Comptroller Bob Bullock's deficit forecast questioned

Lake cooks making stew, several state officials moved last week to throw their own economic curses into the boiling cauldron of a special session.

Gov. Mark White called for budget cuts, even the abolishing of several state agencies which he would name later.

"Texas Banking Commissioner James Sexton started drafting a bill to allow out-of-state ownership of Texas banks, and

"Sponsors of the horse racing, dog racing and lottery bills called for the Legislature to consider those issues.

White, who sets the agenda, will probably widen the special call once it appears that the necessary budget cuts will be made.

Lawmakers determine how much revenue remains to be raised to avoid an estimated $3.5 billion deficit.

But as pressure built last week, some lawmakers questioned the accuracy of the deficit forecast made by Comptroller Bob Bullock. It was reported that a leaked interoffice memo revealed some of Bullock's top economists advised him the shortage was $700 million less, in their opinion.

Bullock staunchly defended his numbers. His final figure is a worst case scenario that could improve if Texas wins several court cases.

And, Bullock said, the state treasury could stay solvent until January's regular session by piecing together various state funds and delaying some large scheduled payments.

support from Reps. Gerald Getzowid, R-Mason, and Randall Riley, R-Austin, who applauded Mauro's management of the Texas General Land Office as historically one of the best.

With the move, the two House Republicans backed away from GOP candidate M.D. Anderson Jr., a dance hall owner from Seven Points, who is not related to the family of Houston cancer hospital fame.

White opposed

In a turn to the opposite direction, a Democratic state representative from Beaumont announced he will work against Mark White's reelection by asking minorities not to vote for White.

State Rep. Al Price said White has not appointed enough black regents at Lamar University despite numerous requests. White's campaign office responded the governor has appointed more blacks to state boards and commissions than all past governors combined.

Price stopped short of endorsing White's opponent, Bill Clements.

Interstate banking

The Eden Bank was closed last week by Banking Commissioner Sexton, the 13th Texas bank to fail this year because of bad oil and agriculture loans.

Sexton immediately renewed his plea for Texas to repeal its constitutional ban on interstate banking.

Some banks need outside capital, and branch banking should also be permitted to allow assumptions of liabilities of failed banks, he said.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Beware of false prophecy

To the Editor:

This is the second year we have had Bro. Crawford come to Eagle Lake known as The New Beginning, a tent revival last year on Lake Avenue and this year on Fourth Street in the black community (the flat section of town).

Be it known that doctrine of salvation is not according to the doctrine of Jesus Christ. It was embarrassing to see a young man run all over the tent, then "knock" it down with the Bible in his hand held out to receive the Holy Ghost.

Many other things have happened which I have not mentioned. I have eye witnesses that this is true. I have two mechanics repairing Bro. Bert Foster's tent machine, cut from Houston. Bro. Crawford of Houston is the cause of this young man's troubles. On Saturday, July 12, fees for the wrecker service from Rosenberg to Eagle Lake was $40 and labor and parts for the car totaled $170. Bro. Crawford hasn't offered Bro. Foster any assistance. The sum of $210 is being paid by the Main Street Baptist Church. Let us be watchful for anti-Christ moving in. Matt 7:15, 1st John 2:18.

This is an appeal to the public, not a complaint. Although it is a "shame" to perform all activities such as preaching, testimony, saving, healing, blessings, and knocking down for salvation until after midnight, young people are confused about such actions.
