Let's Look Back 48 YEARS AGO

(January 25, 1930)

Coldest blizzard in 91 years grips entire South; mercury in Eagle Lake plunges to 3 degrees and the Colorado River at the Lakeside Irrigation pumping plant is frozen over with crust of ice from bank to bank according to Louis Austin, engineer at the plant. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Newton are the proud parents of a son, born January 20. Mayor R. T. Westmoreland announces he will be candidate for reelection. (City is being over-run with tourists and hoboes; the absence of a city jail keeps Night Officer Jay Ooba and City Marshal Taylor busy running them out of town.) W. E. Welton announces he will be a candidate for Mayor and a spirited contest is anticipated. George Keith will be a candidate for County Commissioner of Precinct Number Four. Elizabeth Westmoreland, daughter of mayor, identifies Houston man as intruder who shot her; charges of assault by murder and burglary are filed against Charles Lee, 25. Ladies of the Baptist W.M.U. entertain with turkey dinner; large crowd attended in spite of freezing temperatures. From an enrollment of 500 students at Southwestern University at Georgetown, Miss Lina Kilgohr of this city is listed as fifth highest in grades of the top 50 students enrolled.

Bullock said Michael Lasa will meet with local taxpayers at the Colorado County Courthouse, Commissioner's Room, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

County Agent's NOTEBOOK

By LEROY J. HAJDIK
County Extension Agent
Colorado County

Waste usually isn't much of a problem when these small rectangular bales are fed in a bunk, manger, rack or wagon in the barn lot. But if you move the bales out to the field for feeding, as many cattlemen do to avoid hauling manure, you can prevent excessive waste by giving cattle only a one-day supply at a time.

When feeding hay outside, use a well-drained site. If hay or pasture soil is damaged in the feeding area, reseed in late winter. Force cattle such as mature, dry pregnant cows with lower nutritional requirements to clean up hay that might otherwise be wasted.

Losses vary by feeding method, time intervals between feedings, and amount of hay. Research studies have shown losses ranging from 2 percent with conservative feeding methods to more than 60 percent when no attempts were made to reduce waste.

Losses of 3 to 6 percent are common, and acceptable in most situations. However, the lower figure usually is associated with daily feeding and high-labor feeding systems.

We offer these suggestions to reduce losses when feeding one of three types of hay packages:

Large round bales or stacks: Excessive waste will result if cattle are given unrestricted access to the hay. This can be reduced by placing some kind of barrier between the hay and cattle. Electric wire, gates, panels, feeding wagons, racks or feeding rings.

Small round bales: These usually are fed in the field where they were dropped by the baler. To reduce feeding waste, use a temporary electric fence to restrict cattle to a two or three week supply. Make the cattle clean up the hay before moving the bales to a new area.

Reduce Hay Feeding Losses

Stockmen can reduce hay feeding losses this winter by how they feed hay to their cattle.

Losses vary by feeding method, time intervals between feedings, and amount of hay. Research studies have shown losses ranging from 2 percent with conservative feeding methods to more than 60 percent when no attempts were made to reduce waste.
