License and fee hikes to fund $36 billion budget

The Texas House of Representatives last week approved a two-year $196 million increase in license and fee instead of a tax hike last week to fund a $36 billion budget.

While the Senate still struggles to complete its version of fiscal outlays, the House leadership breathed a sigh of relief after clearing the second hurdle in a politically difficult obstacle course.

The past year's drop in foreign oil prices has staggered state coffers, which depend on revenues from sales of Texas oil to fund state government.

As constructed by the House, the 86-87 budget includes a 16 percent increase in aid to local school districts and almost 30 percent to highways and public transportation, funding helped by the tax hike on gasoline passed in special session last summer.

Fee, license increases

Some of the fee and license increases are $2 more for a driver's license, $35 for a car license, $15 more for a personalized license plate, $30 more for youth camp inspection, and $5,500 for a surface mining permit.

Speaker Gil Lewis described the fee hikes as an attempt to cover the services the state has to perform, paid for by the persons who will use those services.

West Texas legislators have stalled the water bill until the long-planned dam and reservoir, a deemed vital to economic growth, were cleared.

The project is to be built entirely with local money from bonding authority of the water district in Big Spring.

The Texas Water Plan, tentatively passed in two versions, has been stalled in conference committee in past weeks, but is expected to make progress now.

PUC goals

The good news for the Public Utility Commission was the Senate confirmed reappointment of feisty legal counsel Jim Boyle, the lawyer who loves to take on conglomerates.

The bad news was that because of a miscalculation by a PUC accountant, Southwestern Bell Telephone received nearly $50 million in undervalue rate increases. The staffer said he overestimated Bell's need after he used an incorrect method at the urging of three Bell executives.

Stacy dam okayed

The impetus for a successful Texas Water Plan, omnibus legislation to provide for water needs across the state, was reignited last week when the Texas Water Commission issued a permit for construction of controversial Stacy Dam in West Texas.

New agriculture aide

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, recently ousted by the Legislature and targeted for defeat by Texas Republicans, answered his critics last week by announcing he will add Texas Farmers Union chief Mike Moeller in June as an associate deputy. Moeller, a long-time activist for family farms and ranches, has also chaired the national executive committee.

Moeller brings more to use than Bernie Kosar will bring to the Cleveland Browns. He's got the stature, the savvy, and the stroke to be agriculture commissioner himself," Hightower said.

Indeed, Moeller has been mentioned often as a candidate for the post who could unite various rural factions as well as appeal to urban voters, but Moeller has remained a loyal and trusted Hightower ally.

Benefit dance for Lifeline

A country-western dance held at the Eagle Lake Community Center on April 13 for Lifeline was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present.

The Texas Armadillo (Ralph Herrera) and his Lone Star bottle (Melinda Fernandez) provided a delightful dollar dance for each person.

Dr. Jose Ugarte gave an informative speech about Lifeline. His explanation of what Lifeline is and how it is to be used in our community was provided. Dr. Ugarte also expressed the great need for Mexican-American people to become members of our ambulance crew to help in conjunction with the Lifeline program.

The dance raised $519 after expenses toward the purchase of another Lifeline unit. Future benefits are planned.

Much thanks is extended to the sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Torrez, Rudy Lopez and Mrs. Mary Saucedo, and others who gave money for expenses.

Pilot Club president, Mrs. Nancy Lang and T. Lang; projects coordinator, Mrs. Lucille Lang and husband; and Mrs. Gwen Paschall, vice president, were present for the enjoyable evening. Ambulance personnel attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Johnson. Mr. Johnson bid the highest for a barbecue pit which as made by Ralph Herrera from car rims.
