little birdie, Mommy!

Well this little angel is saying something. The clue that was given this week for who's zar was: she is a sophomore that plays in the band.

To start it off Cynthia Tomchesson and Debbie Mosley said it was Debbie Fudge, then Leland Hagendorf and Anna Korynsky said it was Linda Mathis.

As the morning progressed like Cheryl Crabb and Walter Ward said it was Janet Kerah. Yes, all six of the first guessers were wrong, but there were four people that were correct. They are Frances Banks, Mark Hoover, Althea Jones and Debra Mosley who said it was Tracy Gertson.

Parents, have mercy on us children because we know not what to do!

Fair Is Held To Help Students

(By Mark Hoover)
There will be a Gulf Coast National College Fair at the Albert Thomas Convention Center in Houston Friday, April 22 and Saturday, April 23 to help students answer any questions they have concerning planning their future for college admission and college planning.

Admission is free to all students and the fair is expected to attract some 4,000 persons. If any students are in need of acquiring any further information, they should contact their respective counselors.

Juniors Receive Class Rings

(By Debra Newsom)
Members of the junior class received their class rings Tuesday, April 5th. The class received their senior rings.

When I went around asking a few of the juniors how it felt to know that they would soon be seniors, Betty Ann Labay said that it "makes you feel like you're big and going to be head of the school over the underclassmen." Susan Supak said that it was "very exciting, but kind of sad."

Clayton Smith said that it was "kind of sad ending your high school days, but good to think that it is finally almost over with." Denise Graham informed me that she'll be "glad to be a senior so she can pick on the freshmen and start with the senior parties."

Janet Kerah, an active member of the junior class, broke the old record of 32 feet, 5 inches, by throwing the shot 40 feet, 5 inches. This is the third most record Jane has broken this year. At the Schulerburg track meet she set a new record in shot put and also in discus. The track team should be congratulated and supported for their fine efforts.

Inventory lists, take pictures of everything in it as part of your insurance protection.

Photograph furnishings, draperies, rugs, etc. Stand in each corner of your rooms and shoot overlapping views.

Silver, jewelry, objets d'art, expensive hobby equipment, all should be photographed separately, with hallmarks, brand names, etc. Keep original receipts, or have updated appraisals.

Photos can document damage to your home or car, especially if repairs must be made before the adjuster can see the damage.

Keep the photos in your safe-deposit box along with receipts and appraisals. They serve as documentation in case of loss for insurance and tax purposes.

Protect the things you care about—your family, your home, your belongings—with adequate insurance.
