Grade point system, teacher appraisals discussed by board

The Rice district school board finished its six-hour meeting last night and took action on several items not reported in last week's Headlight.

After a long discussion, the board voted to change the explanation of Rice High School's grade point system concerning regular classes and the more difficult premium-level courses.

The board approved a new grading system, which will be implemented in the fall of 1985. The new system will be based on a half-day basis (meaning must have taught two academic

*Approved the criteria to be used to select teachers who qualify for career ladder merit pay. It will be based on previous satisfactory evaluations in the Rice district, years of experience (up to five), credit for holding a master's degree and evaluations by the school principal or career ladder committee about the teacher's performance. The final decision is based on a point system.

*Accepted the resignation of Garwood teacher Isaac Berry.

*Hired Cherry Lynn Johnson, teacher at Eagle Lake Primary replacing Marie Arps, who is transferring to Eagle Lake Middle School.

The two appraisals done about the same time are combined into one evaluation. The two evaluations for the school year are combined into one annual report on the teacher's performance.

In other business, the board:

*Voted to require cheerleaders and twirlers to have a 1.0 grade point average in high school and a grade average of 75 at the junior high to be eligible. The administration had recommended a 1.5 average for high school, and an 80 for junior high.

*Discussed, but took no action on whether a graduating senior, in order to qualify as an honors graduate, be required to take a certain number of premium courses. Last summer a rule was established that 1985-86 graduates must earn at least a 2.7 grade point average before qualifying as an honors graduate. According to law, the grade-point average of honors students cannot be released, except for the valedictorian and

Benge, Mader attend two-day conference

Major Benge of Eagle Lake and Mader of Garwood were among the 48 elementary school principals from across the state who recently attended a two-day conference in San Marcos, Texas, at the Southwest Texas State University Department of Education.

Part of the SWT educational administration program's continuing conference series, the program brought together in the casual atmosphere of T.A. Ranch in Wimberly public school administrators, visiting consultants and members of the SWT faculty. The program gave participants the opportunity to exchange mutually beneficial insights and experience in modern school administration.
