Fire Prevention poster winners named
The children in the third grade made posters in observance of Fire Prevention Week. The winners were Carrie Engstrom and Jason Sanders.

Garwood cheerleaders

These calm looking young ladies are Jennifer Wied and Jill Janish. During regular school days they walk the halls in relative peace and quiet. But if a football game is scheduled, a mysterious change comes over these two. They wear bells on their shoes and can be seen shaking pom-poms. They are the cheerleaders for the Garwood School. They help to raise spirit at pep rallies to a frenzied pitch. The lead cheers and encourage fans at home and away games. So don't let their mild-mannered appearance fool you. At any moment they could pop out of the nearest phone booth as "Super-Cheerleaders."

The picture above shows how the first grade class of Garwood wished all students and teachers a "Happy Halloween" in the story "The Five Little Bats."

First grade makes language arts fun

The Garwood first graders have been having fun with letter sounds. Alliteration is the use of a succession of words with the same initial sound. We would like to share our examples of alliterations with you.

Joe jumps jack-o-lanterns. Danya does delicious donuts. Letitia licks lemon lollipops. Jerica jumps jungle gyms. Amy announces April. Afton Alcahe can carry carrots. Jeremy jumps jack-o-lanterns.

Paragraph contest winners

During the pep rally, Coach Michalka read the best "Raided Paragraphs" in the third grade's "Raided Paragraph Contest." Winners are from left: first place winner, Katie Woodruff; second place Carrie Engstrom; tied for third were Cody Cerny and La Sonya Montgomery.
