The bodice of the gown was lavishly covered with re-embroidered Alencon lace. An A-line pleated skirt flowed gently into a chapel train with two rows of point de espirit lace. Her full-length mantilla veil was of matching lace and was completely edged.

A bouquet of white tiger lilies, sweetheart roses, stephanotis, lilies-of-the-valley, pink tiger lily spike and tradiscantia leaves with ivory streamers was carried by the bride. With her bouquet she carried a rosary, which was a gift from her mother, and a white handkerchief, which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Schneider.

Bridesmaids included Monica Bubela, Carmen Schneider and Stephanie Schneider of Nada; Renee Schneider and Sandy Schneider of Garwood; Janice Kight, twin sister of the groom, of El Campo; Deborah Johnson and Sheila Mazoch of Louisiana; and Shelly Mayo of Houston.

The attendants were attired in gorgeous gowns of teal silesta chiffon that had scoop necklines with short bell sleeves that split, which enhanced the blouson bodice and long pleated skirt which flowed to the floor. To compliment the gown, each attendant wore an ivory colored derby hat which held an elbow length veil of illusion.

Each girl carried an arm bouquet of dusty rose tiger lilies, stephanotis, lilies-of-the-valley, tradiscantia leaves and greenery with pink streamers.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Other Side Of 'Dog' Story

Dear Editor:

After reading the letter in your last paper entitled "Why Can't People Care" I too wondered what this world is becoming. I can't help but think if the writer of this letter really saw the whole thing, then, why didn't he try to retrieve the dog before the accident occurred. If he just happened to look up when the accident happened then "with his own eyes" what did he really see.

What has the world come to when we truly love our pets but don't watch over them when in this city there is a leash ordinance that pertains to every animal no matter what their worth. But you know that every story has two sides.

You see, I'm that driver and I can't help but wonder what this world is coming to when a person is naive enough to care more for a dog than the lives of eleven human beings that could have ended in a nearby ditch after an attempt was made to miss the dog.

Study Club Program On Archives

The Eagle Lake Study Club met at the Eula and David Wintermann Library Wednesday, March 12 at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Anna Loessin, president, presiding.

Minutes ffom the January meeting were read and approved. There was no February meeting due to the funeral of Clifford Wiese. The slate of officers for 1980-81 were read and are to be voted on at the April meeting. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Elizabeth Boothe.

A sale of duplicate books was held at the First National Bank Friday, March 7. About $100.00 was collected at this sale. It was decided that this sale would be held weekly instead of once a month as first discussed. The bank is open until 6 p.m. on Fridays.

The lady who was to give the demonstration on silk flowers was unable to come so June Pirtle showed a film from the Library Archives, taken in and around Eagle Lake. It was not known for sure what year it was made, but thought to be around 1960.

Everyone was interested in seeing who they could pick out that they knew.

April 9 will be a watercolor demonstration by Warren and Donna Cullér.

Eighteen new books have been added to the library this month. Everyone was pleased that more books had been checked out than in the first three months of 1979.

Kent Caperton Makes Education Policy Statement

Fifth Senatorial District candidate Kent Caperton made a policy statement on education Wed., March 19 in Conroe.

This was the first of five proposed press conferences across the district. Caperton says he is taking the issues to the people of the 5th District in this way because of Sen. Bill Moore's refusal to debate the issues.

Caperton's education policy statement follows (in part):

"Education is the single most important service that state government provides its citizens. I believe public education and the teaching profession need a strong advocate in the legislature-someone who will represent their interests in an effective manner.

"During his years in the Senate the present state senator Bill Moore has not been a friend of education.

"The state has not taken responsibility for making our educational system strong. Property taxes are sky-rocketing and funding continues to be inequitable. We've simply taken a band-aid approach to a situation that needs major surgery.

"I believe the first step toward making more money available for education is making education our number one priority. Let's take a good hard look at our school finance bill before we appropriate monies for other areas.

"I believe our school teachers are grossly under-paid, and they must be fairly compensated. They also need group health insurance and benefits similar to other state employees.

"We also must take a hard look at tax relief programs. The money schools receive under the tax relief bill does not equal what's been removed from the rolls. What will happen in the next couple of years?

"And our rural school districts are facing financial problems because of a formula change in transportation costs. Funding is based per pupil rather than per mile. With the rising cost of gasoline, the rural school districts have been hard hit.

"As the facts show, the education problems are varied. And there are no easy answers. But if our education system is to remain viable in these changing times, we must assume the responsibility for each of these areas. We can't afford not to. The stakes are too high."

Speaker For Geo. Bush Cites Detailed Economic Program

Roger Wallace of Houston, who formerly served in the U.S. State Department during the Ford Administration, spoke at 7:30 a.m. Friday, March 7 at a Campaign Coffee in support of George Bush for President at Schöbel's Restaurant in Columbus.

Wallace pointed to Bush's wide experience in government being the key to why he feels Bush is the best qualified of the Republican presidential candidates.

"In the area of foreign affairs, George Bush has far greater experiences than the other Republican candidates. Bush served with distinction both as the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and also as the U.S. Envoy to China," said Wallace.

He added, "A French Diplomat at the United Nations was quoted as saying Carter is so dis-credited in the international area that the French are hoping the U. People will elect Mr. Bush as president who understands the Russians as they really are rather than as we would wish. Carter is now in the ironic position of reaping political benefits from his foreign relations mistakes.

"Further, as the former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Bush understands our foreign problems are the result of deliberate Communist efforts to undermine the United States throughout the world.

"We need a President whose experience has prepared him to deal effectively with our nation's foreign relations. We do not need another President who comes to the Oval Office in need of 'on-the-job training'," Wallace said.

Tri-Lateral Commission

Wallace answered a question regarding the Tri-Lateral Commission. He noted that the "Tri" refers to the areas and allies represented by Japan, the United States and the countries of Western Europe who make up N.A.T.O. (North Atlantic Treaty Organization). At a time when so much attention and emphasis has been given to improving our relations with China and Russia, the Tri-Lateral members contend we should not forget our traditional allies and emphasize our relations with them. Many prominent Americans serve and have served on both the Tri-Lateral Commission and a companion group called the Foreign Relations Council.

"George Bush served with distinction in the U.S. Congress for two terms and that experience will be invaluable to him as our next President. We need a President who knows how to work effectively with Congress. We do not need another President who comes to the Oval Office without Congressional experience.

"Further, Bush knows the economic problems which confront our nation, not only from the theoretical point of view of a man who received a Phi Beta Kappa majoring in Economics in college, but also more importantly from the practical day-to-day point of view of a successful businessman who built a business from scratch into a major firm.

"Bush knows the effect the ravages of inflation are having on American families and Bush has a detailed economic program which can effectively ease the bite of inflation," Wallace said.

Wallace concluded by outlining George Bush's economic program.

Lions Club Speaker Hits At Intervention From Use Of Federal Funds

Harris County Commr. Fonteno Says Cream Being Skimmed Off

"Things are in a serious state of confusion, frustration, and inflation because the federal government is telling you how to spend your money," said Jim Fonteno of Northshore, Harris County Commissioner of Precinct two, at the meeting of the Eagle Lake Lions Club at noon on Thursday of last week. He stressed further that we should be enjoying life at our own pace, not at a pace set by the federal government."

As an example of his statements, Commissioner Fonteno told the group that a Harris County, jail project that was projected to cost $15 million is costing $55 million because of increasing federal regulations.

Another example of the frustration resulting from federal regulations is the impending application of the metric system, he said. "We made a [illegible] nothing, why should we try to copy someone (using the metric system) who has been far less successful." He also cited the introduction of the Susan B. Anthony dollar, at promotional costs of millions, as another example of "federal government greatness."

Clean Up Top to Bottom

"It's up to us to clean up from the White House on down to the Court House," admonished the Harris County Commissioner. He noted that "people expect persons in politics to be in the limelight. They have to work harder to maintain an image.

He stressed the need for effective leadership and a need for less waste of funds. "Administrative costs of federal programs are skimming the cream off the top."

Fonteno cited the great cost to the American taxpayer to maintain interest alone on the $803 billion national debt. He said the cost of interest runs about $642.56 for every tick of the clock, $98,354 for every minute and $5,913,300 every hour.

"It's time to stop complaining and start doing something about it," reiterated Commissioner Fonteno. "We need to elect people to represent us conscientiously at the job for which they were elected."

Commissioner Fonteno is serving his second four-year term in the office of Harris County Commissioner. He also served for two terms as Port Commissioner for the Port of Houston Authority, and was also a Municipal Judge for the City of Baytown.

The program was acclaimed by Ralph Truly, program chairman for the club, as a "real inspiration in today's troubled times" and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Fonteno was introduced by John Parker of Pasadena for Alvin W. Kohleffel who made arrangements for the program. Mr. Parker is Assistant Parks Director for Harris County Precinct 2 and has visited here often in the Kohleffel home and with other relatives in the community.

Special guests for the day were County Judge Lester J. Cranek, Eagle Lake Mayor Elmer Struss, City Manager T. J. Smith, Dale Cassady and Headlight Editor Fred R. Frnka.
