Let's talk.
Information about your changing telephone service from Paul Johnson, Manager-Community Relations

A look at "local measured service"

Perhaps you've heard about a new optional type of service that Southwestern Bell Telephone is proposing for its Texas customers. It's called Local Measured Service (LMS). Simply put, LMS would give you the option of paying for your direct use of the telephone network.

Southwestern Bell Telephone's LMS proposal to the Public Utility Commission (PUC) includes an option that would lower fixed monthly charges while adding a low usage charge for each completed outgoing call. Those calls would be billed on the basis of distance, duration of the call and the time of day.

Another option would be a "LIFELINE" service at a $5 monthly fee. This service would be targeted to the elderly on poverty-level income. The rate would include a usage allowance of 25 completed outgoing local calls. Additional completed outgoing local calls would be billed at the rate of 8 cents each. Customers would not be charged for incoming calls under either plan.

It's your option

LMS is for residence customers, as well as single-line, one-party business customers. And of course you could keep the current "flat-rate" monthly service if you'd prefer.

These new local service pricing plans would be available within 60 days of Commission approval in 89 offices which currently serve over 2,500,000 customer lines. The company plans to equip the remaining offices within two years after approval.

I think you'll agree there are several benefits to measured service. It would give you options for choosing the plan that gives you more control over your phone bill. You'd also have the option of paying for the service you used, rather than subsidizing those who use their phones a great deal more than you do.

While LMS as a standard service offering would be new to Southwestern Bell Telephone's Texas customers, it isn't new in Texas. Customers of three other companies in the Lone Star State — General Telephone, Continental Telephone and Central Tel — are taking advantage of LMS. And like us, other companies — United Tel, Palo Pinto Tel and Mustang Tel — have requests pending with the PUC.

Customer interest

We're proposing the service because we've known there has been a need for optional pricing in Texas. Last summer we conducted a survey to determine customer interest in LMS.

We found that interest was strong, particularly among those customers making fewer local calls or shorter-duration calls. The results also showed that customers want wider choices in how they pay for service by having the ability to match their cost to their calling needs.

At this time, PUC hearings on LMS are set to begin Sept. 24 in Austin. You can look for more information about LMS in the special insert in your telephone bill.

Opinion

This opinion page is meant to be a sharing of ideas, not just the writer's views. It's objective is to stimulate thoughts of readers about the positive aspects of the Eagle Lake/Colorado County Community.

Perot battles against educators

Dallas multimillionaire H. Ross Perot revealed last week he has spent $500,000 of his own money in formulating his select committee's education reform plan.

And he warned he will spend more — however much it will take — to make sure teachers don't water down his reforms when the Legislature meets this summer to raise their salaries.

Perot is taking on just about the entire state education establishment, including the State Board of Education and several teacher groups, and predicts a battle against that alliance of educators.

"If you water down the system (of proposed reforms) to put through a pay raise, you play a trick on the people. I won't be a part of that," he said.

Governor Mark White has promised to call the Legislature back into special session about June to consider raising taxes to raise teacher salaries and pay for reforms.

But that promise may not be kept, if Perot's committee continues to take its time in revising a teacher pay scale for Texas. Unless Gov. White calls the session before the panel winds up its report, the delays are moving the vote on a tax hike closer and closer to November Election Day.-- And lawmakers are reportedly balking at deciding on a tax hike just before election time.

White's tax plan

Meanwhile, Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis gently but firmly urged Gov. White to begin preparing his tax proposals to assure ample time for scrutiny by the lawmakers.

White has promised to draft a specific tax bill, but whether it will be a sales tax, a gasoline tax, or a tobacco and alcohol tax is yet unclear.

Lewis' reminder that the time is drawing near for a specific plan was described by some as a politely worded challenge. White tried to rush a hastily prepared tax bill through the Legislature's waning days and found himself stalemated in the House Ways and Means Committee.

What's the cost?

White has been holding off drafting the tax plan, because he wants to see the final cost recommendation of Perot's panel.

No sense in writing a plan to raise revenues until one knows how much one needs to raise, he argues.

But Lewis asserts the House and Senate members, will need ample time, more than 60 days, to study the tax bill before they can vote on it.

Thus, time drags on and Perot may not have to spend another half-a-million dollars to kill a tax bill. The longer he drags out his committee's tenure, the greater the odds that Gov. White will postpone the matter until the Legislature meets in regular session next January — after Election Day.

Alligator hunting

Alligator shoes and purses may come back into vogue in the near future if the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department takes the retile off the endangered species list.

The state agency is holding public hearings to set up rules for alligator hunting, possibly as soon as this fall. The last alligator harvest was in 1969. Since then, riding in comfort on the endangered species list, the state's alligator population has reached over 100,000.

Prisons less crowded

A population that is declining in Texas is the state prison inmate count.

Two years ago the state was buying tents to house more than 4,000 inmates in the overcrowded prison system. Last week the Justice Department reported the Texas prison system is now operating at 91 percent of its population capacity.

The reason for the decline is an early release program which has brought the count down from about 38,000 to 35,000.

Inquiry sought

A Dallas House member wants the Appropriations Committee to conduct a special investigation into whether some state agency officials have lied in their budget requests and then cheated on spending.

Dallas Democrat Steve Wolens maintains he has seen clear abuse, but the committee chairman turned down his request to order the review, or to vote on the proposal.

Clayton's papers

Former Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton, who served a record eight years with the gavel, has given the personal papers chronicling his 20-year political career to the library of his alma mater, Texas A&M University.

"I had no choice but to give them to Texas A&M. My wife said she'd kill me if I brought them all home," he cracked.

The documents which fill 280 boxes are being cataloged for research in the Aggie archives. Included are videotapes of legislative action.

The Sheriff's office would like to remind citizens that many hot checks are being passed to merchants in Colorado County. Be real cautious when accepting a check from someone you do not know. Be sure to obtain information on the subject you receive the check from. The best information you can obtain is a driver's license number. With a driver's license number, law enforcement personnel will be able to assist in locating the subject in the event they give a worthless check.
