Heritage House News

By Tracy Brewer, Activity Director

I would like to take this time to thank a very special group who came to visit residents of Heritage House. They were students from Rice High School AEC class. In the group were Doyle Holland, Larry Morgan, Rex McCloud, Misty McCloud, Socorro Cano with teachers Judy Pustejovsky and Veronica Fields. Our special guests exercised with residents and played many games. Residents were thankful that they came to spend time with us. Can't wait until they come back. They will be joining us again, March 25.

At the Heritage House, the men and I got together and formed a men's social group, the Sitting Bulls.

Residents enjoyed watching a very good movie this week donated by Mary Canaris; "Return to Snowy River". Residents said it was very exciting.

Residents have been working on Easter decorations. For 25¢, you can buy a chance to win a decorated Easter basket or a decorated wreath. Please ask the activity director for more information. Also, if you would like to make a decoration for us, we welcome you to bring it. Maybe you would like to make or bring something for us to do to help out our activity department.

Residents enjoyed playing dominoes and cards this week. Next week we are planning a tournament; ladies against the men! We will see who is the winner.

Outside garden care has become a part of our week since it has been so nice out. Residents enjoy planting seeds and watering what is coming up.

The Methodist Ladies share group came to visit us March 13. This is always a special time for all residents. These ladies are so nice and we really appreciate them coming and sharing their time with us.

Administrator's notes: After an individual has been diagnosed as having a terminal illness and seeks out a facility to provide that care, the facility must provide emotional, spiritual, and social support for the resident and his or her family. The interdisciplinary team, (medical, social, dietary, etc) must interview the resident to individualize his care.

The social worker will interview the resident and family to determine the means that each uses to cope with the situation, their strengths and their cultural and spiritual beliefs.

The individual that has the terminal disease is usually very aware of what is happening to his or her body and can often witness that the family and the staff providing care avoid discussing the situation for fear of depressing him or her. Residents often need the opportunity to share their feelings and experiences. Despite the fact that all the physical needs are being attended, the resident can feel isolated. Open communication between family and staff can lessen these feelings.

The social worker needs to be involved and be aware of what the physician has discussed with the individual as to the progression of the disease. Many will deny that this is happening to them and therefore be unable to accept the inevitable. The staff must always support and encourage the resident to talk to his family.

Foot Facts

By Dr. Eric R. Tepper, Podiatrist

AN ARCH VILLAIN

When people discuss foot problems, talk usually turns to conditions such as shin splints or ingrown toenails. There is, however, a largely unrecognized condition guaranteed to cause a host of problems: weak arches. This is actually a relatively common malady involving the bones of the foot. For a person with this condition, the foot appears perfectly normal while the arches are not bearing weight. As soon as the person stands, however, the arch loses its shape and the foot pronates (rotates inward and downward), so that the foot comes down on its inner margin when walking. One villainous aspect of weak arches is that they cause problems far away from the arch itself, such as bunions and tailor's bunions.

Weak arches may call for special supportive shoes to minimize discomfort. See your podiatrist for a full evaluation. Please call my office for further information or for an appointment, at the Eagle Lake Community Hospital at 409-234-5571. I am there the first and third Tuesdays of the month. I can provide for your entire family's podiatric needs, with quality medical care, gained from years of experience and attention to my patient's particular needs.

P.S. Only a careful podiatric evaluation can determine the degree of tilt and pronation in a case of weak arches.

Who's Zat?

By Jennifer Wied

It wasn't very easy to keep this little blanket-baby under cover. The only clue given to solve this mystery was that it was a picture of a junior.

Kelly Thompson and Joy Johnson lost their blanket when Kelly guessed Kari Seaholm and Joy guessed Chancey Pence. Mr. Streit couldn't put this baby to bed because he didn't have a clue who it was.

Those students who found the missing blanket were Leslie Center, Sara Eggemeyer, Mandy Priesmeyer, Cari Cranek, Kim Henski and Melanie Labay, who guessed Scott Garrett. Others who make it to bed on time for their nap were Erin Korenek, Kim Korenek, Kaci Klein, Ashley Cranek and Misty Cranek, who also guessed Scott. Kellie Walker, Kari Seaholm, Kim Powers, Jason Eggemeyer, Kevin Jackson, Matt Weller and Mrs. Holden also recognized this grinning, bouncing baby boy as Scott Garrett.

Scott is the son of Charles and Shirley Garrett of Eagle Lake. He is the 1991-92 Junior Class Favorite and a member of the Rice Raider football and power lifting teams.

Meet the Lady Tracksters

By Bonnie Benge

With the track season underway, we will now begin interviewing the young ladies and gentlemen involved in this sport. The Lady Raider of the week is Jamy McClanahan. When we asked Jamy why she enjoys track, she said that it keeps you in shape for other sports and you get a chance to be outside during the spring.

Jamy competes in the 330 M hurdles, 200 M dash and the high jump. Jamy says the high jump is her favorite event because it does not make her as nervous as the others.

When competing on the track workouts, Jamy says they are pretty hard, but a lot easier now than they were the first week. Jamy's goal for this season is to steadily improve and pick up where she was her freshman year when she last ran track.

Jamy is involved in many other activities including volleyball and cheerleading and is the daughter of Richard and Robyn Clipson of Eagle Lake.
