Raider Review Continued from Page Five

Who's zat?

By JENNIFER MADER

Although this baby certainly doesn't look like the wild type, looks can sometimes be deceiving. Some guessers this week were sent on a wild goose chase after learning that this baby grew up to be a faculty member at Rice High.

Many guessers somehow thought this baby turned out to be computer teacher Joe Wendel. Those included Tess Taylor, Felicia Hearn, Michael Rhodes and Becky Faichtinger. Sorry guys, you made a "syntax error!" Another popular wrong guess was Michael Vornsand, who teaches algebra and geometry classes. Those who could not add 2 and 2 together to come up with a correct answer were Melissa Perry, Dominique Isenhower and Tanya Castro. Government teacher Tom Davidson was another often picked name for this face. That guess was made by Jason Priesmeyer, Rene Campos and Cathy Castillo. Come on now, don't be so historic!

Soon, however, the true identity spread like wildfire after guessers were given a little pep talk. Those on the winning team included Keith Korenek, Sher Sunderman, Scott Richter, Janie Botard, Noe Belmares, Bennie Castillo and Bonny McMurrough. Yes indeed, that face belongs to Coach Don Wild, who has coached football and baseball and taught Business and Office Management (BOM) and Typing at Rice for two years.

Laura Appelt accepted in honor society

Laura Lynn Appelt, sophomore elementary education major at Texas A&M University, was inducted into Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society during recent induction ceremonies.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national college scholastic honor society. Its goal is to encourage and reward high scholastic attainment among freshmen in institutions of higher learning. All students who maintained a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 or better during their freshman year are eligible for membership in Phi Eta Sigma.

Laura is the daughter of Bill and Lynda Appelt of Eagle Lake.

The week before Christmas: excitement stirs at Rice

By LAURIE ABEL
(with a little help from the newspaper staff)

'Twas the week before Christmas and all through the school,
the excitement was building
as the weather got cool.
The newspaper staff was busy writing their articles with care, so Mr. Hajovsky would not give them his evil stare.
The seniors pretended to listen to what Mr. Davidson said, while visions of New Year's partyin' danced in their heads.
Mr. Vornsand with his yardstick in hand
hit his desk with a slap,
to wake up his juniors
from their first period nap.
When out in the Commons
there arose such a clatter, all the students sprung from their desks to see what was the matter.
Away from his office, Mr.
Grahmann flew like a flash,
only to see the Christmas tree
fall down with a crash!
Mr. Grahmann started searching although he had a hunch.
He suspected Marla Thomas
in her race to lunch.
It seems that seniors '90
have left their mark once more,
as he turned to see the sophomores carrying the tree out the door.
The "Little Angels" (freshmen) who knew no better brought the tree back
with an apology letter.
The sophomores
got off scot free,
and the freshmen
took the blame as you can see.
By the way
a word to the wise - don't believe any of this 'cause
it's been a fun pack of lies.
Have a Merry Christmas
and get plenty of rest,
because when you get back
you will have six-weeks test

Also during the meeting members helped make up cheer baskets for local people. Hostesses for the evening were Linda Bubela and Monica Lehrer. The members enjoyed refreshments of ribbon sandwiches, Christmas cheese ball, avocado dip, chips, strawberry cheese cake, amaretto cream cheese and wassail.

The sorority held its Christmas social at Circle G Danceland in Altair on Friday, December 11.

Thriller

Fast paced action! Suspense! Spine tingling drama! All these exciting elements were to be had at the Garwood gym on Monday, December 7. The Hornets from Louise rolled into town to play our own Raiders. The large turnout of fans saw our hometown boys win a heart-stopping contest by one point in overtime.

Early on the game was a low-scoring affair. The Hornets made good use of a size advantage to keep the Raiders from scoring inside. Their bulk and height led to many blocked shots and forced the Raiders to shoot more from the perimeter. After three quarters Garwood held a shaky 12-10 lead.

But in the fourth period, things really heated up. The score seesawed back and forth with the P... scoring a bucket with mer... left to throw the game into o... At the end of regulation, the score stood tied at 22.

The lightning pace continued in the extra three minute period with Louise scoring first. Matthew Gallagher went to the line after being fouled and made one of two free throws. This left the Raiders one point behind with less than a minute to play. Derek Sewell swished a jump shot in the final fifteen seconds to give Garwood a one point advantage.

The drama didn't end there though. With three ticks showing on the clock, a Louise player went to the free throw line with the opportunity to tie or win the game. Fortunately, the first shot of a 1 and 1 chance missed, time expired, and joyous fans rushed on court to congratulate their heroes.

Derek Sewell pumped in 13 points for the Raiders, Andrew Castaneda added 8, Gallagher made 3, and Jesse George chipped in 1 to complete the scoring. Ragen Stienke, Mark Johnson and Ken Henderson all contributed greatly to the victory by re-bounding, handling the ball and playing stingly defense. Way to go team!

In the first game that same evening, the Garwood "B" team faced off against Louise's seventh grade team. This was the "B" team's first game as a separate unit and they performed admirably. The Raiders held their own in the first half, falling behind 19-8.

In the second half however, a lack of reserves and hot-shooting Hornets took their toll as the home team succumbed 37-14. The team consisted of five players who had to play the entire game. Shan Stovall led in scoring with 6 points, Terry Carter added 4, Garland Axel and Michael Ramos each scored 2. Jason Eggemeyer also contributed to the team as a rebounder and defensiveman.

WHEN DENTURES NEED A CHECKUP
For most people, it takes a while to get used to wearing full dentures. Once they achieve a degree of comfort and usefulness, you may think you no longer need help from your dentist. Far from true!
The tissues on which dentures rest are changing constantly. Sometimes the ridges that support dentures recede and shrink, causing the dentures to loosen. When this happens, your dentures will have to be adjusted to fit properly again.
Dentures have to be kept clean and free of deposits or they can have an adverse effect on the health of the mouth. This is another reason for regular checkups. A minor irritation can cause infection and inflammation of the gums.
Like any device that is subject to constant wear, it has to be properly maintained. Occasionally, dentures must be relined, and if your mouth undergoes major changes, it may be necessary for you to be fitted with new dentures. Full dentures solve the problem of missing teeth, but they need periodic checkups, just like real teeth do.

Valgene W. Lehmann

Valgene W. Lehmann, who passed away in Kingsville on December 12, 1987, was a leader in the study of Texas wildlife for more than fifty years. He was one of the first Texans to use factual information about the history and environmental requirements of such sporting species as bobwhite quail in order to develop practical methods to scientifically manage its wild populations. Lehmann was responsible for the training of numerous field assistants, many of whom also became noted for their work in wildlife research and game management. His ability as a keen observer, as a tireless worker, and as an ingenious designer of research methods set a remarkable pace for those who followed.

Upon graduation from the University of Texas in the mid-1930s, Val Lehmann, a native of Brenham, worked initially for the U.S. Biological Survey (now part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) as a waterfowl biologist at the Bear River Marshes of Utah. Shortly thereafter he was called back to Texas as field biologist for the newly-established Texas Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Texas A&M, the forerunner of the modern-day Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences.

Lehmann immediately began a field study of the fast-disappearing Attwater prairie chicken, whose ancestral home on the Gulf Coastal prairies had been seriously depleted by ranching and farming interests. He began by first surveying the entire range of this vanishing bird from southwestern Louisiana to the Texas Coastal Bend. He found highest surviving populations to be in the areas of Victoria and Eagle Lake, chosing in 1937 to concentrate his basic field studies on the Bernard Prairie near the latter community. There he had landowner cooperation from the Duncan and Wintermann families and field assistants, Hilbert R. "Bandy" Siegler and Rollin H. Baker, plus incredible help from that uncanny outdoor observer, the late Game Warden Thomas. T. Waddell of Eagle Lake, whose achievements in wildlife conservation and restoration are well known to several generations of sportsmen in Coastal Texas.

Val Lehmann's classic 65-page monograph detailing the life history of the Attwater prairie chicken together with recommendations for preserving the birds was published as a government bulletin in 1941. It was chiefly Lehmann's fundamental work that inspired conservation agencies and the public to save the present remnant populations of these prairie chickens. This study also initiated the efforts which led to the establishment near Eagle Lake of the Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In 1940, Val Lehmann became a regional wildlife biologist for the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission (now Texas Parks and Wildlife Department). From his headquarters at Victoria he began his longtime study of the bobwhite quail and other wildlife of the Rio Grande Plain. After his WWII service as a naval officer, he returned to continue his South Texas field studies; this time, however, as a wildlife manager for the King Ranch with headquarters in Kingsville.

He was given abundant opportunity by interested King Ranch officials to determine the wildlife values of various kinds of food and cover plants and to provide other habitat essentials to produce maximum sustained yields of bobwhite quail, turkey, white-tailed deer, and other wildlife. He published research findings in national scientific journals, wrote numerous popular articles, addressed audiences of scientists, sportsmen and other outdoor enthusiasts to report the results of his studies, and finally, as a career culmination, published a masterful account on his favorite gamebird "Bobwhites in the Rio Grange Plain of Texas" (Texas A&M University Press, 1984).

With Valgene W. Lehmann's passing, field biology has lost a pioneer who helped modernize Texas wildlife conservation programs by popularizing the need for the public to understand more thoroughly the life history and environmental requirements of bobwhite quail, white-tailed deer, and other important animals. Thus, having an awareness of the essentials for game species survival plus providing proper law enforcement to regulate harvests, both promoted vigorously by Val Lehmann in his lifetime, Texas wildlife has indeed prospered.

Funeral services for Lehmann were held Tuesday, December 15 in Bellville.

Mrs. Edna Ray Nohavitz

Mrs. Edna Ray Nohavitz, 73, of Eagle Lake, died on December 13 at the Heritage House Nursing Home in Eagle Lake after a sudden illness. She was born in Ramsey on March 17, 1914, a daughter of J.D. and Della Parker Alley. She had been a lifetime resident of this area and a member of the First Baptist Church and Daughters of the Republic of Texas. She retired from the Eagle Lake Community Hospital after many years of service as a dietician.

Funeral services were held from the Dulany Funeral Home Chapel at 3 p.m. Tuesday, December 15 with Rev. Melburn Sibley, pastor of First Baptist Church of Eagle Lake, officiating. Burial followed at Lakeside Cemetery in Eagle Lake.

She was preceded in death by her parents and three brothers, Felton Alley, who was killed in action during World War II, Earl Alley and John R. Alley.

Survivors include her husband of over 49 years, Eddie Nohavitz of Eagle Lake; a son, Ray Nohavitz of San Antonio; two sisters, Aileen Glick of Eagle Lake and Jean Marsalia of Round Rock; two brothers, Wiley Alley of Ramsey and J.D. Alley of Houston, and a host of nieces, nephews and loved ones.

Pallbearers were Howard Nohavitz, Billy Stiles, Robert Samuel Martin, James Brune Sr., Hoy DeShazo, R.E. Altman.

Sympathy is extended to the family in their loss.

Hats off to a special man

We, the sponsors and members of the STAND coalition, would like to take this time to acknowledge a man who has been a big help to us. This man is very busy, but takes time out to stop by and check in on us.

He had donated his services to us in every way possible. Without his help our organization wouldn't have gotten off the ground. He's not only a friend to us, but to everyone. He's not judged fairly most of the time, but he still has a smile for everyone.

As co-chairman of this coalition, he doesn't down my abilities, as to what I can and cannot do. He assures me of the self-confidence that I know I have in myself. He doesn't look at us as if what we're trying to do is for the black community only, as some say, rather he acknowledges the fact that STAND is for all races, creed and color, but we understand that we can't force anyone to join us.

He trust us enough to donate us his clinic to hold our meetings with our own supervision. When he isn't busy he comes into our meetings and raps with the students.

STAND would like to say thanks to Dr. Jose Ugarte and ask that he please continue to stick by us. You can't know what your presence means to us. We are beginning our second year, getting kids to understand it's more than just saying No!
