Bullock will run for lieutenant governor

With the '90 election three years away, Comptroller Bob Bullock took time from bird hunting in South Texas last Thursday to announce he will run for lieutenant governor. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat, previously said he will not seek re-election.

Bullock, the state's chief fiscal officer since 1975, made public his plans in a two-sentence statement which said he intended "to run for lieutenant governor in 1990. All visitors are welcome."

A spokesman told reporters Bullock is convinced he has been comptroller long enough. Hobby's decision not to run again prompted the comptroller's surprise announcement, he added.

No committee needed
Even though it's the way outgoing Chief Justice John Hill, a Democrat, wants his replacement selected, GOP Gov. Bill Clements said that he, not a committee, will make the appointment.

Hill has campaigned long and hard to have elected judges appointed by a committee on the basis of merit, and his out-of-reason for stepping down in mid-term is to continue lobbying that issue.

But even though Clements supported the concept last session, he won't use Hill's departure to make a trial run of the merit selection proposal.

The new chief justice will likely be a Republican who will run for election after his appointed term. Two sitting Democratic justices have already tossed their hats into the ring.

Energy politics
Long-time Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent seems to be a handy target these days for lots of people interested in energy politics.

He needs newly appointed Republican Kent Hance's vote to win the panel's gavel over fellow Democrat John Sharp, and it may result in a game of hardball and name-calling politics between the two.

State Capitol Highlights

By Lyndell Williams

Last week, Houston Republican Ed Emmett, a former House member, announced he was going after Nugent's seat in the '88 election. Originally, it was Houston Democrat Clint Hackney who was eyeing Nugent's spot, but now he's running for Hance's seat.

For now, Hance is seen as the swing vote on the three-member panel, and there is speculation about what would induce him to vote with Nugent or Sharp. If Nugent, a conservative Democrat, switched parties, would that do it? Or, if Hance held out to be chairman with Nugent's support, could he make it?

Wayward $21 million
State officials were wondering last week if the story of a wayward $21 million in Texas Housing Agency bonds would diminish voter confidence in the massive bond proposals on the November 3 ballot.

The $21 million would up in an estimated West Indies bank and was the indirect source of a $1.8 million construction loan in Indiana. By last week, most of the money was back in the Fort Worth trustee bank. The remainder should be home soon.

Following the incident, State Treasurer Ann Richards said the treasury should act as trustee and handle any state agency's unpaid bond money to avoid a repeat of the near disaster.

Thus far, no one has implied impropriety, just a mixup in communication about investing the money.

Pari-mutuel betting
To date, more than a dozen counties, including Harris, Bexar and Tarrant, have placed the pari-mutuel betting local option issue on their ballots.

A recent Texas Poll indicates 69 percent of Texas voters favor the referendum.

Supporters plan to spend $1.6 million to pass the issue, and have lined up singers Willie Nelson, Jimmy Dean and George Strait for September hunting and outdoor sports, booking agents, wildlife resource professionals and others intensely interested in the business end of duck and goose hunting in the Southeastern and South Central United States who want to attend this special conference.

Pre-registration for this unique regional business development conference is strongly recommended as attendance will be limited and early registrants can save $15 a person if received by September 18, September 18. The fee covers the costs of the duck refreshments, the Friday evening social, the Saturday luncheon and a copy of the conference proceedings. A special accompanying spouse rate of $35 is available and includes all of the above except a copy of the proceedings. All registrations received after September 18 is $60.

Complete agenda and registration materials are still available. To receive this conference packet, contact Willie Younger, Matagorda County Extension Agent-Marine, Room 326 Courthouse, Bay City, Texas 77414; (409) 244-7650. Some say the new industry will generate $1.2 billion a year, create 8,000 construction jobs and 11,000 permanent jobs including breeding and training facilities.

Troubled state coffers will reap an estimated $110 million in taxes, five cents from every dollar wagered.
