head.

Carter was transported to the Eagle Lake Police Department by Officer Ernie Grimes, where he was offered treatment by the ambulance crew and Dr. Ugarte. Carter refused treatment at first, but later agreed to be bandaged. He was treated at the Eagle Lake Community Hospital, then taken to the Colorado County Jail. Carter is currently on parole for burglary.

Barney Brooks Welch, 59, of Houston was arrested Friday, March 30 for one count of unlawful carrying of a weapon and two counts of aggravated assault.

According to the police report, Welch was doing some remodeling work at the Heights of Texas office in Eagle Lake. He had been doing the contract work for his ex-wife when he was terminated due to his drinking problem. He became upset over the termination, called Heights of Texas and stated he was coming down with a 2x4 to beat the guys who were remodeling the office.

At the time, his call was taken as a joke. He arrived later that day, walked to the back of the building and started swinging the 2x4, hitting Vernon Peltschick on the left arm and Roy Deer on the head. As Deer was running out of the business with Welch behind him, a .357 magnum fell out of Welch's pocket onto the floor. Welch picked up the gun and headed toward his van when Chief of Police Lupe Villarreal stopped him. Villarreal found the gun in his possession.

Welch, who has no history of violence, has a drinking problem and his ex-wife was in the process of getting help for him. The two workers involved in the assault later gave a statement saying they would drop the charges if he (Welch) would receive medical treatment. Welch was released into custody of his ex-wife and a doctor from an alcohol treatment hospital.

Welch had been drinking for a couple of days straight when the assault occurred, according to Eagle Lake police. Charges are being withheld at this time as long as Welch receives medical treatment.

'Flower basket' quilt for June picnic

CPL rate increase approved

The Public Utility Commission recently authorized Central Power and Light Company to collect a $105 million stipulated increase, subject to refund pending final determination by the commission.

The increase is the first step of a two-step, $264 million settlement of CPL's rate case. The agreement was reached in February between CPL and substantially all intervenors in the case. On March 16, a PUC administrative law judge recommended approval of the increase. The new rate represents a 13-percent increase over current bills on a systemwide basis. Today's vote was 2 to 1 in favor, with Commissioner Jo Campbell dissenting.

"The commission's implementation of the first-step rate increase preserves the settlement that the parties have worked so hard to reach. It signals what we hope is the beginning of the end to a long, complicated and expensive rate case," said Bob Carey, CPL president and chief executive officer.

A residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month will see about a $10 increase in the monthly bill. Winter bills will increase from the current bill of $62.41 to $73.51. Summer bills will go from $68.61 to $79.34. The increase became effective March 21.

Final commission approval on the merits of permanent rates for the first-step increase is not expected until later this year.

With approval of the stipulated first-step increase, two new programs for industrial and commercial customers become effective. An economic development rider gives discounted demand charges for new or expanded loads in certain industries of 600 kilowatts or more. Another program, called the Commercial Average Monthly Payment Plan or CAMP, allows commercial customers in certain rate classes to average their electric bills over a 12-month time frame.

Also being put into effect is an economy service rate for residential customers who use 500 kilowatt-hours or less a month. The new rate will allow those customers to pay rates similar to what they pay now.

Implementation of the new rates also extends the summer billing season for residential customers to eight months, instead of six, to track more closely the actual use of air conditioning and heating in South Texas. The summer season starts with meters read Feb. 19 - March 19 and concludes with meters read Oct. 19 - Nov. 19.

The settlement package calls for the $105 million increase in March 1990 followed by a $120 million, 13 percent, systemwide increase effective January 1991. CPL must file a second rate case this spring and gain PUC approval before the second-step increase can be implemented. Base rates would then be frozen through 1994, except in the case of specific, unusual circumstances. Fuel costs would continue to be adjusted as necessary according to PUC regulation.

"Approval and implementation of the full settlement would save millions of dollars of rate case expense over the coming years," Carey said. "It would also mean stable, predictable rates for our customers."

In February 1989, CPL requested a $464 million, four-year phase-in of rates to recover its investment in the South Texas Project nuclear plant and other costs of doing business. Both units of the 2,500-megawatt plant are in full operation.

operating organization when it sold its two hospitals in Wharton County — Gulf Coast Medical Center and Caney Valley — in 1983. The money from the sale was invested and 5% of its net worth is given away each year to non-profit organizations or groups related to the medical field in a six-county area comprised of Colorado, Wharton, Jackson, Matagorda, Fort Bend and part of Brazoria counties. Miori said the Foundation has given to the nursing program at Wharton County Junior College, the Emergency Medical Service, Riceland Mental Health Center, Colorado Valley Transit program and many more.

The endowment fund for Rice CISD will be set up as the Student Medical Fund. The school will be responsible for the custody, investment and accounting for the endowment and that only the income from the endowment is to be used primarily for emergency medical and related needs, as approved by the school nurse, principal and superintendent, including certification that no other funds (family, insurance, government programs, etc.) were available. The money will be used as interest accrues, which won't be until the 1990-91 school year.

Miori encourages other groups or individuals to donate to this endowment which helps those who aren't eligible for Medicaid and aren't able to afford their own insurance. The Foundation, controlled by the government, has been in existence for the past seven years and gives away approximately $500,000 each year.

Therefore, smoking will no longer be permitted throughout all areas of the hospital and including the hospital premises.

If, in the opinion of the physician, a patient must be allowed to smoke, the physician may grant permission via a written or verbal order to a Nurse. For safety reasons, the patients, in private rooms only, may smoke in the presence of another person in the room.

Rice School Board of Trustees discuss administrator contracts

The Rice Consolidated Board of Trustees met Monday night, April 9. The board held a discussion regarding type and terms of administrator contracts. Following the discussion, Board President Fritz Leopold appointed a committee conlisting of Bill Carpenter, John Carey, and John Matthews to study types of administrator contracts and recommend to the board the type of contract "that is in the best interest of the Rice School District." The board took no action on administrators' contracts when extension time came up in February, thus allowing all administrators in the Rice District to be under contract only through the 1990-91 school year. At that time the board cited the purpose for non-extension of administrator contracts as study of a new type of contract. The type of contract presently for principals is a 2 year contract eligible to be extended on an annual basis. The superintendent and assistant superintendent operate with a 2 year contract eligible to be extended on an annual basis.

The board heard a report by the newly formed Rice Consolidated Drug Advisory Council. Assistant Superintendent Carolyn McGaughey told the board "that since drug abuse has become such a problem of monumental size, both federal and state emphasis on drug awareness is becoming very strong, and since the district accepts both federal and state monies it must adhere to regulations, one being the formation of a drug advisory council, representative of the whole district."

Deborah Matthys explained the drug education curriculum that has been implemented in grades K-12. She then introduced Pat Woodard Connor and Charlotte Hinze who reported to the board on plans the advisory council has for making the public aware of the escalating problem of drug abuse. Connor, who is a Rice High graduate and presently serves as a unit manager for Orchard Hospital, told the board, "the council's number one objective is to see the Rice School District become a drug free district."

The board voted to apply for asbestos abatement financing in the

Drug Advisory Council formed

The Rice School District has formed a Drug Education Advisory Council composed of individuals who are parents, teachers, medical professionals, law enforcement representatives and representatives of religious and community organizations with interest and expertise in the field of drug abuse education and prevention. There are representatives from each of the three communities and five schools in the district. The main purpose of the council is to work toward making the Rice schools and communities drug-free through developing ways of involving the students, parents, teachers and community members.

The Council sent eight of its members to a School/Community Team Training at the Catholic Retreat Center at Victoria on March 25-28. The team was composed of a cross-section of members from the Advisory Council: Guy Beane, Rice H.S. and Garwood school counselor; Pat Conner, Eagle Lake parent and Orchard Creek Hospital nurse/supervisor and counselor; Sharla Hinze, Sheridan parent, PTS president and Rice H.S. aide; Bobby Johnson, Colorado County Juvenile Officer; Deborah Matthys, Special Programs Supervisor for Rice CISD; Jose Ugarte, physician; Sharon Webb, Rice CISD School Nurse and Reuben Wunderlich, Rice H.S. Health and Driver's Education teacher. During the three day training, the team attended information sessions on drug and alcohol abuse and developed an Action Plan for achieving the Drug Council's goal of drug-free schools and communities.

One of the first steps taken to implement the action plan was a presentation to the School Board by members of the School/Community Team. The goals and future activities of the Drug Education Advisory Council were explained and the Council was given the full support and approval of the school board.

The immediate goal of the Drug Education Advisory Council is to in-
