U.I.L. Highlight

Two more events in the prestigious U.I.L. competition are news-sheet and headline writing. News-writing is a forty-five minute contest in which the student is given a fact sheet and must write a news story about it. The judging criteria is as follows: "Leads consist of timely and precise and stylistically exact, all news questions should be answered and editorialization should be avoided".

The students competing in the U.I.L. event are Daryl Anderson, Vicki Drik and Natalie Cordova. The other journalism contest is editorial writing. Editorial writing is another forty-five minute contest. In the contest the competitor is given a fact sheet and they must take a stand, pro or con, and write an editorial about it. The criteria is that the introduction should present the problem and establish the staff, the body of the story should support stance, there should be an avoidance of direct quotes, and the writing should be exact, active and precise. The students involved in this competition are Anessa Williams and Becky Faichtinger.

The journalism contest will take place Thursday, March 21 at Bellville.

FHA visits Heritage House

By BECKY FAICHTINGER

The Rice High School Future Homemakers of America visited the residents of the Heritage House in Eagle Lake on February 27. The students who traveled to the Heritage House were Erica Ledezma, Elaine Fields, Brenda Rodriguez, Becky Ortiz and Griselda Montalvo, along with their advisor, Dianna Wunderlich. The students visit gave them a positive feeling about helping others. They all had a nice time getting to know the people staying at the Heritage House.

After a visit, the girls stopped for refreshments at Dairy Queen. Afterwards, the group made a trip to a former FHA student's home, Kashara Pratt. Mrs. Wunderlich and the girls spent time examining Kashara's own interior decorating endeavors.

Sunderman awarded scholarship

By TRICIA THOMAS

Each year, a senior Ag student in Colorado County is chosen as the winner of the Go Texan Scholarship. This $2,000 scholarship is based on an essay, teacher recommendations, and academic achievements.

After applications are filled out, they are sent to the Houston Livestock Show where they are reviewed by a committee and the winners are then chosen. This year, Rice is proud to announce that Sher Sunderman became the recipient of this award. On Friday, February 22, Sher and winners from other counties met with the president of the Livestock Show where they received their certificates.

Sher's selection can now be added to a long list of Rice students who have benefited from the generosity of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

Sher is the daughter of Melvin and Rita Sunderman of Eagle Lake.

Student Pride chosen

By NATALIE CORDOVA

A panel of teachers at Rice High chose Mike Foshee, as their student pride award winner for the week.

Mike had a very surprised and proud look on his face when he was told of his achievement. Mike was asked what his favorite subject was and he chose history because he likes to study about what has happened in the past. Mr. Zaragoza Gonzalez was selected as his favorite teacher and personal motivator. "He makes me work hard and adds humor to what he is teaching which makes it interesting to learn." Mike enjoys attending R.H.S. because the teachers, staff and students work hard and are willing to help.

Mike Foshee is the son of Kenneth R. and Mary E. VanCleve of Sheridan. Outside of school, Mike likes to go hunting and fishing.

Who's Zat?

By VICKI DRIK

"Get this bow off of my head and please give me some presents! I am sick of playing with this stupid little apple!"

This brown-eyed, chubby-cheeked little cutie had many people baffled at Rice. Erica Ledezma and Mandy Luevano opened the wrong present when they guessed Elizabeth Siles. Connie Soto didn't even get a chance to open a gift when she guessed Stacy Leopold. Tami Fuller, Matt Weller and Scott Garrett opened an empty gift when they guessed Erin Korenec.

The special present went to J' Amy McClanahan, Amy Leopold and Lorenia Pence when they knew this adorable cutie had to be Cari Craneck.

Cari, a Freshman, is a member of the J.V. volleyball team. Cari is the daughter of Larry and Donna Craneck of Garwood.

Keeping in Step with South Texas Education

Saluting Texas Public Schools Week, March 4-8

CPL is proud to work hand-in-hand with educational efforts throughout South Texas. Our employees volunteer their time with the Adopt-A-School Program and serve as tutors with local adult literacy agencies. CPL also encourages electrical safety in the elementary schools, through performances of The Small Change Original Theatre group. And for 30 years, CPL-sponsored scholarships have helped young adults attend colleges and universities across Texas.

At CPL, we're devoting our energy to education. And that's a step in the right direction for all of us.
