ted that the state may assist in the costs of purchase of the equipment, possibly up to as much as $30,000. He also noted that all of the equipment for the lunchroom will not necessarily be needed for the first year, and the district would be eligible to apply for further state aid for other purchases that might be needed. The superintendent stressed however, that the cafeteria will be adequately equipped when completed for efficient operation, but if more state aid could be forthcoming, the purchase of some new equipment might be delayed until after the first year of operation.

Funds For Project. The superintendent presented to the board members Monday projected revenues for the project, including $825,000 from the bond issue approved by the voters earlier this year, plus an estimated $66,500 in interest earned by investment of the funds until needed, thus funding the district $891,500 in funds, plus any help that might be forthcoming from the state for the lunchroom equipment.

In addition to the contract cost, estimated at around $743,000, the district will also have an additional $265 for the project, an estimated $51,000 for architectural fees, and an estimated $20,000 for work which the district plans to do on its own outside the project contract.

Options accepted by the district, under Mr. Drymala's contract, were: moving a library to create a wider hallway, $6,749; widening of doorway openings, $810; adding library shelving $2,714; and removing a bank of lockers which are not deemed necessary at this time, reducing the cost by $3,500.

The work to be done by the district will include remodeling of a workroom, adding a dividing wall to create an additional classroom, and purchase of built-in cabinets for laboratories in the new addition.

J. L. Drymala and Earl Pritchford of the Drymala firm, Charles Hubbard of S. I. Morris architectural firm met with board members Jane Clifton, president, and Bill Appelt, Anthony Kalina and Billy Heifer, and Sept. King for the discussion on the contract and specifications to iron out questions that needed to be resolved before the contract was awarded.

Mr. Drymala indicated that he should be ready to begin work within two or three weeks.
