Mexican Fiesta ...
One of the most popular ethnic foods is Mexican. However, there are many versions of this special food style. Mexican cookery is more than tacos, burritos and refried beans. It is a blend of Indian and Spanish cultures with readily available foods. Spices vary from region to region. It is best to try a lightly spiced version until you become accustomed to the more highly seasoned taste. Here is one adaptation we like. Try it soon, it's not highly seasoned.

Taco Meatloaf
1 1/4 lbs. lean ground beef
1 c. finely crushed corn chips
1 c. chopped onion (16 oz.) can tomato sauce
1 clove garlic, minced (16 oz.) can refried beans
1 (1 1/2 oz.) package shredded Cheddar cheese
1 egg
Combine beef, 1/2 onion, garlic, seasoning, egg, corn chips and 1/2 of the tomato sauce. Mix well, pat out, on wax paper or plastic wrap, to form 18x12" rectangle about 1/2" thick. Spread beans over meat to 1" from edge. Sprinkle with remaining onion and cheese. Roll to form a loaf, using paper to help lift and roll. Seal edges and ends firmly. Place in 9x13" baking dish. Add remaining tomato sauce. Cover and bake at 350°F. oven for 1 hour or until done. Serves 8.
NOTE: 1 (4 oz.) can chopped green chiles can be added to onions and cheese mixture if desired.
