ULCERS: A PROBLEM OF CIRCULATION

One of the consequences of poor circulation is that skin becomes more usceptible to ulcers. As leg muscles falter in their job of pumping blood back to the heart, blood pools and ulcers form. The most common type of ulcer, stasis ulcers, usually occur around the ankles, heels and sides of the foot. Early symptoms include itching and redness around the bony bumps of the ankle and foot.

Scratching often aggravates the site, resulting in a painful, infected wound. One key to either preventing or healing ulcers is to improve circulation. Foot and leg exercises can help, as can wearing support stockings. Always seek your doctor's advice if an ulcer develops, as special dressings may be prescribed.

Some folks are affected with poor circulation as a hereditary factor, however, exercises can go a long way in helping improve this. Please call my office for further information or for an appointment, at the Eagle Lake Community Hospital at 409-234-5571. I am there the first and third Tuesdays of the month. I offer your entire family high quality, professional and sensitive service.

P.S. Diabetic foot ulcers, while usually not very painful, can be particularly langerous and should always be treated by a doctor.

The Leading Cause of Tooth Loss

The primary cause of tooth loss is a condition dentists refer to as periodontal disease. The more common name for this condition is "gum disease." Periodontal disease begins with an accumulation of plaque, an invisible film that covers the teeth. If the plaque remains and hardens, it forms a material called calculus. Calculus encourages the formation of pockets around the root or base of the tooth. These pockets can become filled with food particles and bacteria, resulting in infection. Often these areas become inflamed, causing the gums to recede or move away from the teeth. Since there is less support for the teeth, the teeth eventually loosen and, without treatment, may be lost. One of the signs of gum disease is bad breath that does not improve after brushing and use of mouth rinses.

Periodontal disease may occur more frequently in persons who have liabetes, or blood disorders, or who take certain medicines. Those who grind their teeth while sleeping and individuals with a malocclusion (bad bite) also may be prone to develop gum disease.

A general dentist or periodontist may choose to treat gum disease by scraping away the calculus. If this is not effective, surgical removal of eep pockets at the gum line and antibiotic therapy may be necessary.
