Older Texan Fair successful

Homemakers' Reflections

The Colorado County Older Texan Committee had another successful Older Texan Fair on May 5 at the Mesa Parish Hall.

The theme for Older American Month, May 1983, is "Older Americans: Keys to Our Future." This theme was selected to emphasize both the valuable human resource the nation's older population represent and the contributions they make to achieve a better future for America.

Bernice Heinsohn of Frelsburg and Walter Henicke of Columbus were honored as the outstanding woman and man of Colorado County with county judge Lester Cranek presenting the awards.

Other nominees were Amelia Popp of Nada, Emily Beck Neundorff of Mentz, Martha Henicke of Columbus and Martha Gillespie of Columbus.

The program for the day — Exception from with holding on interest and dividends and today's grand champion on their Group Exhibit, Greater Smith Baptist Church of Columbus received a blue award on their Group Exhibit, and Mentz Extension Homemakers of Mentz received a red award on their Group Exhibit. In the bake division, Freddie Bunge of Columbus won grand champion and a blue award with her two cakes, Lonnie Coleman of Columbus won a blue award, Alice Hill of Bernardo won a blue award, and Elbirt Ruhmann of Frelsburg won a blue award on their baked items. Those winning in the baked division received spices and vanilla extracts donated by the Adams Extract Company.

Following the event, Martha Henicke, fair chairman, called a special meeting to elect officers for the 1983-84 year and nominate new committee members.

Margaret Litzmann of Columbus was elected chairman, Alice Hill of Bernardo was elected vice chairman and Irene Axel of Altair was elected secretary. They also voted to ask the St. Paul Lutheran Church of Columbus if they would like to host the May 1984 Fair. They also expressed their appreciation to the Mentz Ladies Auxiliary that hosted the event for day.

Rabbit conference set

Texas commercial rabbit growers are invited to a special Rabbit Producers Conference June 3-4 at the Hilton Inn in Springfield, Mo. Sponsored by the University of Missouri Cooperative Extension Councils, the conference will feature the nation's leading authorities in rabbit production says a poultry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Pre-registration deadline is May 20.

Computing their future

Wouldn't it be nice if the students of Rice High School could directly apply their knowledge and skills to benefit the school, private businesses and the community?

The Computer Science classes, under the leadership of Joe Wendel, has made this possible. The last six weeks of the school year the students were assigned a major project, composed of ten objectives in which they would apply all the information received from the computer courses. Various topics dealing with the business world were chosen by the energetic students as they planned how they would tackle this complex assignment.

Since the school has a strong ag department, many ag students worked with ag related vocations. Frank Bittner and Marilyn Mahalite wanted to keep record books, Paul Korenek pursued the Houston Livestock and Rodeo evaluation program.

Alan Zbrank and Kim Wunderlich were both interested in the book-keeping. Sue Perdue, who likes the glamorous competitive fields, chose Miss East Texas National Teenager Pageant. Melissa Hoffman, an active VOE student, planned her payroll program for Lesterhill.

There were several students whose interests were of the private business vocations. To Jonna Webb, the filing systems for Webb's Electronics appealed to her. Andy Gertson of the Legacy band, was interested in the filing system for trucking and his hand, Ronny Cook, green thumb yard worker, sought the yard service. Gifts — Distinction appealed to Karen Rucka. The musically inclined Larry Varela chose the disco business. Another bookkeeper, Stephen Mahalite, chose bookkeeping for Arthur Mahalite and Sons.

Those interested in community services included several. Roger Meinecke

Bill Carpenter, a member of the Garwood Lions Club, asked the Raider Business Department to present a program for the meeting held on April 27, 1983. The subject of the program, was based on several projects constructed by students in the Business Law classes. These projects consisted of wood-based displays concerning various areas of law such as negotiable instruments, wills and intestacy, the U.S. court systems, etc.

Frank Bittner, Ronny Cook, and Patrick Gold presented the program along with Mr. Wendel's sponsorship. Three of the many projects were shown and explained to the Garwood Lions, who all seemed to enjoy the program.

The students who presented the program and Mr. Wendel would like to thank Bill Carpenter

Raider Business Club donates to library

The Rice Raider Business Club completed its second project for this year with the donation of $100 to the Rice High School Library to be used to purchase subscriptions for business-related periodicals. These magazines will be used for self circulation as well as research and other projects by the students and faculty. The clubs earlier project was the donation of a dot matrix line printer to the computer science lab which is used by computer science students in the Business Department.
