Anderson named to all-star volleyball team

Sherry Anderson, senior at East Bernard High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anderson, has been selected as a member on the East squad to play in the Whataburger All-State volleyball game in Austin on Friday, July 24.

She was recognized by the Texas Girls Coaches Association at a recent press conference.

Anderson, selected by the Texas High School volleyball coaches as a member of the all-state team, led the East Bernard Brahmanettes to the Class 2A Region IV volleyball tournament last year, three District 28-2A titles and to three state tournaments.

Norman Pullin, East Bernard coach for the past 20 years, was selected the assistant coach for the team. Pullin has led varsity volleyball squads to eight state championships and has coached nine volleyball all-star performers.

Anderson's selection marks Pullin's second consecutive trip to the all-star game as a member of the East staff and fourth appearance overall.

The single engine airplane crashed Saturday morning near the airport, the resulting wreckage presented a grim scene. Although it looks like the plane may have been ripped apart in a rescue effort, that was not the case. The pilot and passenger were thrown into the field, and this is how the plane looked before federal investigators began their work.

Airplane crumpled in crash

After Saturday's airplane crash that killed a Houston couple near the Eagle Lake Municipal Airport, several versions of what happen are being discussed in the area.

A federal investigator said Tuesday in Fort Worth that the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) had been on the scene but that a ruling on the cause of the crash would be made later in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burton of Houston were the lone occupants of the single-engine Grumman American aircraft that crashed in a dormant rice field about a quarter mile west and north of the main runway. The airplane apparently was making an approach to land at the airport but decided to circle around for some reason. Witnesses said they saw the plane on an upward path, heard the engine speed up then quit. The plane then nosed into the field.

The airplane did not slide more than 10 or 20 feet from its first impact point on the dry ground. The occupants were thrown clear of the crash, and were somewhat disfigured.

Tuesday, NTSB investigator Bob Dickens said from his Fort Worth office that the federal agency is looking at all possibilities of the cause of the crash. He said the possibility that the airplane ran out of fuel, or had a mechanical malfunction, are on the list. Papers found in Mr. Burton's wallet indicated they had purchased fuel in Kerrville the day before the crash. Dickens also said fuel was found in the engine, but that was not unusual. There was no appearance of fuel spilled around the crash site, nor was there any fire.

The crash was said to have occurred at 9:58 a.m. Saturday. Sheriff's deputy James Brooks, one of the first officers on the scene, found Mr. Burton's watch on the ground between the crash and the body. It was stopped at that time. Chief deputy Bill Esterling also was on the scene, was a DFS officer and various firms.

The airplane was so mangled in the crash, it was hard to identify its shape from the cockpit area forward. One wing was snapped off and stopped about 50 feet in front of the wreckage. Mrs. Burton was about 40 feet from the plane and Mr. Burton was about 20 feet from the plane.

Investigators said the was the pilot, and that she held an instrument rating for three years. Mr. Burton also was a licensed pilot. The aircraft was registered in her name, but a spokesman on the scene Sunday said the plane was owned by Fletcher Aviation at Hobby Field and was leased to her. Fletcher crewmen removed the wreckage Sunday afternoon.

Immediately after the crash authorities notified the FAA. They in turn called in the NTSB. The Eagle Lake Volunteer Fire Department as well as the ambulance corps unit here went to the scene but when the deaths were confirmed, the ambulance returned to the station. While several firms reported to the site, firemen Ronnie Miller and T. Webb remained over there most of the day.

Problems with indictments? State thinks maybe

The pre-trial hearing last week in the State of Texas vs. Sheriff Jim Broussard case spent most of its time hearing defense arguments to throw out the three indictments against the local lawman.

Special prosecutor Jim Vollers agreed with defense attorney Houston Munson when he said there might be problems with the formation of the two indictments that charge Broussard with tampering with county government records. The defense arguments against the third indictment, which charged Broussard with misapplying government funds, did not bring the same response from Vollers.

No rulings on those motions were made by special judge Thomas Blackwell, who recessed the hearing until May 21.

Last week's hearing was called some time ago to handle the usual pre-trial motions. Munson had filed a number of items with the court, such as motions for discovery and inspection of records, etc. Blackwell granted the defense the opportunity to look at the names of grand jury witnesses, but when it came to the depositions from district attorney Bud Kirkendall and former chief of staff deputy Buford Ashley, the court did not rule.

Munson said several times that he wanted the depositions from Kirkendall because he said the DA has said he would testify "against" Broussard. Munson wanted to know what testimony he would have. Kirkendall has told The Headlight and other area newspapers he thought he would be called by Munson to testify in the case, but did not use the words "testify against" Broussard.

Munson also said he wanted to talk to Ashley because the defense believed the former deputy, who now is an Eagle Lake police officer, had illegal contact with grand jury members outside of the grand jury room.

The defense also asked to be provided with a copy of the grand jury testimony, because it feels some of the grand jury action was improper. Again Vollers said a motion to disclose all grand jury records was improper, and the judge told Munson he needed to be more specific. As it turns out, not all grand jury testimony was transcribed. Judge Vollers withheld ruling on the motion.
