Stiles' viewpoint on last week's meeting

Letter to the editor
I would like to take this opportunity to present my viewpoint on comments made in regard to the regular January commissioner's court meeting. I have been a faithful, diligent, conservative member of our county government, and have not missed a commissioner's court meeting for twenty-four years. Judge Crane has presented twelve annual operating budgets since he has been in office. The official minutes record that I have voted for the approval of eleven of his twelve budgets, and not as reported '90 percent of the time' against the budgets.

Capital busy with state business and politics

Amid the hail-fellow, well-met busting of opening day legislative ceremonies last week, House members almost unanimously voted Gib Lewis as speaker, and Texas senators pondered in back rooms whether to honor or reject Gov. Bill Clements' lame duck appointments. And, taking advantage of the waves of television crews that swarmed the Capitol, Comptroller Bob Bullock said state revenue estimates weren't up to snuff before announcing he would run for governor in four years. Bullock's announcement, which came a week before Gov. Mark White's inauguration, puts White between a rock and a hard place. One week before taking his oath, the conservative Democrat-White found himself pressured by Clements' Republican friends from the right, and Bullock's liberal Democrats from the left. White did not have an easy week. Clements had taunted him by naming several appointees. White politics to positions of power, including strong bosses John Connally and Billy Clayton and members of Clements' own staff, and then daring White to come up with the votes to bust them in the Senate.

Bloody fighting
A handful of Democratic senators were maneuvering for the 16 necessary votes to reject all of Clements' appointees, so that White could replace them with his own staff, and then daring White to come up with the votes to bust them in the Senate.

New beginning
For his part, Lewis said he gets along very well with White, and then promised the House will investigate alleged expense voucher abuses by Houston Rep. Ron Wilson. Even though the Travis County district attorney said his office found no basis for prosecuting Wilson, the new speaker said the House will continue the probe into the case.

Soil Conservation News

110 fourth grade students at Columbus Elementary School. This was in conjunction with the Colorado SWCD poster and essay contest. R.O.C.D. coordinator Leo Davis provided assistance for gully shaping and vegetating sites on Alan Sanderson, Lloyd Cryer, and M.C. Walker. Conservation assistance was provided to C. W. Leonard of Schulenburg concerning gully shaping, constructing a new pond, and adding acreage to his conservation plan. Soil and water conservation programs were presented to 120 sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Weimar Junior High School. The programs were presented in conjunction with the SWCD poster and essay contest. Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District provides equal assistance to all persons regardless of race, color, sex, religion, or national origin. The annual report calendars of the Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District are available at the Soil Conservation Service office in Columbus. Come by and pick yours up. District Conservator Connie Fair presented the film "Soil and Water Conservation: The Texas Approach" to the members of the Weimar Noon Lions Club and their spouses. Eighty people were present. Phil Grose of the Rock Island area is planning to construct a pond. Bill King has completed construction of a pond in the Golden area. Ronky Pyllova, a district cooperater of the Weimar area, has completed construction of a pond and shaping eroded areas to control erosion. The film "Soil and Water Conservation: The Texas Approach" was shown to 120 sixth grade students.
