Lawsuit filed to end segregation in Texas colleges

Lawyers for Hispanics and students suing to end segregation in colleges say that Hispanics and Black taxpayers are footing the bill for white students across Texas and getting nothing in return.

The lawsuit swings the reform spotlight on the Texas higher education system, the same spotlight that has recently been focused on Texas prisons, mental institutions and public education.

Whatever the outcome, observers contend the system will no longer be the same.

The lawsuit filed last week alleges the state has failed to live up to commitments to upgrade education in South Texas and bring more minorities into universities and colleges.

The lawsuit was filed by attorneys for the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Educational Fund based in San Francisco. Other plaintiffs are two strong Mexican-American groups: LULAC and the American GI Forum, as well as six minority student university organizations.

State Capitol Highlights By Lyndell Williams

Promise broken

The plaintiffs seek a court-ordered restructuring of funding for Texas colleges with high minority enrollment and higher minority recruitment at major universities.

They claim that minority students are concentrated in community colleges and less prestigious four-year colleges.

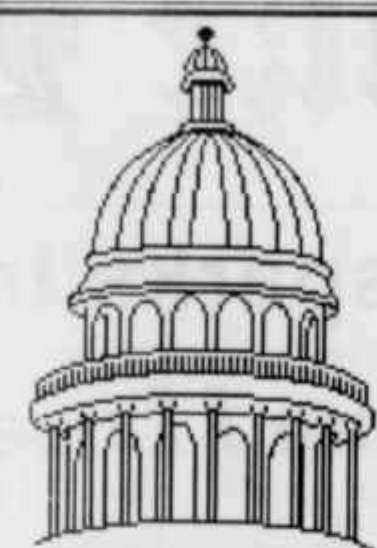

This polarization, they contend, is a broken promise. It does not meet the goals of a 1983 five-year designation plan worked out with the state and federal officials.

State officials, for the most part, are withholding comment while they review the allegations.

Mental health lawsuit

Another lawsuit filed earlier seeks to force the state to hold judicial hearings for each person involuntarily committed to a mental institution under state laws now held unconstitutional.

State records indicate some 2,900 mentally disabled persons in state mental hospitals and schools could be affected, or about one in four patients. Lawyers for the plaintiffs say they believe almost all of them have never had their involuntary commitments reviewed by a court.

The state district court is deliberating whether to hear this case as a class action.

School finance policy
The state judge who ruled the school finance system unfair urged school officials to oppose capping local enrichment.

State District Judge Harley Clark, who expects the Texas Supreme Court to eventually rule on the case, said lawmakers can consider repealing the prohibition of a state property tax or capping the amount local school districts can spend per student.

Compliance with his court order to restructure funding by 1990 will cost $4 billion.

Other highlights
Comptroller Bob Bullock says his office will waive filing deadlines and penalties for businesses which lost most records during the November tornadoes which swept through Texas. His office will also assist in reconstructing records.

State agency officials last week instructed 70 black, Hispanic and women professionals on how to compete for lucrative state business contracts.

Texas will get 1,500 new Texas Army National Guard spots after a restructuring of national units.

University of Texas regents are seeking a doubling of tuition rates for graduate business students and a 50 percent hike for law students.

San Antonio chiropractor Terry Peters will seek the GOP nod to oppose U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-San Antonio.

When a contribution is made to the American Heart Association, an appropriate card from the donor to the recipient is sent by AHA. The recipient also receives a thank you card to mail to the donor acknowledging the donor's thoughtfulness.

The amount of the contribution is not disclosed to the recipient and the contribution can be from one individual or from many, such as a family or group of employees.

Parent volunteers holds craft festival
Sixty adults and children turned out for the Parent Aide Program's craft festival and fun day held at the Fairgrounds in Eagle Lake, Texas, November 14. The festival was a huge success!

Children were busy with activities (cookie baking, races, holiday crafts, volleyball, etc.) while adults created beautiful holiday items (straw wreaths and popcorn baskets) decorated with dried flowers and ribbons, stockings decorated for family photos taken at the Fair, a variety of tree ornaments, and delicious Christmas desserts.

Afterwards a delicious spaghetti luncheon was served to all and the day closed with everyone joining in the singing of a few well-known Christmas carols. The day was held for families served by the Parent Aide Program by the PAP's volunteers and staff. The day was made possible by generous donation from individuals, churches, merchants and businesses.

The Parent Aide Program works with parents in Austin, Colorado and Waller counties who have been referred by Children's Protective Services. Volunteers, who receive training and supervision, actually deliver the program. Each volunteer is matched with one family with whom he or she visits weekly for approximately one year. The volunteer parent aide supports and encourages the parent, models good parenting and promotes the parent's growth as a parent and as a person. It is a rewarding, caring and interesting program which attributes its success to its wonderful and generous volunteers.

Training for new volunteers will be held in February. If you are interested, the Parent Aide Program would love to hear from you. Call now to inquire about becoming a parent aide. Call (713) 749-7192 or 749-1211. Fifteen new volunteers are needed for the February training. Requirements include that volunteers have parenting experience or some other experience of working with children, tolerance, caring, patience, their own vehicle, 3-5 hours per week to commit to the program for a year. Volunteers will be reimbursed for their mileage.

Teen health fair planned Jan. 9

Rice High School's Home Economics Department and Future Homemakers chapter are sponsoring a teen health fair on Saturday, January 9 at the Eagle Lake Middle School.

Several hundred junior and senior high students, their parents and other interested adults have been invited to attend. The emphasis of the project is on maintaining good health for that may be considered a person's greatest wealth.

Plans are to have an "open house" from 9:10-10 a.m., followed by "booster shots" (workshops) from 10:30 to noon. A well known speaker will offer a general presentation from noon to 1 p.m.

Advisory committee members are also assisting with the plans. The chairperson of the advisory committee is Dr. Russell Thomas.
