Save on home heating costs by insulating water heater

The pressures of inflation have led the consumer to realize that one of the soundest investments today is in home improvement.

Easy and inexpensive procedures ensure savings and enhance the value as well as the pleasures of a more livable home. And, conserving national energy resources goes hand in hand with dollar stretching.

Clinic on energy spending

With this in mind, the Thermo Saver Division of S & S Industries, Inc., makers of Thermo Saver water heater installation jacket, sponsored a clinic on "Energy Spending as a Sound Investment," chaired by Thomas Blandy, a building energy consultant and author of All Through The House (McGraw Hill).

Expert advice

Blandy suggests that each homeowner become an "energy detective." For instance, to uncover if the walls in your home are insulated, remove an electrical receptacle cover and look around the outside of the box for fuzzy material.

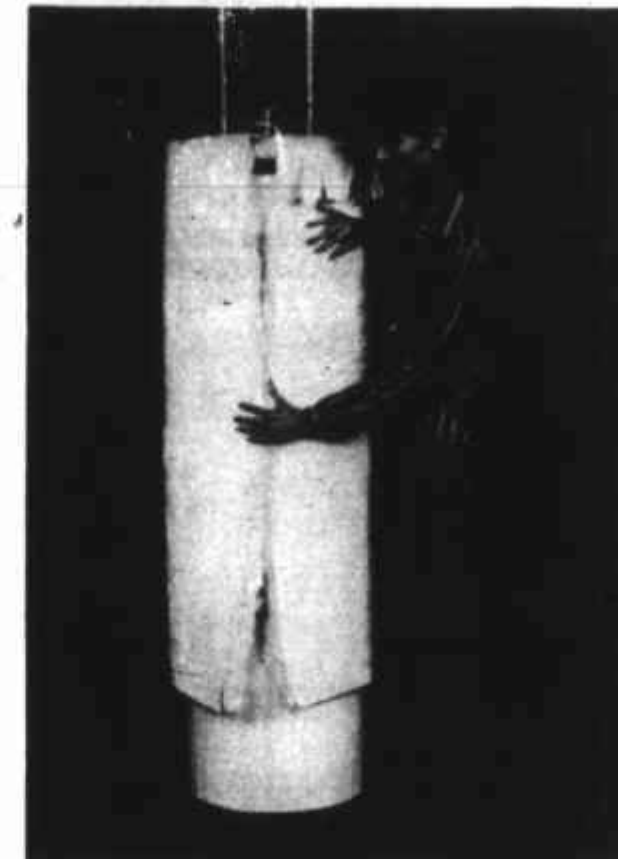

You can find drafts by running the back of your hand along windows, baseboards, doors and walls. Plug them up with weatherstripping, caulking and insulating materials such as ductwrap, pipewrap and switch and outlet draft sealers.

It's also important to recognize that your supply of hot water is more than one way of combating this.

For example, install flow controllers on the shower heads and lower the water temperature to 120°F. (140°F. if you use a dishwasher).

If you also wrap an insulating jacket around the water heater, the total savings will be approximately $95 annually for a one-time expenditure of about $50.

As virtually all water heaters have been manufactured with insufficient insulation, the United States Department of Energy recommends adding external insulation to gas, electric and oil units.

A DOLLAR SAVED IS A DOLLAR EARNED, and you'll save plenty by insulating your hot water heater to prevent costly escapes of heat. This Thermo Saver® water heater insulation jacket meets Department of Energy standards for insulating all types of gas, electric and oil water heaters.

PRICE BUSTER SALE

The Department also stresses that specially designed water insulation kits be used for reasons of safety and efficiency.

Thermo Saver is a patented, do-it-yourself water heater insulation kit consisting of a 1 1/2" thick fiber glass insulation blanket faced with washable fire resistant vinyl; a 2 1/4" thick top plate for electric units; seam tape with specially formulated adhesive and diagrammed instructions for easy installation. It serves all gas, electric and oil heaters up to 24" in diameter (82 gallon size).

Carter Gowl, Thermo Saver Vice President and General Manager, says, "Not all water heater insulation jackets are alike."

To realize savings

To be sure that the insulation used is of the correct density and thickness for maximum results, a jacket should weigh approximately 8 pounds. The homeowner can then expect to save between $15 and $40 a year on home heating costs, depending on type of water heater unit and local utility rates.

Thermo Saver retails at Sears, major hardware stores and home centers for about $20, meets U.S. Department of Energy standards and is recommended by more than 30 public utilities nationwide.
